ALLIES ADVANCE IN BITTER BATTLE

R. A. F. Raid On Turin Is 'Heaviest'

Attack Is Fourth Over Period of Eight Nights and British Lose Only Three Planes

Morale Is Bad

British Say Italians Are Apprehensive of Future

London, Nov. 21 (AP)—The arsenal city of Turin was attacked last night by R. A. F. bombers in a raid which an authoritative British source termed the "heaviest yet made on Italy."

Of the scores of Stirlings, Halifaxes, Lancasters and Wellingtons assigned to the mission, three failed to return.

The others made the 1,500-mile round trip successfully in another of the mass attacks that are proving an economical way to tear at the industrial vitals of the Axis.

A terse air communique said: "The attack was heavy and concentrated but dense smoke from many fires made observation of the results difficult."

Clear weather gave the targets sharp outlines, however, and an Italian communique itself said the British, attacking in waves, "dropped incendiary bombs in great quantities, mainly in the central district of the town."

The Italians said the British inflicted damage and spread fires and listed casualties at 29 dead and 120 wounded.

Members of several Canadian squadrons which participated in the raid said Turin's air defenses included only one searchlight.

Fires were visible 50 miles from the city, they said, and smoke from one notably large one rose to almost 5,000 feet. One flier said it was so thick he believed an oil dump was hit. Another said he saw "one big building fall apart" when a two-ton block-buster burst upon it.

The first British announcement of the foray did not specify the size of the raiding force of the targets, but reports from the south coast of England said "great numbers" of the big bombers droned southeast in the night and their goal presumably was the industrial region of northern Italy.

An Associated Press correspondent at a southeastern port said the heavy bombers rumbled across the channel in waves for an hour last night, flying high above an overcast.

It was the fourth raid on Italy in eight nights, and the tenth, including one by day, since the latest and heaviest bomb offensive was set off October 22 with a grand scale lambasting of Genoa, key supply port for Axis forces in North Africa.

Other raids in this series have been on Genoa, Milan, Savona and Turin, the most recent previous one having been on the latter city Wednesday night.

So far, the onslaught against Italy has been costing the R. A. F. only a fraction of the machines lost in similar heavy scale raids on Germany, showing, British observers say, that Italy is woefully short of anti-aircraft guns and night fighters.

The air ministry has announced that only 17 bombers have been lost in the eight night thrusts and one day sally from October 22 through November 18 and all the

Nazis Are Dislodged From Height Near Nalchik in Mid-Caucasus

Moscow, Nov. 21 (AP)—Successfully storming heights at Stalingrad in the Caucasus, the Russians were reported showing fresh strength today in their bloody give-and-take with the German invaders.

During the night a Red Army unit dislodged the enemy from a strongly fortified height southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus and killed 300 Germans, the midday communique said. In the Mozdok sector to the northeast of Nalchik another Soviet unit was credited with killing 100 foemen in a small scale attack such as the Russians have been launching in increasing numbers for several days.

Overnight at Stalingrad attacks by small enemy groups were reported beaten off in the southern outskirts, where Red counter-thrusts had taken a height a few hours earlier.

Post-War Jobless Benefits Planned

Projects Are in Blue-Print Stage; Public Works Include Crossings

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—Post-war jobless in nearly every section of the state would benefit from $12,000,000 of State Institute Construction Projects that already have reached or soon will enter the blue print stage.

Records of the temporary state commission for Post-War Public Works planning disclosed today that $4,032,000 of such construction currently occupies the drawing boards of all available state architects.

Plans for an additional $7,993,000 of projects will be drawn as soon as a selection of private architects, to begin immediately, is completed.

The work includes new construction, repairs or installations in prisons, hospitals, State Colleges and other institutions from Brooklyn to Buffalo and ranges in estimated cost of individual projects from $34,000 to $4,000,000.

The planning commission was created by the 1942 legislature with an appropriation of $450,000, to prepare plans and specifications for Public Works Construction that could help overcome an employment slump anticipated immediately after the war.

Also being designed for the Post-War "work reservoir" are $60,000,000 of grade crossing eliminations, $80,000,000 of public housing, and $90,000,000 of highways and parkways. Holden A. Evans, Jr., executice secretary of the commission, said expansion of the present $242,000,000 state program to $460,000,000 is expected plus an additional estimated $290,000,000 of municipal projects.

The objective is to prevent months of delay in plan drawing after the war ends, so that actual construction can be started immediately where desired. While a small part of the over-all program, certain of the institutional projects may be, because of need for the construction, the first undertaken.

The only function of the commission is the preparation of plans and Evans said that, so far as their availability is concerned, "it will be possible to let contracts within 24 hours after the war is over."

Institutional projects for which plans are being drawn by state architects and the estimated construction cost include:

Letchworth village at Thiells, addition to power house and equipment, $395,000; Great Meadow Prison, cell hall windows and screens, $250,000; State training School for girls, Hudson, new laundry building, $120,000; Westfield State Farm, Bedford Hills, replacement of boilers and power plant equipment, $79,000.

Matteawan State Hospital, reconstruction of kitchen, bakery, dining room and auditorium, $308,000; Auburn Prison, new maintenance shop and building, $250,000; Willard State Hospital, renovations to Chapin house, $60,000;

Parade Will Lead Inductees to Station at Noon; List Is Given Out

Carl Spiegel of 30 Andrew street will serve as acting corporal of the contingent of 98 men who will leave for Camp Upton on Tuesday on the noon train on the West Shore railroad. All of the members of the contingent passed the physical examinations on November 17 at an army induction center in Albany, and were inducted into the U. S. Army.

The usual parade is planned to escort the newest members of the U. S. Army from the Kingston draft office in the Central Post Office building to the West Shore station.

The parade will form at 11:20 o'clock that morning on central Broadway, and Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy will act as grand marshal. The boys will be presented with the usual gifts of cigarettes and candy by the mayor's committee.

Included in the contingent will be two members of the Kingston High School faculty, M. Clifford Miller and Kenneth C. Appleton, and one from the Myron J. Michael School faculty, William Chazanof.

The Kingston fire department will be represented by Captain James M. Brett of the Wiltwyck Fire Station.

Gerald C. Combs, who was a member of the contingent who left for Albany on November 17, and passed his physical tests, did not return for the week's furlough granted the inductees but went at once to training camp.

Attorney Harry Gold, one of the younger members of the Ulster county bar, is also a member of the contingent leaving Tuesday, and another is Sidney G. Lutzin, superintendent of the city's recreational department.

The official list of those who leave Tuesday follows:

U. S. Clinches Guadalcanal, Navy Secretary Knox Says

Jap Troop Loss Runs To 50,000

Naval Officer Tells of Personnel Lost by Japanese During Battles

Fight Is Savage

New Guinea Campaign Finds Japs Trying to Thwart Disaster

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—An American drive to wipe out remaining Japanese bases in the Solomon Islands appeared near at hand today as terrific destruction of enemy troops and ships seemed to clinch the United States hold on Guadalcanal.

Announcing for the first time that the American grip on the prized island and its strategic air-base is "now very secure," Secretary of Navy Knox reported yesterday that half of a force of 1,500 Nipponese landed on Guadalcanal had been slaughtered and the rest routed.

Possibility of duplication in the Navy's reports of enemy ships lost in the great American sea victory of last week also was dispelled by Knox who declared 28 Japanese vessels had been sunk. These comprised a battleship, another battleship or heavy cruiser, six heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, six destroyers and 12 transports and cargo ships. Ten more were damaged.

The reported American losses of two light cruisers and six destroyers in the same battle brought the nation's total of destroyed vessels in the Pacific war to 50 combat and 34 non-combat ships since Pearl Harbor.

Official announcements of the Navy and Allied headquarters boosted the total Japanese losses to 126 combat and 246 non-combat ships.

Meanwhile, the first American naval officer to return to Pearl Harbor since the defeat of the Japanese armada estimated the foe's attempts to recapture Guadalcanal had cost the lives of perhaps 10,000 Nipponese on the Island alone. From 20,000 to 40,000 more were believed killed in the sinking of eight loaded enemy transports.

Declaring that the Marines, soldiers and sailors felt that they had "been through everything and have taken everything the Japs could offer," Lieut. DeWitt Peterkin, 29, added at Pearl Harbor last night:

"They're optimistic and already are talking about the next move westward."

Peterkin, banker assistant to the J. P. Morgan partners, was a ground officer for the carrier torpedo Squadron Eight which participated in the Midway battle that struck the Japanese carriers in June. Slaughter of a thousand Japanese in one sector of the island on one night, he said, was not unusual.

In New Guinea, westward of the Solomons, the Japanese fought savagely to forestall what seemed to be imminent disaster. The fiercest fighting of the campaign raged in the Buna-Gona areas where American and Australian troops had pinned the invaders back

40 Per Cent of U. S. Butter Is Frozen For Armed Forces

War Production Board Order Also Gives Part of Supply to Lease-Lend; Cold Storage Is Hit

By KENNETH L. DIXON

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—To keep Johnny Doughboy from being fed dry bread while fighting far away, the folks at home may soon have to spread their butter thin—or use some substitute.

Frozen in more ways than one, 40 per cent of the nation's cold-stored butter supply today was set aside for fighting men and the lease-lend program under terms of a War Production Board order.

And housewives started eyeing such table-fat substitutes as margerine and peanut butter, for the "temporary" wording of the order failed to ease the threat of eventual shortage. Agriculture Department officials asserted that present butter production was not meeting market needs and pointed out that the W. P. B. slice of nearly 35,000,000 pounds would be felt in the near future.

However, W. P. B. officials planned to supplant the freeze as quickly as possible with a limitation order which would cut consumption about 10 per cent—or two pounds per person a year.

They added that the shortage might not materially affect the retail market before January, and that rationing might not be necessary, although the board's food requirements committee—headed by Agriculture Secretary Wickard—reported that butter supplies have been reduced to the lowest levels since 1932.

Because of the shortage, attributed to seasonal production slumps and increasing civilian purchasing power, the army and navy have found it increasingly difficult to get sufficient supplies, W. P. B. said. At a time when improvement in the shipping situation made it opportune to ship more butter to the men overseas, many vessels with space for it were forced to sail with other cargo.

"This situation requires prompt and drastic action," the board said.

The order earmarked for government purchase half the butter in cold storage in the nation's 35 principal marketing centers, which hold about 80 per cent of the entire supply. It was retroactive to November 6, ruling that deliveries made since then could not be subtracted in setting aside the federal portion and even existing contracts could not be considered.

It did not affect retail stocks on hand. Unless superseded, it will remain in effect until March 6.

Certificate Is Filed

Charles Perry and Peter Perry of 170 Delaware avenue and Ernest Perry of 221 East Strand have filed a certificate in the office of the county clerk stating they are doing business at 598 Broadway, Kingston, under the name and style of Perry's Taxi.

Lehman May Become U. S. Post-War Food Executive

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The New York Times reported today that President Roosevelt was expected to name retiring Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York to a world-wide post as administrator of feeding, clothing and rehabilitating countries friendly to or occupied by the United Nations.

The Times dispatch from Washington said:

"Mr. Lehman's assignment is expected to be primarily one of making plans and determining policy for the huge task which confronts the United Nations in rebuilding the world after victory is won.

"He would be responsible, it was said, not only for feeding, clothing and sheltering the starving millions of Europe, Asia and Africa, but would also have charge of the efforts to get these countries back on their feet industrially and agriculturally at the end of the war."

Lehman could not be reached for comment immediately.

Restaurants, Other Big Coffee Users Sign Nov. 23-25

All Information Necessary Is Listed and Must Be Available When Users Register

Industrial and institutional users of coffee must register for coffee rationing in the city of Kingston on November 23, 24 and 25. This registration the first of the week applies only to such users as schools, restaurants, hospitals, boardinghouse keepers and other institutional or large users of coffee.

This registration does not apply to wholesale or retail dealers. Registration dates for dealers will be held at a later date, the date not yet having been designated by the O.P.A.

The Kingston War Price and Ration Board in announcing the dates of registration for large consumers, stated that all applicants should bring the following information along at the time of making application:

Amount of coffee used for the month of September, the amount of coffee used for the months of October and their coffee inventory as of midnight November 21, 1942. In supplying the amount of coffee used during two months requested, the amount used each month must be known. In addition the applicants must be able to furnish the names and addresses of all persons from whom they purchased roasted coffee during the base period, September and October, 1942, and the amounts purchased from each concern.

The prescribed form may be filled out at the time of registration by the agent registering for the institution or industrial user seeking the ration. Registration will take place at the local office of the War Price and Ration Board in the Millard Building on Central Broadway between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The industrial users who will register on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week will not have stamps to present for coffee but the institution will present the official purchase certificates obtained at the time of the above mentioned registration entitling them to a specific number of pounds of coffee. These can be surrendered to the supplier of their coffee beginning, Monday, November 23.

This registration next week does not apply to the householder or individual consumer of coffee but only to the large industrial or institutional users of coffee.

Mallon Changes Plea

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—James J. Mallon, 32, yesterday changed his plea from guilty to innocent to an indictment charging him with second degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Carol D. Tuttle, 35. Mallon changed his plea upon the advice of Queens County Judge Charles S. Colden, who advised the defendant of the seriousness of the charge and suggested he obtain a lawyer.

War Housing Projects

New York, Nov. 21 (AP) — The Federal Public Housing Authority has announced that contracts for seven war housing projects for 1,085 families in New Jersey and Pennsylvania have been approved. They include: Mechanicsburg, Pa., 75 homes, to Rathgeb-Walsh, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y., for $327,520.

Feeling at Cairo Is One of Confidence With Caution Tinge

Allied Leaders Feel They Are on Right Road to Victory, but They Realize Task

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Cairo, Nov. 21—I find most gratifying the air of solid confidence in both British and American military headquarters on the Nile as the chase of the disorganized Axis forces continues westward across the Libyan desert into the crimson glow of Hitler's setting sun.

Now of course figures of speech are among the world's greatest liars and must be used with great reserve. So I hasten to add that it is with deliberation that I refer to the master gangster's sinking sun, for it most assuredly has passed its zenith, considering all aspects of the European war.

Still, while confidence among our captains of the war is 100 per cent, there is not the slightest disposition to underrate the magnitude of the task ahead of us. The Boche has plenty of fight left in him and his striking power is great despite his losses.

It is true that the only way we can lose now is through Allied errors in judgment, but a major mistake might prove disastrous.

As regards the Libyan wing of the great Allied North African show, we are in the midst of the battle. Unless the Germans unexpectedly step entirely out of character there still is heavy fighting in the offing.

In assaying the position we must recognize that Rommel's sensational flight, which is being carried out with exceptional speed, is impelled by tactical necessity rather than fear. He is a rash man who, even in hatred, claims the German soldier is afraid to stand and fight.

What Rommel is trying to do is to race his shattered and harassed forces westward until he can make a junction with Axis colleagues now bent on stemming the Allied drive against Tunis and Bizerte. Present indications are that Hitler has no intention of causing North Africa to be abandoned without another stand.

Air Power Importance Grows

Air power is becoming increasingly important as the battle to a climax with the Allies pressing the Axis from west and east.

Hitler's hopes must depend largely on the Lutwaffe and he is said to be rushing aerial reinforcement into the battle.

The Allies, already superior in the air, are gaining strength as they advance into enemy territory. Already the Allied drive through Libya has resulted in the capture of some 120 landing fields and this naturally facilitates operations of the combined British and American forces which unceasingly plaster Axis columns, bases and lines of communication.

At this crucial juncture, Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, famous air exponent, has arrived to take command of United States Army forces in the Middle East. He undoubtedly has stepped into the midst of a situation to his liking for he knows his air. It is my observation that he is swinging into action fast.

I had an interesting chat with the general a couple of nights ago and while one isn't privileged to quote him I came away with the impression that American experts are looking forward to the fascinating possibilities of bombing both

Louis Castiglione, 22, Is Killed Between Two Trucks at Stewart Field

Louis Castiglione, 22, of 114 Tremper avenue, this city, was instantly killed at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon when he was crushed between two trucks while at work on the Stewart Air Field, near Newburgh.

The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Castiglione. The father, who is also known as Costello, has operated barbershops in Kingston for a number of years.

The youth was recently classified as 1A and would, if accepted, have been the fourth brother in the armed service. He is survived by his parents and three brothers.

A report of the tragedy was to the effect that Castiglione was leaning against the back of a truck when another truck started to back and he was caught between the two trucks. He was injured so badly that he died instantly.

The Kingston police were notified and asked to get in touch with the young man's family. Captain James V. Simpson notified the father of his son's death.

He is survived by his parents and three brothers, Carlo, stationed at Pine Camp; Joseph at St. Angel, Texas, and Salvatore at Anderson Field, S. C. The funeral will be held from the Jenson & Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock at St. Mary's Church, where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Burial will be in the family pot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Five-Mile Gain Made Near Tunis

Hitler Sends Troops and Tanks by Air in Effort to Turn Back Allies

Claim Is Made

Axis Says Allies Are Repulsed, Armored Units Taken

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

American and British troops, scoring a five-mile advance in one direction, pitched into the Germans on the outer defenses of Bizerte and Tunis today while U. S. Flying Fortresses rained deadly punishment on the enemy hemmed in along a 30-mile-wide coastal strip.

A Nazi broadcast, quoting Allied sources in Spanish Morocco, said Allied forces had reached the area of Hammamet, about 40 miles southeast of Tunis, on the Gulf of Gabes.

This, if confirmed, would mean that the Allies had now pinned the Axis into a small corner of the northeast Tunisian coast and cut off the route of retreat to Italian Tripolitania. In that case, the two main Axis forces in Tunisia and Libya would be split.

The Algiers radio said French troops had beaten off a new German attempt to land on the coast below Tunis and captured some Nazis in a fight northwest of the port of Gabes.

German reports said Adolf Hitler was rushing a stream of air-borne reinforcements, including tanks, across the Mediterranean in a desperate effort to stem the Allied offensive.

Field ditpatches said the battle was growing more bitter hour by hour, with Allied troops storming Nazi fortifications only 30 miles from both cities in the French North Africa colony.

One Allied vanguard was reported to have driven forward five miles to a point 25 miles southeast of Tunis, the capital, fighting over ancient battlefields of the Carthaginian empire.

Italian headquarters asserted the battle was developing "on the Tunisian-Algerian border"—about 50 miles west of the scene described by Allied dispatches—and declared that operations "have gone to the advantage of the Axis."

Axis Claims Are Made

A Fascist communique said British and American troops were turned back in the frontier region after losing armored cars and trucks.

The German radio claimed that Axis forces Thursday night seized a railway station east of Tabarka, 65 miles west of Bizerte, and reported that Fighting French De Gaullist troops had been thrown back to the Tunisian frontier in the south.

The Nazi broadcast said 12 Allied tanks and 18 armored cars were destroyed in the first clash in Tunisia.

On the Libyan front, Britain's victorious Eighth Army raised its flag over the "escape port" of Bengazi again and mobile British vanguards pressed hotly on Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating forces near Agedabia.

Agedabia lies 100 miles south of Bengasi and only 70 miles from the El Agheila defile, a narrow corridor between salt marshes and the sea, where Rommel is expected to make a last stand.

While the German radio exulted

Warning Is Given

British Say Mediterranean Is Dangerous to Ships; French Ports Closed

London, Nov. 21 (AP)—The admiralty announced in a statement today that the Mediterranean, except for Turkish territorial waters, was dangerous to shipping east of a line running roughly north and south between the French-Spanish border and the coast of North Africa.

This, in effect, closed the ports of the French Mediterranean coast to Axis shipping, stopping a leak which had existed before the Germans occupied all of France.

The announcement, a formality of international law, did not affect Spanish territorial waters. The line drawn by the admiralty runs from Cape De Creus south to a point east of Minorca, then south to Cape Sigli on the Algerian coast.

U. S. Clinches Guadalcanal, Navy Secretary Knox Says

Jap Troop Loss Runs To 50,000

Naval Officer Tells of Personnel Lost by Japanese During Battles

New Guinea Campaign Finds Japs Trying to Thwart Disaster

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—An American drive to wipe out remaining Japanese bases in the Solomon Islands appeared near at hand today as terrific destruction of enemy troops and ships seemed to clinch the United States hold on Guadalcanal.

Announcing for the first time that the American grip on the prized island and its strategic airbase is "now very secure," Secretary of Navy Knox reported yesterday that half of a force of 1,500 Nipponese landed on Guadalcanal had been slaughtered and the rest routed.

Possibility of duplication in the Navy's reports of enemy ships lost in the great American sea victory of last week also was dispelled by Knox who declared 28 Japanese vessels had been sunk. These comprised a battleship, another battleship or heavy cruiser, six heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, six destroyers and 12 transports and cargo ships. Ten more were damaged.

The reported American losses of two light cruisers and six destroyers in the same battle brought the nation's total of destroyed vessels in the Pacific war to 50 combat and 34 non-combat ships since Pearl Harbor.

Official announcements of the Navy and Allied headquarters boosted the total Japanese losses to 126 combat and 246 non-combat ships.

Meanwhile, the first American naval officer to return to Pearl Harbor since the defeat of the Japanese armada estimated the foe's attempts to recapture Guadalcanal had cost the lives of perhaps 10,000 Nipponese on the Island alone. From 20,000 to 40,000 more were believed killed in the sinking of eight loaded enemy transports.

Declaring that the Marines, soldiers and sailors felt that they had "been through everything and have taken everything the Japs could offer," Lieut. DeWitt Peterkin, 29, added at Pearl Harbor last night:

"They're optimistic and already are talking about the next move westward."

Peterkin, banker assistant to the J. P. Morgan partners, was a ground officer for the carrier torpedo Squadron Eight which participated in the Midway battle that struck the Japanese carriers in June. Slaughter of a thousand Japanese in one sector of the island on one night, he said, was not unusual.

In New Guinea, westward of the Solomons, the Japanese fought savagely to forestall what seemed to be imminent disaster. The fiercest fighting of the campaign raged in the Buna-Gona areas where American and Australian troops had pinned the invaders back

By KENNETH L. DIXON

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—To keep Johnny Doughboy from being fed dry bread while fighting far away, the folks at home may soon have to spread their butter thin—or use some substitute.

Frozen in more ways than one, 40 per cent of the nation's cold-stored butter supply today was set aside for fighting men and the lease-lend program under terms of a War Production Board order.

And housewives started eyeing such table-fat substitutes as margerine and peanut butter, for the "temporary" wording of the order failed to ease the threat of eventual shortage. Agriculture Department officials asserted that present butter production was not meeting market needs and pointed out that the W. P. B. slice of nearly 35,000,000 pounds would be felt in the near future.

However, W. P. B. officials planned to supplant the freeze as quickly as possible with a limitation order which would cut consumption about 10 per cent—or two pounds per person a year.

They added that the shortage might not materially affect the retail market before January, and that rationing might not be necessary, although the board's food requirements committee — headed by Agriculture Secretary Wickard —reported that butter supplies have been reduced to the lowest levels since 1932.

Because of the shortage, attributed to seasonal production slumps and increasing civilian purchasing power, the army and navy have found it increasingly difficult to get sufficient supplies, W. P. B. said. At a time when improvement in the shipping situation made it opportune to ship more butter to the men overseas, many vessels with space for it were forced to sail with other cargo.

"This situation requires prompt and drastic action," the board said.

The order earmarked for government purchase half the butter in cold storage in the nation's 35 principal marketing centers, which hold about 80 per cent of the entire supply. It was retroactive to November 6, ruling that deliveries made since then could not be subtracted in setting aside the federal portion and even existing contracts could not be considered.

It did not affect retail stocks on hand. Unless superseded, it will remain in effect until March 6.

Certificate Is Filed

Charles Perry and Peter Perry of 170 Delaware avenue and Ernest Perry of 221 East Strand have filed a certificate in the office of the county clerk stating they are doing business at 598 Broadway, Kingston, under the name and style of Perry's Taxi.

Closes on November 22

It is announced that the Twaalfskill Club will close on November 22 for the winter. Members who wish to secure their clubs are asked to call for them on or before that date.

Louis Castiglione, 22, Is Killed Between Two Trucks at Stewart Field

Louis Castiglione, 22, of 114 Tremper avenue, this city, was instantly killed at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon when he was crushed between two trucks while at work on the Stewart Air Field, near Newburgh.

The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Castiglione. The father, who is also known as Costello, has operated barbershops in Kingston for a number of years.

The youth was recently classified as 1A and would, if accepted, have been the fourth brother in the armed service. He is survived by his parents and three brothers.

A report of the tragedy was to the effect that Castiglione was leaning against the back of a truck when another truck started to back and he was caught between the two trucks. He was injured so badly that he died instantly.

The Kingston police were notified and asked to get in touch with the young man's family. Captain James V. Simpson notified the father of his son's death.

He is survived by his parents and three brothers, Carlo, stationed at Pine Camp; Joseph at St. Angel, Texas, and Salvatore at Anderson Field, S. C. The funeral will be held from the Jenson & Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock at St. Mary's Church, where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Lehman May Become U. S. Post-War Food Executive

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The New York Times reported today that President Roosevelt was expected to name retiring Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York to a world-wide post as administrator of feeding, clothing and rehabilitating countries friendly to or occupied by the United Nations.

The Times dispatch from Washington said:

"Mr. Lehman's assignment is expected to be primarily one of making plans and determining policy for the huge task which confronts the United Nations in rebuilding the world after victory is won.

"He would be responsible, it was said, not only for feeding, clothing and sheltering the starving millions of Europe, Asia and Africa, but would also have charge of the efforts to get these countries back on their feet industrially and agriculturally at the end of the war."

Lehman could not be reached for comment immediately.

All Information Necessary Is Listed and Must Be Available When Users Register

Industrial and institutional users of coffee must register for coffee rationing in the city of Kingston on November 23, 24 and 25. This registration the first of the week applies only to such users as schools, restaurants, hospitals, boardinghouse keepers and other institutional or large users of coffee.

This registration does not apply to wholesale or retail dealers. Registration dates for dealers will be held at a later date, the date not yet having been designated by the O.P.A.

The Kingston War Price and Ration Board in announcing the dates of registration for large consumers, stated that all applicants should bring the following information along at the time of making application:

Amount of coffee used for the month of September, the amount of coffee used for the months of October and their coffee inventory as of midnight November 21, 1942. In supplying the amount of coffee used during two months requested, the amount used each month must be known. In addition the applicants must be able to furnish the names and addresses of all persons from whom they purchased roasted coffee during the base period, September and October, 1942, and the amounts purchased from each concern.

The prescribed form may be filled out at the time of registration by the agent registering for the institution or industrial user seeking the ration. Registration will take place at the local office of the War Price and Ration Board in the Millard Building on Central Broadway between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The industrial users who will register on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week will not have stamps to present for coffee but the institution will present the official purchase certificates obtained at the time of the above mentioned registration entitling them to a specific number of pounds of coffee. These can be surrendered to the supplier of their coffee beginning, Monday, November 23.

This registration next week does not apply to the householder or individual consumer of coffee but only to the large industrial or institutional users of coffee.

Mallon Changes Plea

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—James J. Mallon, 32, yesterday changed his plea from guilty to innocent to an indictment charging him with second degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Carol D. Tuttle, 35. Mallon changed his plea upon the advice of Queens County Judge Charles S. Colden, who advised the defendant of the seriousness of the charge and suggested he obtain a lawyer.

New York, Nov. 21 (AP) — The Federal Public Housing Authority has announced that contracts for seven war housing projects for 1085 families in New Jersey and Pennsylvania have been approved. They include: Mechanicsburg, Pa., 75 homes, to Raltgeb-Walsh, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y., for $327,520.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Cairo, Nov. 21—I find most gratifying the air of solid confidence in both British and American military headquarters on the Nile as the chase of the disorganized Axis forces continues westward across the Libyan desert into the crimson glow of Hitler's setting sun.

Now of course figures of speech are among the world's greatest liars and must be used with great reserve. So I hasten to add that it is with deliberation that I refer to the master gangster's sinking sun, for it most assuredly has passed its zenith, considering all aspects of the European war.

Still, while confidence among our captains of the war is 100 per cent, there is not the slightest disposition to underrate the magnitude of the task ahead of us. The Boche has plenty of fight left in him and his striking power is great despite his losses.

It is true that the only way we can lose now is through Allied errors in judgment, but a major mistake might prove disastrous.

As regards the Libyan wing of the great Allied North African show, we are in the midst of the battle. Unless the Germans unexpectedly step entirely out of character there still is heavy fighting in the offing.

In assaying the position we must recognize that Rommel's sensational flight, which is being carried out with exceptional speed, is impelled by tactical necessity rather than fear. He is a rash man who, even in hatred, claims the German soldier is afraid to stand and fight.

What Rommel is trying to do is to race his shattered and harassed forces westward until he can make a junction with Axis colleagues now bent on stemming the Allied drive against Tunis and Bizerte. Present indications are that Hitler has no intention of causing North Africa to be abandoned without another stand.

Air Power Importance Grows

Air power is becoming increasingly important as the battle to a climax with the Allies pressing the Axis from west and east.

Hitler's hopes must depend largely on the Lutwaffe and he is said to be rushing aerial reinforcement into the battle.

The Allies, already superior in the air, are gaining strength as they advance into enemy territory. Already the Allied drive through Libya has resulted in the capture of some 120 landing fields and this naturally facilitates operations of the combined British and American forces which unceasingly plaster Axis columns, bases and lines of communication.

At this crucial juncture, Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, famous air exponent, has arrived to take command of United States Army forces in the Middle East. He undoubtedly has stepped into the midst of a situation to his liking for he knows his air. It is my observation that he is swinging into action fast.

I had an interesting chat with the general a couple of nights ago and while one isn't privileged to quote him I came away with the impression that American experts are looking forward to the fascinating possibilities of bombing both

Axis Says Allies Are Repulsed, Armored Units Taken

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

American and British troops, scoring a five-mile advance in one direction, pitched into the Germans on the outer defenses of Bizerte and Tunis today while U. S. Flying Fortresses rained deadly punishment on the enemy hemmed in along a 30-mile-wide coastal strip.

A Nazi broadcast, quoting Allied sources in Spanish Morocco, said Allied forces had reached the area of Hammamet, about 40 miles southeast of Tunis, on the Gulf of Gabes.

This, if confirmed, would mean that the Allies had now pinned the Axis into a small corner of the northeast Tunisian coast and cut off the route of retreat to Italian Tripolitania. In that case, the two main Axis forces in Tunisia and Libya would be split.

The Algiers radio said French troops had beaten off a new German attempt to land on the coast below Tunis and captured some Nazis in a fight northwest of the port of Gabes.

German reports said Adolf Hitler was rushing a stream of airborne reinforcements, including tanks, across the Mediterranean in a desperate effort to stem the Allied offensive.

Field ditpatches said the battle was growing more bitter hour by hour, with Allied troops storming Nazi fortifications only 30 miles from both cities in the French North Africa colony.

One Allied vanguard was reported to have driven forward five miles to a point 25 miles southeast of Tunis, the capital, fighting over ancient battlefields of the Carthaginian empire.

Italian headquarters asserted the battle was developing "on the Tunisian-Algerian border"—about 50 miles west of the scene described by Allied dispatches—and declared that operations "have gone to the advantage of the Axis."

Axis Claims Are Made

A Fascist communique said British and American troops were turned back in the frontier region after losing armored cars and trucks.

The German radio claimed that Axis forces Thursday night seized a railway station east of Tabarka, 65 miles west of Bizerte, and reported that Fighting French De Gaullist troops had been thrown back to the Tunisian frontier in the south.

The Nazi broadcast said 12 Allied tanks and 18 armored cars were destroyed in the first clash in Tunisia.

On the Libyan front, Britain's victorious Eighth Army raised its flag over the "escape port" of Bengazi again and mobile British vanguards pressed hotly on Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating forces near Agedabia.

Agedabia lies 100 miles south of Bengasi and only 70 miles from the El Agheila defile, a narrow corridor between salt marshes and the sea, where Rommel is expected to make a last stand.

While the German radio exulted

Warning Is Given

British Say Mediterranean Is Dangerous to Ships; French Ports Closed

London, Nov. 21 (AP)—The admiralty announced in a statement today that the Mediterranean, except for Turkish territorial waters, was dangerous to shipping east of a line running roughly north and south between the French-Spanish border and the coast of North Africa.

This, in effect, closed the ports of the French Mediterranean coast to Axis shipping, stopping a leak which had existed before the Germans occupied all of France.

The announcement, a formality of international law, did not affect Spanish territorial waters. The line drawn by the admiralty runs from Cape De Creus south to a point east of Minorca, then south to Cape Sigli on the Algerian coast.

$31,020 for Purchases of Rights of Way for Highways

A total of $31,020.00 was paid out during the past year for the purchase of rights of way for highway purposes, according to the report of the Committee on Purchase of Rights of Way made to the Board of Supervisors Friday evening, and there remains sufficient balance in the fund to carry on the duties of that committee for the coming year. Therefore it will be unnecessary to raise by levy and additional amount in 1943 for the purchase of rights of way for highway purposes.

The committee reported that it had acquired title to, in the name of the County of Ulster, numerous parcels of land during the past year for highway purposes. This includes both county and state roads. The largest sum paid out was for property acquired for the construction of State Highway No. 14 in the town of Marlborough where $14,250 was paid out for lands taken. Deeds for the parcels have been filed from time to time in the office of the county clerk. The report of the committee, including the recommendation that the Rights of Way Fund continued sufficient moneys to carry on during next year, was received and filed.

The Committee on Equalization also made its report and the equalization rates remain the same this year as last year under the report of the committee which was received and filed. There was no discussion on the receipt of the communication of the committee. Rates as recommended by the committee are:

Denning 44 per cent; Esopus 38 per cent; Gardiner 52 per cent; Hardenburgh 57 per cent; Hurley 62 per cent; Kingston Town 52 per cent; Lloyd 55 per cent; Marbletown 61 per cent; Marlborough 33 per cent; New Paltz 42 per cent; Olive 75 per cent; Plattekill 31 per cent; Rochester 46 per cent; Rosendale 39 per cent; Saugerties 52 per cent; Shandaken 60 per cent; Shawangunk 75 per cent; Ulster 37 per cent; Wawarsing 47 percent; Woodstock 73 per cent, and Kingston City 73 per cent.

Committee Reports

The Committee on TB Hospital, Laboratory and Public Health reported claims amounting to $433.71 and recommended that that sum be levied and assessed on the county. Over under the rule.

The Committee on County Treasurer and Sealer reported claims in the sum of $410.69 and recommended that sum be allowed. A resolution was offered that that sum be levied and assessed against the county. Over.

The Committee on Printing in a first report, reported claims in the sum of $651.95 and recommended that that sum be allowed. A resolution that that sum be levied and assessed went over under the rule.

Committee on Town and County Accounts reported unpaid sewer assessments in the sum of $3,440.59 and recommended that this sum together with 2 per cent added be levied against the properties in the district upon which assessments were unpaid. Received and filed.

County Treasurer Chester A. Lyons reported that the amount required to pay the retirement system charge up to June 30, 1942 was $10,161.04 on the county at large and $2,165.17 on Welfare officers and that it would be necessary to raise the first sum on the county at large and the second sum on the county exclusive of the City of Kingston. Received and filed and referred to committee on Appropriations.

The Committee on Apportionment of Mortgage Tax Moneys made at a prior meeting was adopted and warrants will be drawn apportioning the money to the towns and city and villages in accordance with law. Adopted.

Resolutions Offered

A resolution was offered that there be raised as suggested by the Committee on County Clerk and Surrogate the sum of $129.50 to pay bills and claims. Over.

A resolution was also offered that there be levied and assessed on the several towns in the county funds to pay claims for fighting forest fires as reported at a prior session. Over under the rule.

A similar resolution was offered relative to lunacy charges. Over.

A resolution was offered that there be raised on the First Supervisory District the sum of $300, Second Supervisory District $400, Third Supervisory District $400, and the Fourth Supervisory District $300 to pay the increased salary of the district superintendent of schools as required by law. The money to be paid by the county treasurer quarterly to the district superintendents of the respective districts. Over under the rule.

Clerk Simpson called for a meeting of the committee on Printing Proceedings. The bid will be opened November 30. He also instructed all supervisors to have in grand jury lists by Monday night when Town Budgets will also come before the board for action. This is the first year the new budget system has been in effect and all 20 towns will submit their budgets under the new regulation which goes into effect on January 1, 1943.

The board adjourned until 7:30 o'clock Monday evening.

participating planes returned from four of these raids.

British observers said the past month of heavy raids already has shaken civilian morale badly in northern Italy as well as smashing many war industries and dock facilities and disrupting communications.

The London daily sketch has reported that General Riedel, antiaircraft defense chief for Germany, is being sent to Italy at the request of Premier Mussolini to reorganize Italian defenses against British raids.

The writer of this newspaper's "Inside Information" column commenting on the effect of the raids added:

"The whole country is apprehensive about the future.

"Three names are already being quoted as Mussolini's successor — (Count Dino) Grandi, (Count Galeazzo) Ciano and (Roberto) Farinacci.

U. S. Clinches Hold Upon Guadalcanal

The Japanese increased their aerial activity, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Allied headquarters reported today (Australian time) and lashed back at the advancing Allies with light artillery, mortars and machine guns.

In the absence of more important nearby targets, Army bombers from the Guadalcanal airport attacked cargo vessels in the Buin area at the southeastern end of Bougainville Island, November 18, the Navy announced, and shot down 14 enemy planes during the attack. No American losses were reported.

Describing the slaying or routing of 1,500 Japanese on the island as "very significant," Knox told a press conference that the Americans now outnumber the enemy on Guadalcanal.

He declared that the Japanese "can bring in more reinforcements and fight their way but so far they have been unable to do it."

Knox disclosed that two American battleships had participated in last Saturday night's battle in which three large Japanese cruisers, a destroyer and either a battleship or heavy cruiser were sunk.

"All told," he added, "the Japanese fleet has been pretty badly punished."

Republicans Look For Leader Who Has Big Qualities

Dozen or More Possible Candidates for Martin's Job Are Under Consideration

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Republican leaders, sifting party ranks for a new national committee chairman, were on the lookout today for something akin to a political paragon who could:

Keep the various party factions "pacified,"

Devote his time to building up the party organization, and

Refrain from boosting the cause of any individual for the 1944 presidential nomination.

Despite these admittedly stiff qualifications, Republican chieftains were sorting out a dozen or more possibilities as candidates for the job of Joseph W. Martin, Jr., who is resigning to give all his time to his duties as House minority leader.

The committee will meet December 1 in St. Louis to select Martin's successor.

Although there has been considerable maneuvering behind the scenes by friends and foes of Wendell Willkie, the 1940 presidential nominee, party leaders like Senate minority leader McNary of Oregon, were reported favoring a compromise selection who would be acceptable not only to Willkie but to all prominent party members.

This view was echoed by Ralph H. Cake, Oregon national committeeman, who has been mentioned for the chairmanship himself.

"They must avoid a scrap and I think they will," Cake said after a talk with McNary. "I'm interested in seeing that they don't get into any."

Cake said the new chairman, who will serve until the next national convention in 1944, must be "identified with no faction and must be acceptable to all."

McNary has been reported favoring John C. Townsend, Jr., former senator from Delaware, as a compromise choice. Friends of Townsend, who managed the recent successful campaign resulting in a gain of nine Republican seats in the Senate, declared he would accept the chairmanship if tendered.

Willkie's friends here said he favors J. Kenneth Bradley, national committeeman for Connecticut, or Sinclair Weeks, Massachusetts committeeman, for the chairmanship, or some westerner if either of these is not available. They said he is opposed to Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois committeeman, on the contention that he was "too isolationist" before the war.

Associates of Thomas E. Dewey, New York governor-elect and a runner-up to Willkie in the 1940 convention, reported they had no particular choice for chairman. The same is said in behalf of Senator Robert H. Taft, of Ohio, another prominent candidate for the presidential nomination two years ago.

The name of John D. M. Hamilton, party chairman from 1936-1940 and now a practicing attorney in Philadelphia, also has been mentioned as a compromise. Others who have been discussed include:

Alf M. Landon, 1936 presidential standard bearer and former governor of Kansas; national committeemen Harrison E. Spangler, Iowa, Walter H. Hallahan, West Virginia, Robert P. Burroughs, New Hampshire and Barak T. Mattingly, Missouri, and state chairmen Ralph F. Gates, Indiana and Alexander Smith, New Jersey.

Italy and German territory from North African airports as soon as the present drive is over.

The general, of course, has long been a believer in the efficacy of heavy bombardment of enemy war industries and transport systems.

This thought fits in snugly with Sir Stafford Cripps' statement in commons: "Our bombing effort against the Axis is one of the essential efforts of victory. No effort will be spared to deliver large continuous loads of bombs both against Germany and Italy. Once we are established in North Africa, the Italians will come to realize what their German Allies have suffered in the last few months."

Sir Stafford's statement gives hope that Britain and America contemplate strengthening their bomber forces in Britain so as to intensify operations against western Europe and Germany.

I talked with many great military men in recent weeks on this subject and the almost unanimous view was that if we are to force Hitler to his knees next year—and that is held to be possible—the first requirement is that the Allies bring about important in western Europe and Germany by heavy bombing of his industrial centers and communications.

Only when this has been done will it be possible to stage a land invasion of France, without which the war may be protracted indefinitely.

American headquarters here is a hive of activity. Gen. Andrews has made a favorable impression in taking over his great new position. People instinctively like him and the rugged personality of this distinguished-appearing soldier inspires immediate confidence which increases with association.

'Mosquito Bombers' Hit Germany Hard

Britain's Secret Weapon Proves Big Success.

LONDON.—Britain's new secret mosquito bombers, with speeds approaching those of fighter planes, fill one of the worst gaps in the list of weapons needed to attack Germany night and day, air experts here declare.

Designers long have sought a plane capable of penetrating deep into enemy territory by daylight and then fighting its way out after dropping bombs. Up to now none of the bigger German or British planes have been able to do it.

Even the Boeing Flying Fortresses have not proved capable of such action. On 10 raids and one encounter over the North sea thus far, the fortresses have been accompanied by fighter planes. They have not made any unescorted flights far over Europe.

Although the fortress squadrons put up a terrific concentration of fire on those attacks, their lack of speed and maneuverability, air experts said, made them extremely vulnerable if they make long unescorted flights.

Plane designers always have envisaged a light bomber with speeds approaching those of fighters even when loaded with bombs and equal to the fighters once the bombs were dropped. Such a plane would be extremely maneuverable and heavily armed. It would carry a small load of bombs, leaving the heavy work to the four-motored bombers.

The Mosquitoes, four of which had their first action over Oslo recently in which only one was lost, are still on the "secret list." Nevertheless, it can be said they satisfy those requirements better than any plane yet developed.

Guests in London Hotels May Have to Make Beds

LONDON.—Guests even in London's largest hotels may soon be required to make their own beds, keep their rooms clean and shine their own shoes.

"The labor shortage has become so acute," said an official of the Hotels and Restaurants association, "that some West End hotels are reducing to skeleton staffs barely able to cope with the most essential daily work.

"Outside London the position generally is even worse.

"The labor crisis has coincided with the period of greatest pressure on hotel accommodation since war began. The ministry of works and planning is now agreed that where cost is reasonable bomb-damaged rooms may be repaired and put into commission again."

Hoeme Desires a Home, But Money Can't Buy It

HUTCHINSON, KAN. — F. W. Hoeme wanted a home—but complications set in. First the war blocked his plans to build on his farm.

Then he gave up trying to move a house he'd bought in town, because he'd have had to chop down a whole streetful of trees.

Then he bought another house—but neighbors said "Oh, no, you don't move that out to the country and leave an unsightly hole in our nice neighborhood!"

The city commission, squirming under their protests, still hasn't okayed the move.

Morals of U. S. Soldiers In Britain 'Very High'

LONDON.—The morals of United States soldiers in this theater of operations is "very high" and their church attendance is much higher than when they were in the United States, the 12 senior chaplains in the United States army said after a two-day conference at army headquarters.

The chaplains said the soldiers were taking extensive advantage of their service as counselors on "everything from a stubbed toe to facing the future . . ." These problems, they said, include sickness, finance, home and girls here and in the United States.

Man Is Drafted Again On Same Day and Month

TROY, N. Y.—A veteran of the first World war, Charles D. Guerin, walked into the office of his draft board waving a piece of paper:

"Look what I brought along with me, my induction notice for the first World war."

Sure enough, the paper showed that Guerin was called up for induction in the first World war on September 9—the same day and month the board called him for induction in the second war.

Plane Flies So Fast Cannot Follow Map

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO. — Note to the Axis: Don't underestimate the speed of the U. S. air corps' new P-47 Thunderbolt.

It traveled so fast recently that a pilot landed it at New Castle, Pa., thinking that he was coming in at New Castle, Ind.

Declared the pilot: "It flew so fast I could not follow maps to keep track of my position."

To Attend Officers' School

Corporal George Fowler, who enlisted in the U. S. Army in March, 1941, and was stationed in Hawaii when it was bombed by the Japanese, is now en route to Miami Beach, Fla., to attend an Army air officers' training school. He is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall G. Miller of 62 Wrentham street.

Governor Extends Probe of Union

Will Permit Investigation of Any Acts Since the Original Inquiry

Investigation into the financial affairs of Local 17, Hodcarriers and Common Laborers' Union, will be widened to a considerable extent by an order of Governor Lehman which was signed yesterday, according to Assistant Attorney General Edward G. O'Neill of Newburgh, who is in charge of the investigation. The order of the governor permits the investigation of any unlawful acts which it is alleged may have been committed at any time after the original order of investigation was signed instituting the original proceedings.

This new order will permit the investigation of any acts on the part of union officials since the original inquiry order was granted last February.

Mr. O'Neill has been holding sessions in Ulster county before the May grand jury from time to time, relative to the union's activities in this county. The May grand jury is still in session subject to call by Mr. O'Neill and it is expected that further sessions will be held this month here. After the regular work of the May grand jury was concluded District Attorney N. LeVan Haver held the body together for "special sessions" to be called under the direction of Mr. O'Neill for the investigation of the union activities. Trial of Samuel Nuzzo of Newburgh, indicted for misappropriation of union funds, will begin on December 1 in Orange county.

Farewell Dinner and Party for J. A. Rapp

A farewell dinner and party was given James A. Rapp of Hurley avenue on Thursday evening at Schoentag's Hotel by members of the local Prudential Insurance Company staff. There were over 30 who met to bid farewell to Mr. Rapp who leaves Tuesday for service in the United States army. Mr. Rapp is the first Prudential man working out of the local office to be inducted.

After a turkey dinner and all the fixings had been disposed of there were short addresses by Superintendent William Rose, John Edwards, assistant superintendent, Robert Cullum, Paul Otto, assistant Ben Silverman and a number of the other members of the staff.

Mr. Rapp was presented with a leather money belt and a substantial purse of money.

Ration Books Should Be Guarded Carefully

Frequent reports to the sheriff's office by persons who have lost ration books or have had them stolen, indicate that it might pay holders of ration books to guard them a bit more carefully.

Friday three persons reported loss of books. A Saugerties, R. D., man reported that his "A" gas ration book had been missing for two weeks. It was stated that this book might possibly have been burned up. A woman living near Kingston reported three sugar ration books stolen and the same day an Olive Bridge man reported that his "A" and "C" gas books had been stolen.

Thursday another man reported that his "S" gas ration book had been stolen.

Numerous cases where gas books have been stolen it develops that the books had been left in the glove compartment of the car.

Deeds Recently Filed in the Office of the County Clerk

The following deeds have been filed in the office of the county clerk.

Nellie J. Banks of Kingston to Arthur H. and Anna Van DeMark of Kingston, land in Kingston.

Julius and Marie Syittgen of Brooklyn to Frank Strigola of Bronx, land in the town of Plattekill.

Minnie R. Walter of Kingston to Frank L. and Mae Farrell of Kingston, land in Kingston.

Register Tires on Cars in Storage

If you own an automobile but have put it up in storage for the duration or until gasoline becomes easier to procure, you must still register the tires on the car, according to the opinion of the Kingston War Price and Ration Board. If you have a car with good tires on it or do not intend to use it until after the war, John M. Cashin, chairman of the Kingston ration board, said it would be doing a patriotic duty to remove the tires and sell them to the government for use by someone who needs them.

Many people have inquired what procedure they should take about tires on a vehicle which is in storage and not being used. Mr. Cashin said that such tires should be registered. The owner of a car not now being run and for which no gasoline ration book has been issued, should take the serial number of all five tires and register them at an official registration station on the usual inspection blank. In the space where the ration book number is to be inserted, Mr. Cashin said, a notation should be made that no ration book has been issued and the car is not in use.

"Any person not using his car now, and owning good rubber should turn in the tires so they may be placed in service by someone who needs them." Mr. Cashin told a Freeman reporter.

1,500,000 New Farm Workers Seen Needed

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Need for 1,500,000 new farm workers next year to meet food production requirements was foreseen by the bureau of agricultural economics today if present military induction and industrial employment trends continue.

Agriculture, the bureau said, will lose a million workers from its force during the 12-month period ending next July 1. Indications are, it added, that an additional 300,000 will be lost by the end of the 1943 harvest season.

"At the same time," the bureau said, "needed agricultural production will require about 200,000 more workers than were available in 1942. To meet these needs in full, next year we would have to recruit 1,500,000 new workers."

The bureau's figures were made public shortly after Secretary of Agriculture Wickard told farmers in a radio talk that recent increases in wartime food demands caused him to feel "more and more concerned" over the nation's ability to meet those demands.

The bureau said that "perhaps some public action can be taken to relieve some of the need for new workers."

Concede Graveyard For Poll Tax Bill

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Senate prepared to go through the motions today of debating abolishment of state poll taxes as a prerequisite for voting in federal elections, although even its supporters conceded the measure was headed for the legislative graveyard.

Balked by a seven-day filibuster carried on by senators from southern poll tax states, proponents finally agreed to bringing the bill formally before the Senate under the terms of an involved "gentleman's agreement" calling for a vote at 1 o'clock (E. W. T.) Monday afternoon on a motion to limit debate.

Adoption of such a motion would require two-thirds approval of those present and even administration strategists who have fought to obtain action on the measure acknowledged that upwards of 40 of the 96 senators would oppose limiting debate.

Meeting for Fourth Ward Service Flag

Residents of the Fourth Ward are proud of the fact that they have around 275 or more men from that ward in the U. S. Service, the largest number of any ward in the city, they claim.

In recognition of this fact a move is under way to secure a service flag to represent the Fourth Ward's participation in the war effort.

To this end, Zone Warden John McGrane has asked all sector and post wardens and their assistants to attend a meeting to be held Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock at the air raid headquarters, 293 Hasbrouck avenue, when plans will be formulated to procure a service flag.

At Fire Chief's Funeral

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and a delegation of 20 members of the Kingston fire department were in Poughkeepsie this morning attending the funeral of Fire Chief Chris Noll in that city. There will be another delegation of Kingston firemen headed by the fire chief, Deputy Fire Chief Fred M. Leverich and Mayor William F. Edelmuth went to Poughkeepsie to pay respect to Chief Noll.

Merchant Vessel Hit

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—The navy announced today that a medium-sized United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine during the latter part of October in the Atlantic off the northeast coast of South America. Survivors have been landed at a United States east coast port.

Although the entire stage program for Wednesday's annual Ahavath Israel Ball has not as yet been completed, the local program committee takes great pride in bringing to patrons of this ball one of the finest entertainers in radio and stage fields. The special guest star they're looking forward to is Miss Pauline Alpert, who is better known as the "whirl-wind pianist of Station WOR." Miss Alpert is a regular feature on the Mutual network lines. Besides appearing in functions such as these, she also has engaged in work with symphony orchestras and has made several concert tours throughout the country. Miss Alpert is by no means a stranger to local radio fans.

W. C. T. U. Receives Awards for Work

At the meeting November 19 of the Kingston Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in the St. James Methodist Church, the president, Mrs. George W. Shultis, announced that three awards had been given the local Union by the state organization. These were: A book, "Sixty Years in Action," awarded for an exhibit picture sent by the local Union to the state director of exhibits; a purple badge, for having obtained 19 new members during the past year, and a check for $5 for 81 per cent efficiency standard. Christmas cheer was one of the important items of business. Gifts will be made to the Ellis Island work, as well as to local Christmas cheer work.

The local organization will use the study book "The Amazing Story of Repeal" for its 1943 programs. Mrs. Shultis then outlined the new membership campaign plans for 1943, and urged all members to work to attain these goals.

Mrs. Roscoe Strivings was enrolled as a new member of the union, and when called upon for interesting news she reported from the "Beer and Brewing in America" journal, an authority for declaring, "in an average year more than a million men are engaged in the manufacture and distribution of beer alone; that in an average year the brewing industry uses a million and a half tons of barley, rice, corn and corn products, and sugar and syrups—the products of three million acres of land and of thousands of hands sorely needed for farm work." With transportation overworked already, nearly twelve thousand cars are needed to carry the lumber and steel needed for making barrels. She also reported that, according to "Watchword", while the national income increased in the last three year by 77 per cent, gifts to churches and church benevolences had decreased 47 per cent. "The citizens of our country are poorer in church than anywhere else," she said.

Following Mrs. Strivings' report announcement was made that through the courtesy of WKNY station, Mrs. Shultis will broadcast the last Wednesday of each month at 4:45 p. m. and that Thanksgiving morning she will conduct the morning devotion service on the local station.

Surprise Birthday Dinner

A surprise birthday dinner was given in honor of Mrs. Lawrence E. Joyce of West Hurley at the home of Mrs. Marie Gunther, Plank Road, Thursday evening, November 19. Speech making, group singing, dancing and cards were enjoyed following the dinner. Those present in addition to the guest of honor were: Lawrence Joyce, Miss Janice Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Joyce and daughter, Patricia, Mr. and Mrs. John Saxe, Mrs. G. A. Nussbaum, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Joyce and Miss Dorothy Joyce.

50th Anniversary Party

The Ladies' Aid Society of Union Center Chapel gave a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Soper, Wednesday evening, in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Soper was presented with a treasure chest of silver coins and cut a large cake at the supper.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Soper, Mrs. Minnie Soper, Mrs. Fred Eckert, Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. Gladys Trowbridge, Mrs. Harry Coutant, Mrs. Alfred Schoonmaker, Mrs. Bessie Volker, Mrs. Pearl Rau, Mrs. Emanuel Saxe.

Honored at Party

A farewell party was given Thursday evening at the Esopus Inn for William J. Trice, son of William Trice of Esopus. Mr. Trice left this morning with the contingent from New Paltz for Camp Upton. He was employed for the past year at Mott's farm in Esopus.

There were approximately 50 guests present. The inductee was given a sum of money from his friends and a large cake with patriotic decorations. Floyd Barringer supplied music for dancing.

A brother, Thomas E. Trice, who left two weeks ago for the Army service, was also honored at a party recently. He is now stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Daily Menus

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Substantial Fare

Luncheon or Supper Menu for Whole Family (Serving 4 or 5)

Split Pea Soup Toast or Crackers
Nutrition Salad
Cooked Pear Sauce
Chocolate Chip Drops
Milk Coffee

Split Pea Soup

2 cups green split peas
1 ham bone
½ cup chopped onions
1/3 cup diced celery
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 crushed bay leaf
6 cups water

Mix ingredients and cook covered over low heat for 2 hours—or until peas are very soft. If the soup thickens too much add 2 more cups boiling water after an hour of cooking. The soup will cook in less time if the peas are soaked over night.

Nutrition Salad

2 cups shredded cabbage
½ cup grated raw carrots
2/3 cups cubed apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup salad dressing
Mix and chill ingredients.

(Calls for Semi-Sweet Chocolate)

1/3 cup shortening
1/3 cup honey
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup cream
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon baking powder
2/3 cup semi-sweet chocolate
1/3 cup broken nuts

Cream fat and honey and sugar. Add rest of ingredients. Chill dough and drop portions from tip of spoon onto greased baking sheet. Flatten each cooky with fork dipped in flour. Bake 10 minutes in moderate oven (350).

Equal portions of canned cream of tomato and cream of mushroom soups, heated together make a savory sauce to serve covering meat loaf, broiled meat cakes or breaded chops. The meat can be cooked right in the sauce mixture or the sauce used as a last minute covering.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

It is best not to ask a man for an explanation.

Although the writer of the following letter would have been wiser to send it to my friend Dorothy Dix, I am of course glad to print it and tell her what I myself would do about it. This is the letter: "A girl friend whom I know and dearly love has been given the 'brush off' by a young man with whom she has been the best of friends for several years. They saw each other at least once or twice a week. A month ago he stopped coming, never telephoned, and even went out of his way to avoid meeting the girl. The only thing any of us can imagine is that he has had a change of heart. But he's not seen him anywhere with any other girl or heard of his paying any one attentions. My young friend has done nothing but grieve and wonder what she can do. Will you tell me what sort of letter she should write him?"

My own suggestion is that she avoid writing anything at all. The impulse of most women is to cover any pride with "whys?" and "Please tell me's"; and if there is one thing a man hates more than another it is to be asked to explain his conduct. If it were possible to be privileged to get a friend—preferably a man—to ask him "What has happened to you and Mary? I used to see you two everywhere!" But even this is going out on very thin ice.

Drinking a Toast to the President

Dear Mrs. Post: At a banquet in celebration of this company's receipt of the Army-Navy "E" Production Award, a toast is to be drunk to our Commander-in-Chief, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Should someone acknowledge the toast and if so, who? There will be an Admiral of the U. S. Navy and various Colonels and Lt. Colonels of the Army present. I mention these in case an officer of some branch of our armed forces should reply. Our local Public Library tried to find this information for us, but having failed they referred us to you.

Answer: No one could reply to the toast in the name of the President. The Chairman (toastmaster) of the dinner should rise, hold up his glass and ask everyone to "rise for a toast." Then when all are standing he lifts his glass higher and says "To the President of the United States." Having drunk it (or sipped it) everyone then sits down. After this other toasts are perhaps proposed, or speakers introduced.

When Mary Becomes Aunt Mary

Dear Mrs. Post: My young uncle was just married. I met his wife only twice and when he introduced her he called her Mary. Now that she is my aunt, do I call her Mary or Aunt Mary? If age makes any difference—I am fourteen.

Answer: You should call her Aunt Mary. It would be very cheeky to call her by her first name unless she first tells you to do so.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "ANNOUNCING THE ENGAGEMENT." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

$31,020 for Purchases of Rights of Way for Highways

A total of $31,020.00 was paid out during the past year for the purchase of rights of way for highway purposes, according to the report of the Committee on Purchase of Rights of Way made to the Board of Supervisors Friday evening, and there remains sufficient balance in the fund to carry on the duties of that committee for the coming year. Therefore it will be unnecessary to raise by levy and additional amount in 1943 for the purchase of rights of way for highway purposes.

The committee reported that it had acquired title to, in the name of the County of Ulster, numerous parcels of land during the past year for highway purposes. This includes both county and state roads. The largest sum paid out was for property acquired for the construction of State Highway No. 14 in the town of Marlborough where $14,250 was paid out for lands taken. Deeds for the parcels have been filed from time to time in the office of the county clerk. The report of the committee, including the recommendation that the Rights of Way Fund contained sufficient moneys to carry on during next year, was received and filed.

The Committee on Equalization also made its report and the equalization rates remain the same this year as last year under the report of the committee which was received and filed. There was no discussion on the receipt of the communication from the committee. Rates as recommended by the committee are:

Denning 44 per cent; Esopus 38 per cent; Gardiner 52 per cent; Hardenbergh 57 per cent; Hurley 62 per cent; Kingston Town 52 per cent; Lloyd 55 per cent; Marbletown 61 per cent; Marlborough 33 per cent; New Paltz 42 per cent; Olive 75 per cent; Plattekill 31 per cent; Rochester 46 per cent; Rosendale 39 per cent; Saugerties 53 per cent; Shandaken 60 per cent; Shawangunk 75 per cent; Ulster 37 per cent; Wawarsing 47 percent; Woodstock 73 per cent, and Kingston City 73 per cent.

Committee Reports

The Committee on TB Hospital, Laboratory and Public Health reported claims amounting to $433.71 and recommended that sum be allowed. It was moved that this sum be levied and assessed on the county. Over under the rule.

The Committee on County Treasurer and Sealer reported claims in the sum of $410.69 and recommended that sum be allowed. A resolution was offered that that sum be levied and assessed against the county. Over.

The Committee on Printing in a first report, reported claims in the sum of $651.95 and recommended that that sum be allowed. A resolution that that sum be levied and assessed went over under the rule.

Committee on Town and County Accounts reported unpaid sewer assessments in the town of Lloyd in the sum of $3,440.59 and recommended that this sum together with 2 per cent added be levied against the properties in the district upon which assessments were unpaid. Received and filed.

County Treasurer Chester A. Lyons reported that the amount required to pay the retirement system charge up to June 30, 1942 was $10,161.04 on the county at large and $2,165.17 on Welfare officers and that it would be necessary to raise the first sum on the county at large and the second sum on the county exclusive of the City of Kingston. Received and filed and referred to committee on Appropriations.

The Committee on Apportionment of Mortgage Tax Moneys made at a prior meeting was adopted and warrants will be drawn apportioning the money to the towns and city and villages in accordance with law. Adopted.

Resolutions Offered

A resolution was offered that there be raised as suggested by the Committee on County Clerk and Surrogate the sum of $129.50 to pay bills and claims. Over.

A resolution was also offered that there be levied and assessed on the several towns in the county funds to pay claims for fighting forest fires as reported at a prior session. Over under the rule.

A similar resolution was offered relative to lunacy charges. Over.

A resolution was offered that there be raised on the First Supervisory District the sum of $300 Second Supervisory District $400, Third Supervisory District $400, and the Fourth Supervisory District $300 to pay the increased salary of the district superintendent of schools as required by law. The money to be paid by the county treasurer quarterly to the district superintendents of the respective districts. Over under the rule.

Clerk Simpson called for a meeting of the committee on Printing Proceedings. The bid will be opened November 30. He also instructed all supervisors to have in grand jury lists by Monday night when Town Budgets will also come before the board for action. This is the first year the new budget system has been in effect and all 20 towns will submit their budgets under the new regulation which goes into effect on January 1, 1943.

The board adjourned until 7:30 o'clock Monday evening.

participating planes returned from four of these raids.

British observers say that this scant month of heavy raids already has shaken civilian morale badly in northern Italy as well as smashing many war industries and dock facilities and disrupting communications.

The London daily sketch has reported that General Riedel, anti-aircraft defense chief for Germany, is being sent to Italy at the request of Premier Mussolini to reorganize Italian defenses against British raids.

The writer of this newspaper's "Inside Information" column commenting on the effect of the raids added:

"The whole country is apprehensive about the future.

"Three names are already being quoted as Mussolini's successor — (Count Dino) Grandi, (Count Galeazzo) Ciano and (Roberto) Farinacci.

"Italian liberals at a secret meeting decided to give all help to anyone leading a revolt against Fascism."

Last night's raid followed up day fighter sweeps over France and the low countries in which R. A. F. and Canadian fliers attacked locomotives, canal barges and other ground targets.

When Chile raised railway rates, many shippers used highway trucks, but may be forced by the gasoline shortage to return to the railways.

U. S. Clinches Hold Upon Guadalcanal

against the northeastern coast.

The Japanese increased their aerial activity, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Allied headquarters reported today (Australian time) and lashed back at the advancing Allies with light artillery, mortars and machine guns.

In the absence of more important nearby targets, Army bombers from the Guadalcanal airport attacked cargo vessels in the Buin area at the southeastern end of Bougainville Island, November 18, the Navy announced, and shot down 14 enemy planes during the attack. No American losses were reported.

Describing the slaying or routing of 1,500 Japanese on the island as "very significant," Knox told a press conference that the Americans now outnumber the enemy on Guadalcanal.

He declared that the Japanese "can bring in more reinforcements and fight their way but so far they have been unable to do it."

Knox disclosed that two American battleships had participated in last Saturday night's battle in which three large Japanese cruisers, a destroyer and either a battleship or heavy cruiser were sunk.

"All told," he added, "the Japanese fleet has been pretty badly punished."

To relieve the strain on transportation, England has requested householders near peat deposits in remote areas to burn peat instead of coal.

Republicans Look For Leader Who Has Big Qualities

Dozen or More Possible Candidates for Martin's Job Are Under Consideration

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Republican leaders, sifting party ranks for a new national committee chairman, were on the lookout today for something akin to a political paragon who could:

Keep the various party factions "pacified,"

Refrain from boosting the cause of any individual for the 1944 presidential nomination.

Despite these admittedly stiff qualifications, Republican chieftains were sorting out a dozen or more possibilities as candidates for the job of Joseph W. Martin, Jr., who is resigning to give all his time to his duties as House minority leader.

The committee will meet December 1 in St. Louis to select Martin's successor.

Although there has been considerable maneuvering behind the scenes by friends and foes of Wendell Willkie, the 1940 presidential nominee, party leaders like Senate minority leader McNary of Oregon, were reported favoring a compromise selection who would be acceptable not only to Willkie but to all prominent party members.

This view was echoed by Ralph H. Cake, Oregon national committeeman, who has been mentioned for the chairmanship himself.

"They must avoid a scrap and I think they will," Cake said after a talk with McNary. "I'm interested in seeing that they don't get into any."

Cake said the new chairman, who will serve until the next national convention in 1944, must be "identified with no faction and must be acceptable to all."

McNary has been reported favoring John C. Townsend, Jr., former senator from Delaware, as a compromise choice. Friends of Townsend, who managed the recent successful campaign resulting in a gain of nine Republican seats in the Senate, declared he would accept the chairmanship if tendered.

Willkie's friends here said he favors J. Kenneth Bradley, national committeeman for Connecticut, or Sinclair Weeks, Massachusetts committeeman, for the chairmanship, or some westerner if either of these is not available. They said he is opposed to Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois committeeman, on the contention that he was "too isolationist" before the war.

Associates of Thomas E. Dewey, New York governor-elect and a runner-up to Willkie in the 1940 convention, reported that he has no particular choice for chairman. The same is said in behalf of Senator Robert H. Taft, of Ohio, another prominent candidate for the presidential nomination two years ago.

The name of John D. M. Hamilton, party chairman from 1936-1940 and now a practicing attorney in Philadelphia, also has been mentioned as a compromise. Others who have been discussed include:

Alf M. Landon, 1936 presidential standard bearer and former governor of Kansas; national committeemen Harrison E. Spangler, Iowa, Walter H. Hallahan, West Virginia, Robert P. Burroughs, New Hampshire and Barak T. Mattingly, Missouri, and state chairmen Ralph F. Gates, Indiana and Alexander Smith, New Jersey.

Italy and German territory from North African airports as soon as the present drive is over.

The general, of course, has long been a believer in the efficacy of heavy bombardment of enemy war industries and transport systems.

This thought fits in snugly with Sir Stafford Cripps' statement in commons: "Our bombing effort against the Axis is one of the essentials of victory. No effort will be spared to deliver large continuous loads of bombs both against Germany and Italy. Once we are established in North Africa, the Italians will come to realize what their German Allies have suffered in the last few months."

Sir Stafford's statement gives hope that Britain and America contemplate strengthening their bomber forces in Britain so as to intensify operations against western Europe and Germany.

I talked with many great military men in recent weeks on this subject and the almost unanimous view was that if we are to force Hitler to his knees next year—and that is held to be possible—the first requirement is that he be rendered impotent in western Europe and Germany by heavy bombing of his industrial centers and communications.

Only when this has been done will it be possible to stage a land invasion of France, without which the war may be protracted indefinitely.

American headquarters here is a hive of activity. Gen. Andrews has made a favorable impression in taking over his great new positions. People instinctively like him and the rugged personality of this distinguished-appearing soldier inspires immediate confidence which increases with association.

Irishmen no longer raise many pigs, and Eire faces a shortage of pork.

'Mosquito Bombers' Hit Germany Hard

Britain's Secret Weapon Proves Big Success.

LONDON.—Britain's new secret mosquito bombers, with speeds approaching those of fighter planes, fill one of the worst gaps in the list of weapons needed to attack Germany night and day, air experts here declare.

Designers long have sought a plane capable of penetrating deep into enemy territory by daylight and then fighting its way out after dropping bombs. Up to now none of the bigger German or British planes have been able to do that.

Even the Boeing Flying Fortresses have not proved capable of such action. On 10 raids and one encounter over the North sea thus far, the fortresses have been accompanied by fighter planes. They have not made any unescorted flights far over Europe.

Although the fortress squadrons put up a terrific concentration of fire on those attacks, their lack of speed and maneuverability, air experts said, made them extremely vulnerable if they make long unescorted flights.

Plane designers always have envisaged a light bomber with speeds approaching those of fighters even when loaded with bombs and equalling the fighters once the bombs were dropped. Such a plane would be extremely maneuverable and heavily armed. It would carry a small load of bombs, leaving the heavy work to the four-motored bombers.

The Mosquitoes, four of which had their first action over Oslo recently in which only one was lost, are still on the "secret list." Nevertheless, it can be said they satisfy those requirements better than any plane yet developed.

Guests in London Hotels May Have to Make Beds

LONDON.—Guests even in London's largest hotels may soon be required to make their own beds, keep their rooms clean and shine their own shoes.

"The labor shortage has become so acute," said an official of the Hotels and Restaurants association, "that some West End hotels are reducing to skeleton staffs barely able to cope with the most essential daily work.

"Outside London the position generally is even worse.

"The labor crisis has coincided with the period of greatest pressure on hotel accommodation since war began. The ministry of works and planning is now agreed that where cost is reasonable bomb-damaged rooms may be repaired and put into commission again."

Hoeme Desires a Home, But Money Can't Buy It

HUTCHINSON, KAN. — F. W. Hoeme wanted a home—but complications set in. First the war blocked his plans to build on his farm.

Then he gave up trying to move a house he'd bought in town, because he'd have had to chop down a whole streetful of trees.

Then he bought another house—but neighbors said "Oh, no, you don't move that out to the country and leave an unsightly hole in our nice neighborhood!"

The city commission, squirming under their protests, still hasn't okayed the move.

Morals of U. S. Soldiers In Britain 'Very High'

LONDON.—The morals of United States soldiers in this theater of operations is "very high" and their church attendance is much higher than when they were in the United States, the 12 senior chaplains in the area said recently after a two-day conference at army headquarters.

The chaplains said the soldiers were taking extensive advantage of their service as counselors on "everything from a stubbed toe to facing the future . . ." These problems, they said, include sickness, finance, home and girls here and in the United States.

Man Is Drafted Again On Same Day and Month

TROY, N. Y.—A veteran of the first World war, Charles D. Guerin, walked into the office of his draft board waving a piece of paper:

"Look what I brought along with me, my induction notice for the first World war."

Sure enough, the paper showed that Guerin was called up for induction in the first World war on September 9—the same day and month the board called him for induction in the second war.

Plane Flies So Fast Cannot Follow Map

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.—Note to the Axis: Don't underestimate the speed of the U. S. air corps' new P-47 Thunderbolt.

It traveled so fast recently that a pilot landed it at New Castle, Pa., thinking that he was coming in at New Castle, Ind.

Declared the pilot: "It flew so fast I could not follow maps to keep track of my position."

To Attend Officers' School

Corporal George Fowler, who enlisted in the U. S. Army in March, 1941, and was stationed in Hawaii when it was bombed by the Japanese, is now en route to Miami Beach, Fla., to attend an Army air officers' training school. He is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall G. Miller of 62 Wrentham street.

Governor Extends Probe of Union

Will Permit Investigation of Any Acts Since the Original Inquiry

Investigation into the financial affairs of Local 17, Hodcarriers and Common Laborers' Union, will be widened to a considerable extent by an order of Governor Lehman which was signed yesterday, according to Assistant Attorney General Edward G. O'Neill of Newburgh, who is in charge of the investigation. The order of the governor permits the investigation of any unlawful acts which it is alleged may have been committed at any time after the original order of investigation was signed instituting the original proceedings.

This new order will permit the investigation of any acts on the part of union officials since the original inquiry order was granted last February.

Mr. O'Neill has been holding sessions in Ulster county before the May grand jury from time to time, relative to the union's activities in this county. The May grand jury is still in session subject to call by Mr. O'Neill and it is expected that further sessions will be held this month here. After the regular work of the May grand jury was concluded District Attorney N. LeVan Haver held the body together for "special sessions" to be called under the direction of Mr. O'Neill for the investigation of the union activities. Trial of Samuel Nuzzo of Newburgh, indicted for misappropriation of union funds, will begin on December 1 in Orange county.

Farewell Dinner and Party for J. A. Rapp

A farewell dinner and party was given James A. Rapp of Hurley avenue on Thursday evening at Schoentag's Hotel by members of the local Prudential Insurance Company staff. There were over 30 who met to bid farewell to Mr. Rapp, who leaves Tuesday for service in the United States army. Mr. Rapp is the first Prudential man working out of the local office to be inducted.

After a turkey dinner and all the fixings had been disposed of there were short addresses by Superintendent William Rose, John Edwards, assistant superintendent, Robert Cullum, Paul Otto, assistant Ben Silverman and a number of the other members of the staff.

Mr. Rapp was presented with a leather money belt and a substantial purse of money.

Ration Books Should Be Guarded Carefully

Frequent reports to the sheriff's office by persons who have lost ration books or have had them stolen, indicate that it might pay holders of ration books to guard them a bit more carefully.

Friday three persons reported loss of books. A Saugerties, R. D., man reported that his "A" gas ration book had been missing for two weeks. It was stated that this book might possibly have been burned up. A woman living near Kingston reported three sugar ration books lost and the same day an Olive Bridge man reported that his "A" and "C" gas books had been stolen.

Thursday another man reported that his "S" gas ration book had been stolen.

Numerous cases where gas books have been stolen it develops that the books had been left in the glove compartment of the car.

Deeds Recently Filed in the Office of the County Clerk

The following deeds have been filed in the office of the county clerk.

Nellie J. Banks of Kingston to Arthur H. and Anna Van DeMark of Kingston, land in Kingston.

Julius and Marie Spitigen of Brooklyn to Frank Siricola of Bronx, land in the town of Plattekill.

Minnie R. Walter of Kingston to Frank L. and Mae Farrell of Kingston, land in Kingston.

Register Tires on Cars in Storage

If you own an automobile but have put it up in storage for the duration or until gasoline becomes easier to procure, you must still register the tires on the car, according to the opinion of the Kingston War Price and Ration Board. If you have a car with good tires on it and do not intend to use it until after the war, John M. Cashin, chairman of the Kingston ration board, said it would be doing a patriotic duty to remove the tires and sell them to the government for use by someone who needs them.

Many people have inquired what procedure they should take about tires on a vehicle which is in storage and not being used. Mr. Cashin said that such tires should be registered. The owner of a car not now being run and for which no gasoline ration book has been issued, should take the serial number of all five tires and register them at an official registration station on the usual inspection blank. In the space where the ration book number is to be inserted, Mr. Cashin said, a notation should be made that no ration book has been issued and the car is not in use.

"Any person not using his car now, and owning good rubber should turn in the tires so they may be placed in service by someone who needs them." Mr. Cashin told a Freeman reporter.

1,500,000 New Farm Workers Seen Needed

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Need for 1,500,000 new farm workers next year to meet food production requirements was foreseen by the bureau of agricultural economics today if present military induction and industrial employment trends continue.

Agriculture, the bureau said, will lose a million workers from its labor force during the 12-month period ending next July 1. Indications are, it added, that an additional 300,000 will have been lost by the end of the 1943 harvest season.

"At the same time," the bureau said, "needed agricultural production next year would require 200,000 more workers than there were available in 1942. To meet these needs in full, next year we would have to recruit 1,500,000 new workers."

The bureau's figures were made public shortly after Secretary of Agriculture Wickard told farmers in a radio talk that recent increases in wartime food demands caused him to feel "more and more concerned" over the nation's ability to meet those demands.

The bureau said that "perhaps some public action can be taken to relieve some of the need for new workers."

Concede Graveyard For Poll Tax Bill

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Senate prepared to go through the motions today of debating abolishment of state poll taxes as a prerequisite for voting in federal elections, although even its supporters conceded the measure was marked for the legislative graveyard.

Balked by a seven-day filibuster carried on by senators from southern poll tax states, proponents finally succeeded in bringing the bill formally before the Senate under the terms of an involved "gentleman's agreement" calling for a vote at 1 o'clock (E. W. T.) Monday afternoon on a motion to limit debate.

Adoption of such a motion would require two-thirds approval of those present and even administration strategists who have fought to obtain action on the measure acknowledged that upwards of 40 of the 96 senators would oppose limiting debate.

Meeting for Fourth Ward Service Flag

Residents of the Fourth Ward are proud of the fact that they have around 275 or more men from that ward in the U. S. Service, the largest number of any ward in the city, they claim.

In recognition of this fact a move is under way to secure a service flag to represent the Fourth Ward's participation in the war effort.

To this end, Zone Warden John McGrane has asked all sector and post wardens and their assistants to attend a meeting to be held Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock at the air raid headquarters, 293 Hasbrouck avenue, when plans will be formulated to procure a service flag.

At Fire Chief's Funeral

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and a delegation of 20 members of the Kingston fire department were in Poughkeepsie this morning attending the funeral of Fire Chief Chris Noll in that city, while last night another delegation of Kingston firemen headed by the fire chief, Deputy Fire Chief Fred M. Leverich and Mayor William F. Edelmuth went to Poughkeepsie to pay respect to Chief Noll.

Merchant Vessel Hit

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—The navy announced today that a medium-sized United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine during the latter part of October in the Atlantic off the northern coast of South America. Survivors have landed at a United States east coast port.

MARK TWAIN

Once upon a time, if the question were asked who was America's best beloved author, the answer would probably have been Longfellow. Nowadays the reply would probably be Samuel L. Clemens, much better known as Mark Twain, whose birthday will be celbrated on November 30.

Nobody could be more American than Mark Twain. Born in the village of Florida, Mo., in 1835, he became in turn a journeyman printer, a Mississippi river pilot (whence he got his pen-name, Mark Twain, from a call used by pilots), a newspaper writer, lecturer and author. He was brought up in what is now a vanished civilization, the Mississippi River and the Far West of 80 years ago, and he has brought it home to us all. While his first reputation was made with the humorous travel book, "Innocents Abroad," he will live especially in books like "Roughing It," "Life on the Mississippi," and above all, "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

It seems odd now that, as late as 1900, histories of American literature could be written which confined all mention of Mark Twain to a footnote. Now he is recognized as one of our greatest writers. Popular appreciation did it for him, wiser in this case than the critics. Now both the critic and the man in the street take Mark Twain to their hearts, the best beloved American author.

A SPENDING SPREE

General spending is now surpassing that of the famous boom-and-bust year, 1929. Financial experts give surprising facts.

The amount of money circulating in this country is the greatest ever. The average citizen who thought he was very well off a year ago, with about $77 of loose money lying around, now has more than $105. Money in circulation has risen to an all-time record of $14,000,000,000. People will spend about $52,000,000,000 this year for goods, instead of the $44,000,000,000 they spent in the famous boom-and-bust year of 1929.

It is all natural enough perhaps, when you consider how many more people are working and making big money now, including millions of women who formerly stayed at home or held small office or store jobs. But the total result is dangerous. So far, this country in its greatest orgy of production has escaped serious inflation, but there is no assurance that such luck will continue. The simplest way to avoid general disaster is for those "in the money" to spend less, and put more into government bonds.

IMPORTANT PAPER

The family were getting settled after the move, and the mere man who, on paper, heads the household, made a discovery. He learned what is the most important thing in the whole house. Before that, he might have said "The kitchen" or "The bathroom" or, if a superman with wifely training, "Closets." Now he knows better and will tell anyone, "The most important thing in the house is shelfpaper."

Without shelfpaper, clean and cut to fit, nothing can be put away. Dishes, glass, clothing, in fact practically everything that goes into drawers or cupboards, must stand on the floor, creating a discouraging chaos. Once the shelves are covered, they can be filled, and chaos disappears like magic.

So praises to the unknown genius who invented shelfpaper. When he is found, his birthday should be made a national holiday. If he is not identified, so that his birthday remains a secret, perhaps the celebration could be held on the traditional moving day, May 1. Maybe an orchid—made of colored shelfpaper—should be laid on his grave.

DOUBTFUL DARLAN

Criminal prosecutions often make terms with one of the criminals. He turns state's evidence against his accomplices, and saves his own skin at their expense. It is regrettable, and no one admires the criminal who profits by it, but apparently it has to be done.

It looks as if something of the sort were taking place with regard to Admiral Darlan. Whether or not he is a Nazi at heart, he has certainly played their game in France. Hatred of the British is said to be the cause in his case. If so, it has undoubtedly led him on the same paths as those with out-and-out Nazi sympathies.

Now that he is in American hands, and under our watchful eyes is allowed to function as head of the government in North Africa, he can be useful. His order to the French to stop fighting doubtless saved many American lives. His following, whether large or small, is better on our side than on Hitler's.

RULERS AND FOLLOWERS

As the struggle against Napoleon approached its climax, the Allies issued a famous proclamation that they were not warring against the French people, but against Napoleon. It helped to rally against the Emperor the submerged hostility to him among the French, and contributed powerfully to his overthrow.

Nearly a quarter of a century ago Woodrow Wilson's words, distinguishing between the German people and their rulers, helped sow unrest among the enemy and, even more than the strokes of Foch, overthrew the Kaiser.

Now many wonder whether any such distinction can either profitably or truthfully be made between Hitler and Mussolini on the one hand, and their more or less willing followers. These have been glad to profit by the booty wrung from the conquered nations. Why should they escape penalty for a support whose enthusiasm wanes only with defeat?

They say now that when we've licked those Germans, we gotta educate 'em. Gosh, what a job!

The most remarkable thing about those pesky Japs is that they seem able to fight just about as well without grub or tobacco.

Eddie Rickenbacker shows again that you can't keep a good airman down.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

I have spoken before of the young boxer being driven to a city three hundred miles away, who had the driver speed up some so that they would not be late for the weighing in at 2 p. m. To avoid a stalled car on their own side and an oncoming car, they had to turn into the ditch and the car was overturned. Neither of them was hurt, though badly shaken, and they drove on and arrived just at 2 p. m.

The examining physician found a heart murmur which had always been present and found also the blood pressure high. He was refusing to allow the young man to box when the boxer told him of the accident. The examiner called in a colleague who was likewise doubtful about allowing him to box. The boxer pleaded that he had boxed in New York, Chicago, and other cities, had never been rejected, and that the accident was to blame for his high blood pressure. Recognizing that the boxer was a Jew, and the Jewish race are more nervous, more emotional, than others, the physicians allowed him to box. The boxer was so worried and upset that he did not do himself justice. He boxed the entire ten rounds but was outpointed.

He returned to his home city, consulted a heart specialist whose examination included the fluroscope and electrocardiograph, and was told that his heart and blood pressure were normal and that the high blood pressure recorded before the bout was due to the accident and remained high because of his worry about his heart and blood pressure caused by the examining physicians' intention of not allowing him to box.

This boxer had what is called functional high blood pressure which is not due to hardening of the arteries but to a tightening of the tiny muscle elastic tissue in walls of the bloodvessels. Just as the elastic muscular walls of the stomach, of the intestine, of the gall bladder and other organs contract or tighten due to excitement or emotional disturbances, so do the walls of the bloodvessels throughout the body whether they are blood vessels supplying the heart itself, or some other organ or tissue.

What else besides emotional disturbances can cause tightening of bloodvessels which raises the blood pressure?

The blood pressure can be raised temporarily by heavy meals, hard work or exercise, too much liquid—hard or soft drinks—or some infection in the blood.

While functional high blood pressure is not dangerous, like organic high blood pressure due to hardening of arteries, nevertheless if pressure is increased too often, the blood vessels lose some of their elasticity and true or organic high blood pressure occurs.

Midget Dies at 91

One of the smallest persons in South Africa, Mrs. Francina Grove, died recently at Victoria West. She was born on the farm of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Swarts. Thirteen brothers and sisters were all of normal height. Her height was 3 feet 2 inches and her weight 50 pounds. Her husband, who died some years ago, was only slightly taller.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Dr. Daniel Connelly, health officer of Kingston, died in his home on Henry street of a heart atttack on March 22, 1928. He had been taken ill in his office in the city hall, but recovered sufficiently to drive his car to his home. There he became seriously ill and died later.

Dr. Connelly was appointed health officer on June 10, 1923, and during the five years he served he proved one of the most efficient physicians to fill the office. He came to Kingston from Cairo, Greene county, and took over the practice of the late Dr. Jacob D. Terwilliger.

In 1891 he opened an office in his home at 147 Henry street where he practiced his profession and made his home until his death. I recall that it was during the administration of Dr. Connelly as health officer that he arranged to hold a series of huge free clinics in the state armory on Broadway, now the municipal auditorium.

Other physicians assisted him as well as a corps of nurses and more than 1,200 children were immunized from diphtheria at these clinics.

I also recall the death of John T. Bond, veteran Strand jeweler in his home on Franklin street on March 22, 1918. He had been engaged in the jewelry business on the Strand for 42 years before illness forced him to retire.

Mr. Bond was one of the best known jewelers in the city and was noted as a repairer of watches. For years he kept the watches of the railroad men on the old Ulster & Delaware railroad accurate.

From time to time in this column I have referred to the many amateur minstrels that have been staged in the city, and I recall that on March 28 and 29, 1928, the Craftsmen's Club of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M. presented its annual show uptown.

Christy Reardon was interlocutor and the others in the cast included Harry M. Barnhart, William G. Newkirk, Dick Obenaus, C. D. Moore, Herbert E. Thomas, Al G. Messinger, Edsil P. Flowers, O. F. Beatty, Walt Ostrander.

Also Ren R. Van Keuren, L. C. Elmendorf, Richard A. Scherer, Robert J. Baylor, W. D. Finger, Harold V. Clayton, H. J. Beatty, Harry F. Pierce, D. J. Forman, A. B. Katz, C. J. Babcock, G. E. Moore, Fred A. Meeker, A. J. Keator, Thomas Lebert, A. J. MacCreery and A. T. Shader.

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, Nov. 21—A standard bearing the names of the boys in the town of Shandaken who are in the armed forces was set up and dedicated on Armistice Day. It was placed by the side of the plaque bearing the names of those who were in the First World War. The services were in charge of and conducted by W. Malloy, Sr. The Rev. Mr. Stine, pastor of the M. E. Church, led in prayer. The Rev. Father Egan of St. Frances de Sales Church gave a short address centering his words around the Armistice Day of the past and the new tablet which spoke a silent language as it was read. The school children in charge of Mrs. G. Bennett, who is the music instructor at the school, marched from the school house and took their place in line and sang very nicely, "America," "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Bless America." E. Hoffman built the pedestal, Mr. Bryon of Mt. Tremper did the printing of the names on the board, Mrs. Lurie sponsored the "making possible" of this memorial of remembrance to our boys.

President's Frank Discussion of Draft Board Lack of Uniformity Is Encouraging

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 21—President Roosevelt disclosed to his press conference that he fully realizes the lack of uniformity among the local draft boards in handling occupational deferments.

The President's frank discussion of the draft situation is the most encouraging piece of news on this tangled problem that has come out of Washington in a long, long time, and amounts to a confirmation of the points made at various times in these dispatches concerning the operation of the selective service act.

Mr. Roosevelt referred first to what he observed on his recent inspection trip. He said that there were some operations in a factory, for example, which do no need a lot of skilled workers—in other words, that you could teach a girl to do such work in three or four weeks. Then a man holding such a job could not be deferred, but if a girl could not be obtained or taught that kind of work, the job holder would be deferred.

Then, there are the cases of two foremen in one of the plants visited by the President. He said they were not only skilled but they were in charge of 25 to 30 machines—they not only had the managing skill and knew all about machines but they also had leadership. Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that these two men happened to live in different ends of town. One had a wife but no dependents. The draft board gave the man in the north end of the town an exemption but did not give an exemption to the other fellow, and the two cases were almost similar in every respect. The President added that there was no uniformity but that the government was doing the best it could under the circumstances and that probably later, when the next steps are taken, it may be possible to get some uniformity from the draft boards.

A further suggestion came from the President, that by having the manager of the plant or supervisor of a particular kind of work certify to the board as to whether a man is irreplaceable, some uniformity might be obtained. He declared that he didn't think we had enough of that kind of cooperation and that the local boards do not consult enough with the managements of businesses as to their personnel training practices but that the situation was getting better all the time.

What the President may not know is that members of some local draft boards do not even acknowledge letters from employers, and some do not grant hearings at all, simply declaring that hearings are optional and not mandatory. Some members of local draft boards, when presented with the facts concerning key employes, ask this question: "Well, what would you do if the man died?" On that basis, of course, everyone can be replaced but it also means that training new employes slows up the work for a year or more until such time as skills are attained equal to that of the man drafted.

In the last war there were regional appeals boards which handled occupational deferment problems almost entirely, and this permitted of more coordination and more familiarity with employer-employe problems than is possible under the system today.

The local draft boards are overworked and are understaffed. They operate in inadequate quarters, and someone who has access to billions for lend-lease might well have done a bit of lending or leasing inside the United States to enable these draft boards to function more smoothly. Their clerical staffs are inadequate and their facilities insufficient. The draft system should have the benefit of experienced personnel men attached to the regional or district appeals boards.

The President seemed to think that many appeals would be avoided if, as he said, more information were given to the local boards. It is doubtful whether he knows of the efforts of employers to inform the local boards and of the indifference of such boards, in many instances, to written or oral information furnished.

The President is right in saying the present arrangement lacks uniformity and that evidently more information is needed to act on deferment cases. It is true, of course, there has been some chiseling and some draft-dodging and even some untrue information given by employers, but in the main the local boards have been given no specific instructions by the national headquarters that they could apply uniformly. Also they haven't had the technical facilities to handle the occupational deferment problem. Maybe in the coming new plan something will be done about this.

Two books in the phonographic field—

It was time someone produced a book of reminiscence about the business of recording music and the personalities involved, and probably F. W. Gaisberg is as good a man as could be found for the job. His "The Music Goes Round" is not at all a book for people interested only in the technical side of recording, nor is it particularly a book for musicians. It has to do with musicians largely, it is true, but in an anecdotal fashion that removes entirely that terrific bugaboo for the average man—to wit, the fear of seeming "long hair."

Gaisberg has been in the business 50 years. He started as Emile Berliner's assistant, and Berliner was the foundation of the modern phonograph and the man who perfected disc recording. In 1898 Gaisberg was sent abroad to trap the world's leading artists into making records, and that was the beginning of the Red Seal recordings which continue down to now.

Gaisberg became chief recorder for the British Gramophone Company, and loved and battled with Patti, with Melba, Chaliapin, Ruffo, Caruso, Kreisler, Paderewski, Tetrazzini—all that long list out of what W. J. Henderson used to call the roster of the golden age, with some justice. Later he traveled the world over, remembering most of what he saw, which was considerable. Then as now the companies demanded novelties, and it was Gaisberg who found them. He also managed a turn-about that betrayed a large number of the men who had grown up with the phonograph—when electrical recording came in, around 1925, a great many of the old timers were unable to change their course, but not Gaisberg. He started building up a brand new library of the world's greatest music. This is a really informative, really interesting memoir.

There is also a new edition of the now famous "Gramophone Shop Encyclopedia of Recorded Music," one of the most useful of all such works so war produced. It lists and evaluates by simple means all the worthwhile recordings of nearly all the world's truly great music, and in addition contains a little information about the composers. You don't read it—you consult it. Often, if you are a phonograph fan.

"Free French" Puzzles

Hopelessly lost in Sydney, Australia, a Free French soldier rejoiced that he had jotted down on a slip of paper the name of the house in which he was living while on leave. All he had to do was to ask an Australian soldier for directions and he handed one the slip of paper. The soldier looked at the note and read: "No Peddlers."

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Gradually the capital is assembling a number of little clues that may build up into a picture of how the United Nations intend to establish real freedom in those parts of the world which have suffered despotism and slavery.

The story starts with the signing of the Atlantic Charter and a little later, the signing of the joint statement of aims by leaders of the United Nations. It continues down through speeches and statements by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull. It takes in Wendell Willkie's speech after his globe-girdling flight and the President's comments on Willkie's speech.

The latest clue, and perhaps the most definite to date, was the President's speech on the seventh anniversary of the Philippine Commonwealth. The Atlantic Charter spoke of "respect for the rights of all people to choose their forms of government." The matter rested there for some time—until Willkie returned with word that the Far East, particularly China, was bewildered as to Anglo-American war aims. Many Orientals, Willkie said, have read the Atlantic Charter. "Rightly or wrongly," he continued, "they ask: what about a Pacific charter? what about a world charter?"

The President answered that one by stating that "the Atlantic Charter applies to all humanity," and was so called simply because it was signed at sea in the Atlantic.

Still unanswered, however, was the question which Willkie reported was causing the most uneasiness in China: "What about India?" The Chinese, he said, were particularly alarmed not at the British attitude, but at the fact that the U. S. failed to step in and mediate the Indian dispute.

Now comes Mr. Roosevelt's Philippine speech. It gives a strong suggestion of the way his thinking is running.

"I like to think," the President said, "that the history of the Philippine Islands in the last 44 years provides in a very real sense a pattern for the future of small nations and peoples of the world. It is a pattern of what men of good will look forward to in the future."

Who would Mr. Roosevelt include among his "men of good will?" Winston Churchill certainly. And here is what may be the tip-off on how men of good will plan to restore real popular rule to conquered Germany and her satellites, and perhaps how they plan to handle India and other colonial areas.

"But we must remember," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "that such a pattern is based on two important factors; one through the dissemination of education, the second is that there must be a period of training and ultimate independent sovereignty, through practice of more and more self government."

Ball Attraction

PAULINE ALPERT

Although the entire stage program for Wednesday's annual Ahavath Israel Ball has much color, the local program committee takes great pride in bringing to patrons of this ball one of the finest entertainers in radio and stage fields. The special guest star they're looking forward to is Miss Pauline Alpert, who is better known as the "whirl-wind pianist of Station WOR." Miss Alpert is a regular feature on the Mutual network lines. Besides appearing in functions such as these, she also has engaged in work with symphony orchestras and has made several concert tours throughout the country. Miss Alpert is by no means a stranger to local radio fans.

W. C. T. U. Receives Awards for Work

At the meeting November 19 of the Kingston Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in the St. James Methodist Church, the president, Mrs. George W. Shultis, announced that three awards had been given the local Union by the state organization. These were: A book, "Sixty Years in Action," awarded for an exhibit picture sent by the local Union to the state director of exhibits; a purple badge, for having obtained 19 new members during the past year, and a check for $5 for 81 per cent efficiency standard. Christmas cheer was one of the important items of business. Gifts will be made to the Ellis Island work, as well as to local Christmas cheer work.

The local organization will use the study book "The Amazing Story of Repeal" for its 1943 programs. Mrs. Shultis then outlined the new membership campaign plans for 1943, and urged all members to work to attain these goals.

Mrs. Roscoe Strivings was enrolled as a new member of the union, and when called upon for interesting news she reported from the "Beer and Brewing in America" journal, an authority for declaring, "in an average year more than a million men are engaged in the manufacture and distribution of beer alone; that in an average year the brewing industry uses a million and a half tons of barley, rice, corn and corn products, and sugar and syrups—the products of three million acres of land and of thousands of hands sorely needed for farm work." With transportation overworked already, nearly twelve thousand cars are needed to carry the lumber and steel needed for making barrels. She also reported that, according to "Watchword", while the national income increased in the last three year by 77 per cent, gifts to churches and church benevolences had decreased 47 per cent. "The citizens of our country are poorer in church than anywhere else," she said.

Following Mrs. Strivings' report announcement was made that through the courtesy of WKNY station, Mrs. Shultis will broadcast the last Wednesday of each month at 4:45 p. m. and that Thanksgiving morning she will conduct the morning devotion service on the local station.

Surprise Birthday Dinner

A surprise birthday dinner was given in honor of Mrs. Lawrence E. Joyce of West Hurley at the home of Mrs. Marie Gunther, Plank Road, Thursday evening, November 19. TWO-PIECE FAVORITE

9127

Marian Martin

A real "fashion first" for busy days is this stunning two-piece outfit, Pattern 9127 by Marian Martin. There's youth and verve in the trim inset belt and the shapely collar. Two front panels give walking ease to the slim skirt. The three-quarter sleeve version is very smart.

Pattern 9127 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 34, 36, 38, 40; 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40. Size 16 requires 3 yards 54 inch.

Send SIXTEEN CENTS in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Our Winter Pattern Book covers the entire American fashion front, with smart, practical, easy-to-sew styles for everyone. It has gift tips; a basic wartime wardrobe; school wear. Pattern Book, ten cents.

Send your order to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th street, New York, N. Y.

Daily Menus

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Substantial Fare

Luncheon or Supper Menu for Whole Family

(Serving 4 or 5)

Split Pea Soup — Toast or Crackers
Nutrition Salad
Cooked Pear Sauce
Chocolate Chip Drops
Milk — Coffee

Split Pea Soup

2 cups green split peas
1 ham bone
½ cup chopped onions
1/3 cup diced celery
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 crushed bay leaf
6 cups water

Mix ingredients and cook covered over low heat for 2 hours—or until peas are very soft. If the soup thickens too much add 2 more cups boiling water after an hour of cooking. The soup will cook in less time if the peas are soaked over night.

Nutrition Salad

2 cups shredded cabbage
½ cup grated raw carrots
2/3 cups cubed apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup salad dressing
Mix and chill ingredients.

(Calls for Semi-Sweet Chocolate)

1/3 cup shortening
1/3 cup honey
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup cream
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon baking powder
2/3 cup semi-sweet chocolate
1/3 cup broken nuts

Cream fat and honey and sugar. Add rest of ingredients. Chill dough and drop portions from tip of spoon onto greased baking sheet. Flatten each cooky with fork dipped in flour. Bake 10 minutes in moderate oven (350).

Equal portions of canned cream of tomato and cream of mushroom soups, heated together make a grand sauce to serve covering meat loaf, broiled meat cakes or breaded chops. The meat can be cooked right in the sauce mixture or the sauce used as a last minute covering.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

It is best not to ask a man for an explanation.

Although the writer of the following letter would have been wiser to send it to my friend Dorothy Dix, I am of course glad to print it and tell her what I myself would do about it. This is the letter: "A girl friend whom I know and dearly love has been given the 'brush off' by a young man with whom she has been the best of friends for several years. They saw each other at least once or twice a week. A month ago he stopped coming, never telephoned, and even went out of his way to avoid meeting the girl. The only thing any of us can imagine is that he has had a change of heart. But no one has seen him anywhere with any other girl or heard of his paying any one attentions. My young friend has done nothing but grieve and wonder what she can do. Will you tell me what sort of letter she should write him?

My own suggestion is that she avoid writing anything at all. The impulse of most women is to cover pages with "whys?" and "Please tell me's"; and if there is one thing a man hates more than another it is to be asked to explain his conduct. It might perhaps be possible to get a friend—preferably a man—to ask him "What has happened to you and Mary? I used to see you two everywhere!" But even this is going out on very thin ice.

Drinking a Toast to the President

Dear Mrs. Post: At a banquet in celebration of this company's receipt of the Army-Navy "E" Production Award, a toast is to be drunk to our Commander-in-Chief, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Should someone acknowledge the toast and if so, who? There will be an Admiral of the U. S. Navy and various Colonels and Lt. Colonels of the Army present. I mention these in case an officer of some branch of our armed forces should reply. Our local Public Library tried to find this information for us, but having failed they referred us to you.

Answer: No one could reply to the toast in the name of the President. The Chairman (toastmaster) of the dinner should rise, hold up his glass and ask everyone to "rise for a toast." Then when all are standing he lifts his glass higher and says "To the President of the United States." Having drunk it (or sipped it) everyone then sits down. After this other toasts are perhaps proposed, or speakers introduced.

When Mary Becomes Aunt Mary

Dear Mrs. Post: My young uncle was just married. I met his wife only twice and when he introduced her he called her Mary. Now that she is my aunt, do I call her Mary or Aunt Mary? If age makes any difference—I am fourteen.

Answer: You should call her Aunt Mary. It would be very cheeky to call her by her first name unless she first tells you to do so.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "ANNOUNCING THE ENGAGEMENT." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Solution Of Yesterday's Puzzle

OFFICE CAT
TRADE MARK REG.
By Junius

These are the days when one likes to recall that a horse would always start on a cold morning.

A wise fellow stepping up to the bus as it stopped the other morning said to the driver:
Wise Fellow — Well, Noah, you've got here. Is the Ark full?
Motorman—Nope, we need one more monkey. Come on in.

Owners of unsafe cars are being asked to scrap them.
How about scrapping the unsafe drivers also?

Dad—Did you have the car out last night, son?
Son—Yes, Dad, I took some of the boys to High School.

The tires on some automobiles are more valuable than the car.

During the traffic rush, two officers, noticing a young woman who was driving dangerously, shot ahead of her and drew up their car alongside, so that the culprit had to stop:
Officer (sarcastically) — Excuse me, young lady, do you know anything about driving a car?
Bright Young Thing—Of course. What's your trouble?

There are people who expect to use every gasoline coupon in their ration books and there are others who are conserving wherever possible.

The Model—Mr. Smires wants me for a fine picture he's going to paint, "Cleopatra and the Snake."
Her Rival—Indeed! And who is he going to get for Cleopatra?

War bonds are as safe as U. S. currency.

It is a dangerous war. There is no assurance yet that we will win it. And if you don't win a war you lose it.

Husband (rushing home one day recently)—Hurrah, darling. I've made dollars today in a big deal. Now you can have some decent clothes for Christmas.
Wife—Indeed, I'll do no such a thing. I'll have the kind other women wear.

To those families who have received a message from the government that their son is missing:
We think of you so often, but more than ever now,
Wishing too, with all our heart,
that we could help somehow.
We only hope the courage so typical of you
Will strengthen and sustain you, in all you're going through.

Mrs. Jones (kindly)—Hello, dear, how's the pain in the neck?
Mrs. Green—He's out playing golf.

Wasted money is wasted lives . . . Don't waste precious lives . . . Every dollar you can spare should be used to buy war bonds . . . Buy your ten per cent every pay day.

Mrs. Davis—Why do you keep looking down all the time?
Mr. Davis—The doctor told me to watch my stomach.

A banker got up at a banquet and read a poem that he had written. It was terrible—and nothing was done about it. But just let a poor poet write a bum check and see what happens.

Mabel—How in the word does she ever got any money out of that husband of hers?
Harriet—Oh, she just tells him she is going back to her mother and he hands her train fare.

Long absence from work, persistent tardiness, misbehavior, or other delinquencies may subject a war worker in Palestine to fine, imprisonment or both.

The Australian lyre-bird is so named for the remarkable plumage of its tail, resembling a Greek lyre.

ACCORD

Accord, Nov. 20—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Miller entertained at dinner on Wednesday, November 18, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Mary Coddington, on her 18th birthday. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Lester Coddington, Mrs. Perry Coddington, Mrs. Walter Voight, Mrs. Phoebe Lawrence, Mrs. Nathan Trowbridge and daughter, Karen Sue, Miss Hilda Hart, and Ross Coddington. Mrs. Coddington received many gifts and flowers.

The dedication of the 4-S service flag wil be held in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning, December 6, at the usual worship hour, 10:30 a. m. The public is cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ter Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond George and daughters, Louise and Hazel, all of Sundown, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Van Vliet of Accord spent Sunday, November 15, with Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Clearwater and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Osterhoudt.

'France Forever' Meets

The annual meeting at the Woodstock chapter of "France Forever" was held at the home of the Misses Anita M. Smith and Alice Henderson, Tuesday night, November 17. Officers elected were: President, Miss Elsie Goddard; Vice-president, Andree Ruellan; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Alice Henderson. The executive committee was increased from six to 12 members and the following were elected: the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, Miss Anita M. Smith, Charles dela Vergne, P. L. Buttrick, Capt. William Moncure, Martin Comeau, Miss Harriet Goddard, Miss Isabel Doughty, Mrs. Joshua Rosett, Mrs. Marion Bullard, Mrs. Walter McTeigue and John Taylor.

The committee chairman chosen are: entertainment, Andree Ruellan; membership, Harriet Goddard, Mrs. Walter McTeigue; facts and figures P. L. Buttrick; publicity, Marion Bullard.

The Woodstock chapter of "France Forever" was formed 19 months ago and during that time has been commended by headquarters in New York for its activity and for the money raised and sent to headquarters to back the efforts of the fighting French under Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The climate of the Fiji Islands is unusually mild for the tropics; the temperature seldom rises above 90 degrees.

Norns, female divinities of Northern mythology, were said to appear as prophetesses at the birth of children.

Old-fashioned husking bees have been revived by students at the Pennsylvania State College to aid farmers.

Needle Brigade Aids War Effort

Red Cross Volunteers Are Supplying Garments to Army and Navy

Washington, D. C. — With needles as their only weapons, more than 2,000,000 American women today are devoting what once were leisure hours to aiding the nation's war effort.

Members of the American Red Cross Production Corps, largest of all Red Cross volunteer services, they are sewing and knitting for the armed forces and U. S. allies abroad.

A priority on large quantities of wool was given the Red Cross this year to continue its program of making knitted garments requested by the army and navy and made to their specifications. Sea boots, sweaters, gloves, mufflers, rifle mitts and socks are but a few of the wool garments made for American servicemen and distributed to them on all fighting fronts.

Surgical dessings by the hundred thousands also are turned out by Red Cross volunteers, who make between 80 and 90 per cent of all surgical dressings needed by the Army. Gauze for them is provided by the War Department.

Hundreds of sewing machines are humming in Red Cross chapters throughout the country, turning out bathrobes, pajamas, hot-water bags, cushions, pneumonia jackets and other clothing. "House-wives," sewing cases for service men, are another product of the Red Cross volunteers.

Kit bags are assembled and given to each man going overseas. At the request of the War Department cigarettes, pencils, envelopes, paper, shoe laces, chewing gum, soap, playing cards, and sewing cases are packed in bags with a greeting card from the local chapter. A pocket size edition of a detective or humorous story, as well as razor blades and shoe laces, also are enclosed. Many chapters have received enthusiastic letters of thanks from the men overseas.

Ingenuity is not lacking in side-stepping shortages of material. Vests have been made from old felt hats as wind breakers for aviators. In one city the local furriers work after hours piecing together left-over bits of fur into vests which are donated to the Red Cross and sent to service men abroad.

Some of the production workers have made gloves out of string, children's slippers from pieces of towel, have knitted hospital blankets, and made blackout curtains. Mending centers have been set up near army camps so that the service men will not have to be bothered with darning their own socks.

The largest and perhaps one of the most important jobs of the Red Cross Production Corps is the packing of seamen's kit bags. These are virtual life savers, carried on ships for the men rescued at sea.

In the 3,735 Red Cross Chapters in the country the women of the production corps are working tirelessly to keep up with army and navy requests for wool clothing, and for surgical dressings used in every theatre of war—front-line fighters on the home front.

Drastic Changes in Real Estate Business

Drastic changes have been brought about in the real estate brokerage business as a result of gasoline rationing, according to George L. Long, Brooklyn, president of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards, Inc. The association conducted a survey recently to determine how rationing was affecting its members.

"Surprisingly enough," said Mr. Long, "some of the changes which have been necessitated by curtailment of gasoline have had a salutary effect on the conduct of the brokerage business as far as efficiency of operation is concerned. Since brokers are no longer able to put a client in their car and drive him around all day, they have been busy devising ways and means of eliminating unnecessary travel.

"Some of the methods which have been developed are quite ingenious," said Mr. Long. Brokers who have long seen the value of picture files of listings have expanded this idea and are now making moving pictures showing interiors as well as exteriors, together with views of surrounding neighborhoods. These movies can be shown in the broker's office and are almost as effective as a visit to the property.

"Then, too," Mr. Long continued, "brokers are finding that a careful preliminary interview with clients eliminates a great deal of travel. They are learning to analyze clients more carefully to see if they are actually in the market; they are analyzing clients' needs more carefully, and finally they are analyzing their listings more carefully to see if they have what the clients need. This preliminary procedure eliminates much unnecessary visiting of property.

"Another change that has come about in a great many brokerage offices is the elimination of showing rental property."

In Manhattan and metropolitan New York as a whole, gasoline rationing has affected the real estate business very little since brokers do not have to depend on automobiles for transportation. In Long Lsland, however, and rural areas in general, rationing has meant severe curtailment of activity.

"Rural areas are of course the hardest hit," Mr. Long went on to explain, "because brokers are forced to cover a great deal of territory in the normal course of their business. In these areas some brokers, according to the association's survey, are moving to nearby cities, others are using their customers' cars, and in certain places conditions are so bad that brokers have closed their businesses for the duration.

In defense centers, brokers indicated that they were getting along fairly well, although almost all reported that they had more inquiries from war workers than they could handle under present restrictions.

$15,773 Paid In Unemployment Insurance Here

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20—Unemployment insurance benefits of $6,448,763 in the form of 446,213 individual checks were distributed to more than 108,000 unemployed men and women in New York State during October, according to a report issued today by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller. This figure represents a decrease of 10 per cent from September, and shows a decline for the third consecutive month.

During the week ending October 31, 128,991 individuals were actively pursuing their benefit rights. These included 92,340 persons who were receiving benefits, 11,507 who were serving the required waiting period, and 2,284 whose claims were being adjusted. The active insurance file in New York State since the last week in July has fallen off 38.2 percent—a net decrease of almost 80,000.

October payments for the Kingston employment office amounted to $15,773 for the 1942-1943 benefit year, in the form of 1,246 separate checks. The average benefit payment for a single week of unemployment in the Kingston area was $12.53 for the month.

Benefits to New York city unemployed workers, who received 77.4 per cent of the benefits distributed during the month, dropped 11.8 per cent from September.

Benefit payments to workers outside of New York city fell at the same rate during October as during the previous month. The decrease amounted to 12.7 per cent.

Contributions received from employers during the month totaled $9,668,069. Interested credited to the unemployment insurance fund amounted to $2,029,405. At the end of October, the fund totaled $377 million, the highest amount on record since the inception of unemployment insurance in New York State.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 21, 1942.

MARK TWAIN

Once upon a time, if the question were asked who was America's best beloved author, the answer would probably have been Longfellow. Nowadays the reply would probably be Samuel L. Clemens, much better known as Mark Twain, whose birthday will be celbrated on November 30.

Nobody could be more American than Mark Twain. Born in the village of Florida, Mo., in 1835, he became in turn a journeyman printer, a Mississippi river pilot (whence he got his pen-name, Mark Twain, from a call used by pilots), a newspaper writer, lecturer and author. He was brought up in what is now a vanished civilization, the Mississippi River and the Far West of 80 years ago, and he has brought it home to us all. While his first reputation was made with the humorous travel book, "Innocents Abroad," he will live especially in books like "Roughing It," "Life on the Mississippi," and above all, "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

It seems odd now that, as late as 1900, histories of American literature could be written which confined all mention of Mark Twain to a footnote. Now he is recognized as one of our greatest writers. Popular appreciation did it for him, wiser in this case than the critics. Now both the critic and the man in the street take Mark Twain to their hearts, the best beloved American author.

A SPENDING SPREE

General spending is now surpassing that of the famous boom-and-bust year, 1929. Financial experts give surprising facts.

The amount of money circulating in this country is the greatest ever. The average citizen who thought he was very well off a year ago, with about $77 of loose money lying around, now has more than $105. Money in circulation has risen to an all-time record of $14,000,000,000. People will spend about $52,000,000,000 this year for goods, instead of the $44,000,000,000 they spent in the famous boom-and-bust year of 1929.

It is all natural enough perhaps, when you consider how many more people are working and making big money now, including millions of women who formerly stayed at home or held small office or store jobs. But the total result is dangerous. So far, this country in its greatest orgy of production has escaped serious inflation, but there is no assurance that such luck will continue. The simplest way to avoid general disaster is for those "in the money" to spend less, and put more into government bonds.

IMPORTANT PAPER

The family were getting settled after the move, and the mere man who, on paper, heads the household, made a discovery. He learned what is the most important thing in the whole house. Before that, he might have said "The kitchen" or "The bathroom" or, if a superman with wifely training, "Closets." Now he knows better and will tell anyone, "The most important thing in the house is shelfpaper."

Without shelfpaper, clean and cut to fit, nothing can be put away. Dishes, glass, clothing, in fact practically everything that goes into drawers or cupboards, must stand on the floor, creating a discouraging chaos. Once the shelves are covered, they can be filled, and chaos disappears like magic.

So praises to the unknown genius who invented shelfpaper. When he is found, his birthday should be made a national holiday. If he is not identified, so that his birthday remains a secret, perhaps the celebration could be held on the traditional moving day, May 1. Maybe an orchid—made of colored shelfpaper—should be laid on his grave.

DOUBTFUL DARLAN

Criminal prosecutions often make terms with one of the criminals. He turns state's evidence against his accomplices, and saves his own skin at their expense. It is regrettable, and no one admires the criminal who profits by it, but apparently it has to be done.

It looks as if something of the sort were taking place with regard to Admiral Darlan. Whether or not he is a Nazi at heart, he has certainly played their game in France. Hatred of the British is said to be the cause in his case. If so, it has undoubtedly led him on the same paths as those with out-and-out Nazi sympathies.

Now that he is in American hands, and under our watchful eyes is allowed to function as head of the government in North Africa, he can be useful. His order to the French to stop fighting doubtless saved many American lives. His following, whether large or small, is better on our side than on Hitler's.

RULERS AND FOLLOWERS

As the struggle against Napoleon approached its climax, the Allies issued a famous proclamation that they were not warring against the French people, but against Napoleon. It helped to rally against the Emperor the submerged hostility to him among the French, and contributed powerfully to his overthrow.

Nearly a quarter of a century ago Woodrow Wilson's words, distinguishing between the German people and their rulers, helped sow unrest among the enemy and, even more than the strokes of Foch, overthrew the Kaiser.

Now many wonder whether any such distinction can either profitably or truthfully be made between Hitler and Mussolini on the one hand, and their more or less willing followers. These have been glad to profit by the booty wrung from the conquered nations. Why should they escape penalty for a support whose enthusiasm wanes only with defeat?

They say now that when we've licked those Germans, we gotta educate 'em. Gosh, what a job!

The most remarkable thing about those pesky Japs is that they seem able to fight just about as well without grub or tobacco.

Eddie Rickenbacker shows again that you can't keep a good airman down.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

I have spoken before of the young boxer being driven to a city three hundred miles away, who had the driver speed up some so that they would not be late for the weighing in at 2 p. m. To avoid a stalled car on their own side and an oncoming car, they had to turn into the ditch and the car was overturned. Neither of them was hurt, though badly shaken, and they drove on and arrived just at 2 p. m.

The examining physician found a heart murmur which had always been present and found also the blood pressure high. He was refusing to allow the young man to box when the boxer told him of the accident. The examiner called in a colleague who was likewise doubtful about allowing him to box. The boxer pleaded that he had boxed in New York, Chicago, and other cities, had never been rejected, and that the accident was to blame for his high blood pressure. Recognizing that the boxer was a Jew, and the Jewish race are more nervous, more emotional, than others, the physicians allowed him to box. The boxer was so worried and upset that he did not do himself justice. He boxed the entire ten rounds but was outpointed.

He returned to his home city, consulted a heart specialist whose examination included the fluroscope and electrocardiograph, and was told that his heart and blood pressure were normal and that the high blood pressure recorded before the bout was due to the accident and remained high because of his worry about his heart and blood pressure caused by the examining physicians' intention of not allowing him to box.

This boxer had what is called functional high blood pressure which is not due to hardening of the arteries but to a tightening of the tiny muscle elastic tissue in walls of the bloodvessels. Just as the elastic muscular walls of the stomach, of the intestine, of the gall bladder and other organs contract or tighten due to excitement or emotional disturbances, so do the walls of the bloodvessels throughout the body whether they are blood vessels supplying the heart itself, or some other organ or tissue.

What else besides emotional disturbances can cause tightening of bloodvessels which raises the blood pressure?

The blood pressure can be raised temporarily by heavy meals, hard work or exercise, too much liquid—hard or soft drinks—or some infection in the blood.

While functional high blood pressure is not dangerous, like organic high blood pressure due to hardening of arteries, nevertheless if pressure is increased too often, the blood vessels lose some of their elasticity and true or organic high blood pressure occurs.

Midget Dies at 94

One of the smallest persons in South Africa, Mrs. Francina Grove, died recently at Victoria West. She was born on the farm of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Swarts. Thirteen brothers and sisters were all of normal height. Her height was 3 feet 2 inches and her weight 30 pounds. Her husband, who died some years ago, was only slightly taller.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Dr. Daniel Connelly, health officer of Kingston, died in his home on Henry street of a heart attack on March 22, 1928. He had been taken ill in his office in the city hall, but recovered sufficiently to drive his car to his home. There he became seriously ill and died later.

Dr. Connelly was appointed health officer on June 10, 1923, and during the five years he served he proved one of the most efficient physicians to fill the office. He came to Kingston from Cairo, Greene county, and took over the practice of the late Dr. Jacob D. Terwilliger.

In 1891 he opened an office in his home at 147 Henry street where he practiced his profession and made his home until his death. I recall that it was during the administration of Dr. Connelly as health officer that he arranged to hold a series of huge free clinics in the state armory on Broadway, now the municipal auditorium.

Other physicians assisted him as well as a corps of nurses and more than 1,200 children were immunized from diphtheria at these clinics.

I also recall the death of John T. Bond, veteran Strand jeweler in his home on Franklin street on March 22, 1918. He had been engaged in the jewelry business on the Strand for 42 years before illness forced him to retire.

Mr. Bond was one of the best known jewelers in the city and was noted as a repairer of watches. For years he kept the watches of the railroad men on the old Ulster & Delaware railroad accurate.

From time to time in this column I have referred to the many amateur minstrels that have been staged in the city, and I recall that on March 28 and 29, 1928, the Craftsmen's Club of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M. presented its annual show uptown.

Christy Reardon was interlocutor and the others in the cast included Harry M. Barnhart, William G. Newkirk, Dick Obenaus, C. D. Moore, Herbert E. Thomas, Al G. Messinger, Edsil P. Flowers, O. F. Beatty, Walt Ostrander.

Also Ren R. Van Keuren, L. C. Elmendorf, Richard A. Scherer, Robert J. Baylor, W. D. Finger, Harold V. Clayton, H. J. Beatty, Harry F. Pierce, D. J. Forman, A. B. Katz, C. J. Babcock, G. E. Moore, Fred A. Meeker, A. J. Kenter, Thomas Lebert, A. J. MacCreery and A. T. Shader.

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, Nov. 21—A standard bearing the names of the boys in the town of Shandaken who are in the armed forces was set up and dedicated on Armistice Day. It was placed by the side of the plaque bearing the names of those who were in the First World War. The services were in charge of and conducted by W. Malloy, Sr. The Rev. Mr. Stine, pastor of the M. E. Church, led in prayer. The Rev. Father Egan of St. Frances de Sales Church gave a short address centering his words around the Armistice Day of the past and the new tablet which spoke a silent language as it was read. The school children in charge of Mrs. G. Bennett, who is the music instructor at the school, marched from the school house and took their place in line and sang very nicely, "America," "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Bless America." E. Hoffman built the pedestal, Mr. Bryon of Mt. Tremper did the printing of the names on the board, Mrs. Lurie sponsored the "making possible" of this memorial of remembrance to our boys.

Miss Mary Van Steenburgh has been spending some time at Red Bank, N. J.

E. Gormley, Jr., was called to New Jersey Saturday as his wife's aunt had died suddenly.

W. Bienn expects to enter the Army in a few days.

Fred Becker, who enters the Army, spent the week-end with friends in this place.

Mrs. W. Effner of Kingston was a visitor in the place recently. She has rented her place to Mr. Platt of Allaben.

Carl North, who was a clerk in the Breithaupt store, has gone to Delhi where he has accepted a position as a Prudential Insurance Agent.

Mrs. H. German is spending some time in Kingston.

Mrs. Helen Lurie of Woodland is staying at "The Gables."

Mr. and Mrs. V. Frank are now residing in Phoenicia.

Mrs. Grace Baldwin was a caller upon Mrs. A. Perry Loomis Saturday.

Lauren Boice spent a few days in West Shokan.

Monday morning an air raid test was given. The school children went home in good order and discipline.

Arthur Umhey of New York is visiting his people before being inducted into the army.

Miss Helen Ford has been ill. Her mother, Mrs. Fred Traphagen, of Ellenville, has been visiting her.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Goldner of the city are at their place, "The Woodlands."

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 21—President Roosevelt disclosed to his press conference that he fully realizes the lack of uniformity among the local draft boards in handling occupational deferments.

The President's frank discussion of the draft situation is the most encouraging piece of news on this tangled problem that has come out of Washington in a long, long time, and amounts to a confirmation of the points made at various times in these dispatches concerning the operation of the selective service act.

Mr. Roosevelt referred first to what he observed on his recent inspection trip. He said that there were some operations in a factory, for example, which do no need a lot of skilled workers—in other words, that you could teach a girl to do such work in three or four weeks. Then a man holding such a job could not be deferred, but if a girl could not be obtained or taught that kind of work, the job holder would be deferred.

Then, there are the cases of two foremen in one of the plants visited by the President. He said they were not only skilled but they were in charge of 25 to 30 machines—they not only had the managing skill and knew all about machines but they also had leadership. Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that these two men happened to live in different ends of town. One had a wife but no dependents. The draft board gave the man in the north end of the town an exemption but did not give an exemption to the other fellow, and the two cases were almost similar in every respect. The President added that there was no uniformity but that the government was doing the best it could under the circumstances and that probably later, when the next steps are taken, it may be possible to get some uniformity from the draft boards.

A further suggestion came from the President, that by having the manager of the plant or supervisor of a particular kind of work certify to the board as to whether a man is irreplaceable, some uniformity might be obtained. He declared that he didn't think we had enough of that kind of cooperation and that the local boards do not consult enough with the managements of businesses as to their personnel training practices but that the situation was getting better all the time.

What the President may not know is that members of some local draft boards do not even acknowledge letters from employers, and some do not grant hearings at all, simply declaring that hearings are optional and not mandatory. Some members of local draft boards, when presented with the facts concerning key employes, ask this question: "Well, what would you do if the man died?" On that basis, of course, everyone can be replaced but it also means that training new employes slows up the work for a year or more until such time as skills are attained equal to that of the man drafted.

In the last war there were regional appeals boards which handled occupational deferment problems almost entirely, and this permitted of more coordination and more familiarity with employer-employe problems than is possible under the system today.

The local draft boards are overworked and are understaffed. They operate in inadequate quarters, and someone who has access to billions for lend-lease might well have done a bit of lending or leasing inside the United States to enable these draft boards to function more smoothly. Their clerical staffs are inadequate and their facilities insufficient. The draft system should have the benefit of experienced personnel men attached to the regional or district appeals boards.

The President seemed to think that many appeals would be avoided if, as he said, more information were given to the local boards. It is doubtful whether he knows of the efforts of employers to inform the local boards and of the indifference of such boards, in many instances, to written or oral information furnished.

The President is right in saying the present arrangement lacks uniformity and that evidently more information is needed to act on deferment cases. It is true, of course, there has been some chiseling and some draft-dodging and even some untrue information given by employers, but in the main the local boards have been given no specific instructions by the national headquarters that they could apply uniformly. Also they haven't had the technical facilities to handle the occupational deferment problem. Maybe in the coming new plan something will be done about this.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

Two books in the phonographic field—

It was time someone produced a book of reminiscence about the business of recording music and the personalities involved, and probably F. W. Gaisberg is as good a man as could be found for the job. His "The Music Goes Round" is not at all a book for people interested only in the technical side of recording, nor is it particularly a book for musicians. It has to do with musicians largely, it is true, but in an anecdotal fashion that removes entirely that terrific bugaboo for the average man—to wit, the fear of seeming "long hair."

Gaisberg has been in the business 50 years. He started as Emile Berliner's assistant, and Berliner was the foundation of the modern phonograph and the man who perfected disc recording. In 1898 Gaisberg was sent abroad to trap the world's leading artists into making records, and that was the beginning of the Red Seal recordings which continue down to now.

Gaisberg became chief recorder for the British Gramophone Company, and loved and battled with Patti, with Melba, Chaliapin, Ruffo, Caruso, Kreisler, Paderewski, Tetrazzini—all that long list out of what W. J. Henderson used to call the roster of the golden age, with some justice. Later he traveled the world over, remembering most of what he saw, which was considerable. Then as now the companies demanded novelties, and it was Gaisberg who found them. He also managed a turn-about that betrayed a large number of the men who had grown up with the phonograph—when electrical recording came in, around 1925, a great many of the old timers were unable to change their course, but not Gaisberg. He started building up a brand new library of the world's greatest music. This is a really informative, really interesting memoir.

There is also a new edition of the now famous "Gramophone Shop Encyclopedia of Recorded Music," one of the most useful of all such works so war produced. It lists and evaluates by simple means all the worthwhile recordings of nearly all the world's truly great music, and in addition contains a little information about the composers. You don't read it—you consult it. Often, if you are a phonograph fan.

"Free French" Puzzles

Hopelessly lost in Sydney, Australia, a Free French soldier rejoiced that he had jotted down on a slip of paper the name of the house in which he was living while on leave. All he had to do was to ask an Australian soldier for directions and he handed one the slip of paper. The soldier looked at the note and read: "No Peddlers."

For using a dead man's food ration book, Charles McAleenan was fined $24 in Belfast, Northern Ireland.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Gradually the capital is assembling a number of little clues that may build up into a picture of how the United Nations intend to establish real freedom in those parts of the world which have suffered despotism and slavery.

The story starts with the signing of the Atlantic Charter and a little later, the signing of the joint statement of aims by leaders of the United Nations. It continues down through speeches and statements by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull. It takes in Wendell Willkie's speech after his globe-girdling flight and the President's comments on Willkie's speech.

The latest clue, and perhaps the most definite to date, was the President's speech on the seventh anniversary of the Philippine Commonwealth. The Atlantic Charter spoke of "respect for the rights of all people to choose their forms of government." The matter rested there for some time—until Willkie returned with word that the Far East, particularly China, was bewildered as to Anglo-American war aims. Many Orientals, Willkie said, have read the Atlantic Charter. "Rightly or wrongly," he continued, "they ask: what about a Pacific charter? what about a world charter?"

The President answered that one by stating that "the Atlantic Charter applies to all humanity," and was so called simply because it was signed at sea in the Atlantic.

Still unanswered, however, was the question which Willkie reported was causing the most uneasiness in China: "What about India?" The Chinese, he said, were particularly alarmed not at the British attitude, but at the fact that the U. S. failed to step in and mediate the Indian dispute.

Now comes Mr. Roosevelt's Philippine speech. It gives a strong suggestion of the way his thinking is running.

"I like to think," the President said, "that the history of the Philippine Islands in the last 44 years provides in a very real sense a pattern for the future of small nations and peoples of the world. It is a pattern of what men of good will look forward to in the future."

Who would Mr. Roosevelt include among his "men of good will?" Winston Churchill certainly. And here is what may be the tip-off on how men of good will plan to restore real popular rule to conquered Germany and her satellites, and perhaps how they plan to handle India and other colonial areas.

"But we must remember," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "that such a pattern is based on two important factors: one through the dissemination of education, the second is that there must be a period of training and ultimate independent sovereignty through practice of more and more self government."

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Nov. 21—Eloise Johnson and Robert Harp were in charge of the Youth Fellowship meeting in the Reformed Church Sunday evening.

Red Cross workers met in the local Fire Department rooms Tuesday to cut, pin, stitch and finish garments for which the Red Cross has indicated a need. Assignments come from headquarters in Kingston and the work here is under the supervision of Mrs. Charles Huntington. The rooms are open each Tuesday from 9 to 12 and a worker may stay as many hours as she can. Workers are needed. Materials may be taken home to sew if desired.

Robert E. Connolly of New Paltz was picked last week from a group of U. S. Coast Guard men to appear upon a radio quiz program with other servicemen representing the Army and Navy as well at Miami, Fla., and was happy to have won the award which was a silver identification bracelet from a jewelry firm in Fort Lauderdale. At the present time he is doing teletype work.

Ethel Hart and her aunt, Maude Constable, attended the graduation exercises of Miss Hart's brother, Second Lieutenant George A. Hart, from Officers' Training School at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, recently.

P.F.C. Joseph A. Linacre was home last week for a seven-day furlough. This was his first visit home since his induction into the service on May 21. His address is P.F.C. Joseph A. Linacre, Jr., (32341268) 77 Rnc. Troop, A.P.O. 77, Fort Jackson, S. C.

John Demskie, formerly of New Paltz, who came from his home in San Diego, Calif., a few weeks ago to visit friends here and his sisters and brothers in Kingston and Newburgh will soon return to the Pacific coast. While in New Paltz he helped his friends harvest their apples. He picked some two thousand bushels of apples on the Roelif E. DuBois farm during the seven weeks he was here. While here he received word of the marriage of his daughter, Helen, to a navy seaman in San Diego. Mr. Demskie is chaplain of the United States Spanish War Veterans of San Diego and during the four years he has been there he has officiated at 116 funerals.

Several days ago John Messmer summoned Assistant Deputy Sheriff Newkirk to help capture an ugly dog that had been running over his humus swamp. Their efforts were without success until Elting Polhemus came to their aid and lassoed the animal after which Sheriff Newkirk shot it.

An itemized report is given as follows for the sale of the blind in New Paltz, sponsored by the four churches: Dutch Reformed, $64.57; Methodist Church, $71.42; Episcopal Church, $29.05; Catholic Church, $129.83; Election Day, $12.13, making a total of $307.

Several members of the New Paltz Rifle Club, their wives and friends attended the Mid-Hudson Rifle League's annual banquet at Schoentag's Hotel in Saugerties recently. Following the dinner the group was entertained by an address and movies presented by Frank Kahrs of Remington Arms. Medals for high scores fired during this year's league matches were awarded to the following New Paltz marksmen; A. Paradies, R. Burton, R. (10x) Martin, E. Quick and F. Heinsohn. New Paltz Club meets every Monday evening at the New Paltz High School range.

Sergt. Theodore A. Roth, son of Louis Roth, Sr., of Forest Glen, was recently chosen to attend Officers' Training School at Camp Davis, North Carolina. Upon graduation the early part of next month he will be commissioned a second lieutenant.

No Christmas Party

Because of the war the Ellenville Noonday Club has decided not to hold its annual Christmas party this year.

Encourage your son or husband to increase his War Bond purchases through the Payroll Savings Plan where he works.

Visits Child Study Clubs in Ulster County

Miss Anne Kuhn, extension specialist in the family life department of the New York State College of Home Economics, visited the following child study clubs: Thursday afternoon, Kingston Child Study Club II at the home of Mrs. John Bott; Thursday evening the Rondout Study Club at the home of Mrs. Henry Sherman in Kerhonkson. On Friday afternoon the E. K. A. Child Study Club will meet for a luncheon discussion meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Davenport in Accord. In the evening the Shawangunk Child Study Club meets with Mrs. Lloyd Bell on Canal street, Ellenville.

Miss Kuhn received an A. B. degree from Wellesley College, M. A. and Ph. D. degrees in education from Yale University, and a certificate from the Frick Teachers' College, Pittsburgh, Pa., in public school teaching. She has travelled and visited educational centers in England, France and Germany. Since 1931 she has done nursery school and kindergarten critic teaching, state supervision of emergency nursery schools in Connecticut, teacher training and work in parent groups. Miss Kuhn's graduate work at Yale and recent experience in parent counseling has covered all phases of child development pertaining to the school age and adolescent, as well as the pre-school age child.

Within the past year, Miss Kuhn has served on a committee for the registration of trained volunteers in emergency child care in New Haven, Conn. This committee is affiliated with the state committee on child care and protection.

Miss Kuhn will return to the county on December 7 and 8 at which time she will visit the Lake Katrine Home Bureau, Accord Home Bureau family life groups and the Warchester Child Study Club.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Nov. 21—Hope Temple No. 80, Pythian Sisters, will meet Wednesday evening following the Thanksgiving service to be held in the Methodist Church. All members are urged to attend as the annual nomination of officers will take place. The hostesses for the social hour are Mrs. Charles Howe and Mrs. Lyman Ellsworth.

Mrs. DeWitt Shultis of Bearsville is spending a few days with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Mabie.

Mrs. H. C. Jump will entertain the Ever Ready Club at her home next Monday evening.

Frederick H. Clark, who has been on a six-day leave at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Clark, of Salem street, has returned to Philadelphia, Pa.

Corporal W. R. McConnell, 889th Guard Squadron, Elgin Field, Fla., formerly from Akron, Ohio, has returned to Elgin Field after spending a few days with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Percy McConnell.

Friday evening several from here attended the card party at the Central Fire Station, Kingston, sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Weiner Hose Co.

Junior Christian Endeavor at 11 o'clock; leader, Ellen Benton; topic, "Thanksgiving in Our Times." The Intermediate and Senior Christian Endeavor groups will not hold their meetings but as many as can are urged to attend the union Thanksgiving service in Ulster Park. Those wishing to go should be at church here at 7 o'clock. The union Thanksgiving service at the Ulster Park Reformed Church is to be at 7:30 with the Rev. Clarance E. Brown as speaker. The Port Ewen Thanksgiving service will be at the Methodist Church Wednesday evening at 7:30 with the Rev. William Barringer of Krumville speaking. The congregation is reminded to bring used clothing or toys for the Mission Box. Articles may be left at the parsonage or put in a box in the church vestibule. The Senior C. E. will hold a business meeting Monday evening at the hall.

Commissioned in Navy

Orville P. Bates, for the past 10 years vice-principal at the Ellenville High School, has received his commission as lieutenant, junior grade, in the Navy and was to leave this week to assume his duties. Mr. Bates graduated from Colgate University in 1929 and later took further courses at Syracuse University, at Cortland and at the New York State College for Teachers, where he received his M.A. degree in 1940. While at Ellenville, particularly in recent years, he has given much time and attention to matters of educational and vocational guidance. The Board of Education has granted him leave of absence during the period of his service with the Navy.

River Barges Will Carry Oil

Federal Craft Will Begin To Operate on the Ohio And Mississippi Soon.

KANSAS CITY. — The Federal Barge lines soon will be receiving converted river barges which will provide a carrying capacity of five million barrels of oil, Chester C. Thompson, president of the Inland Waterways corporation, announced here.

Putting these barges in operation, to run from the East Texas and Southern Louisiana oil field areas up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers to points for shipment east, will make up a large part of the shipping loss river traffic has had on account of the war, Mr. Thompson told members of the Mississippi Valley association at luncheon.

What this transportation will mean to the oil-scarce East was indicated when Mr. Thompson said the capacity of the average rail tank car is 200 barrels. One tow will haul as much petroleum as the average freight train, he said.

Will Relieve Shortage.

This inland transportation will help supplement the coastal traffic of tankers, lessened on account of submarine attacks on the Atlantic coast and in the Gulf of Mexico.

The railroads have done an excellent job, in Mr. Thompson's opinion, helping to relieve the shortage in the East, but they cannot continue this extra burden and fulfill all the other demands of the war effort without extra help. The protected Mississippi route thus will contribute much to the war effort.

Even wooden barges are being converted for the transportation of oil, he said. The conversion is being financed by the defense plant corporation, with some of the work being done by the Darby corporation in Kansas City.

River traffic, normally 55 per cent downstream and 45 per cent upstream, already is 85 per cent northbound. This costs 2½ times as much to handle as downstream haul.

The downstream movement of grain, for export to foreign countries, has been lost on account of the war. Likewise, bulk shipments destined for the West coast through the Panama canal were shut off even before Pearl Harbor.

Economy of Service.

Government restrictions on warehousing have curtailed other sources of traffic such as sugar, Mr. Thompson said.

"The economy of our service is the movement of commodities in large volume for stock piling or warehousing," Mr. Thompson said. "When advance supplies of sugar jobbers were restricted to 30 days, naturally we could no longer take care of that business."

Steel tonnage likewise had slackened on account of the immediate demands by processors on the mills, he pointed out. A big source of business now is of bulk sulphur, from Texas and Louisiana upstream to the consumer industries.

Missouri river traffic has been the biggest disappointment of the wartime era, Mr. Thompson said, but minimum weekly service between Kansas City and St. Louis has been maintained since early March and will be maintained "until the ice chases us out."

A glowing post-war prospect was painted by Mr. Thompson however. This country, he said, will be the only one with its productive resources largely intact after the war. Thus it will be producing and manufacturing for the entire world. This presents an excellent prospect for river traffic, in his opinion.

Briton's Mail From Front Gets Home One War Late

LONDON.—Twenty-seven years ago a field stretcher-bearer, Frank Gumm, of the royal army medical corps, lying wounded at a base hospital in France, sent a post card to his mother saying, "Getting better. Don't worry."

It was delivered to his 84-year-old mother recently through the regular channels of the post office.

Frank's post card forecast the state of things to come quite correctly—he did recover and at present he is assistant manager of a navy, army and air force canteen somewhere in Britain.

Texas Man's Guinea Pig Business Growing Fast

DALLAS, TEXAS. — William T. Hamilton went into business with two productive units two years ago in his garage.

Now he's asking that zoning regulation be changed so he can put his rapidly expanding industry into a larger building.

He raises guinea pigs.

Bone of Contention

BRANTFORD, ONT.—The dogs of Brantford liked the flavor of the plastic license tags substituted by the city council for metal ones so much that they ate 'em. Now the council is looking for nonedible plastic tags.

Jail Hash Costly

RENO.—Reno's city council looked at last month's bill of $500 for feeding jail prisoners—and asked the judge to see if the inmates couldn't be hurried through a bit faster.

Food Belt Planned

Miles of vegetables—85 of them—have been planted at Opiki, New Zealand, to supply the army's mess tables. The project, under direction of the New Zealand Department of Agriculture, will include 21 miles of lettuce, 15 miles of carrots, nine miles of beets, 25 miles of cabbage—and 15 miles of spring onions.

Proclamation

Mayor William F. Edelmuth today issued the following proclamation:

WHEREAS, The American Jewry is making available to the Allied Forces in Palestine, the produce from thousands of acres of farming lands to help keep their vast armies supplied to defeat the Nazis and Japanese, and

WHEREAS, The Jewish people of the City of Kingston are making vital contributions to the war effort both by manpower and financial aid, and,

WHEREAS, The Jewish National Fund is now in need of support from the citizens of this country, in order to carry on this work,

NOW THEREFORE, I, WILLIAM F. EDELMUTH, do hereby declare the week of November 23rd as Jewish National Fund Tag Day.

Given under my hand and seal, this 21st day of November, 1942.

WILLIAM F. EDELMUTH,
Mayor.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Nov. 21—The latest men to pass the physical examinations here are: W. B. Ritterbusch, John S. Stowell, Walter L. Angevine and Orville Wolven.

Considerable interest is being shown here in the matter of the replacement of the Dr. Downer memorial tree. It has been suggested that this should be done in time for the Christmas festivities.

Several real estate transactions have gone through during the past week, together with a number of changes in business locations here. Doris Lee has purchased the Craigmont property, the former residence of Miss Alice Wardwell. The purchase was made from Joseph Craigen and the realtor was George Neher. Mr. and Mrs. Fiolic have moved into the Longendyke house, formerly occupied by William C. Wilber. A portion of the property is the shoe shop occupied and operated by Ross Pigliari. Ross will move his shoe repairing business to the vacant room adjacent to the Woodstock bakery. This will probably be done about December 1. Mr. Fiolic, who has successfully conducted an art business here for the past two summers will use the two buildings on the property for the use of the antique store and the exhibition of paintings.

John A. Burnside has just completed 70 years with a soap and candle firm in Belfast, Northern Ireland, and is still busy as chief salesman.

Bicycle Safety Guide For School Children

Chief of Police Charles Phinney announced today that he would shortly distribute through the city's schools to all students riding bicycles an illustrated book issued in the interest of safe bicycle riding.

The police chief said that some 30 firms and individuals in Kingston had contributed the sum of $250 with which to purchase these books, and he urges that the parents of the students also read the books carefully, and advise their children to follow the instructions for safe riding contained in the book.

This book is profusely illustrated with pictures showing the dangers of unsafe riding practice. The book is titled "Watch for Your Life" and is a complete bicycle safety guide.

Moose Lodge to Hold Initiation on Sunday

The members of Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose, will confer the initiatory degree upon a large class of candidates Sunday, November 22, at the lodge hall. The degree will be exemplified by the members of the lodge degree team composed of Charles M. Lord, Joseph F. Ross, Jr., Anthony Erena, Joseph Fabiano, Anthony Slezak and Jesse Haffen. This team has represented the local lodge at Schenectady, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and several other cities throughout the state and have been commended on various occasions for their outstanding degree work. Invitations have been extended to lodges in the Hudson valley and indications point to a large gathering of members and their friends to witness the performance.

Following the degree a buffet supper will be served and music has been secured for dancing. Effordts have been made to obtain several prominent men in Moose circles to address the newly inducted class of candidates.

How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

BY John Barclay

AMERICA'S HOME HEATING EXPERT

Poor Heat — Cellar Complaint

JUST about this time during the heating season, the fire appears to be sluggish with resultant poor heat in the living quarters. As a rule, the coal is blamed for this condition. Yet it may be the same coal that gave good heat in the earlier part of the heating season. The fire has been going for quite some time now. Every time the grates were shaken, quite an amount of fly ash was carried upward through the fuel bed by the draft action. Large amounts of this fly ash may have been trapped in the fuel bed itself. This condition is known as a "dirty fire" and results in sluggish fuel bed conditions.

Burn that fire out and slowly build it up again with fresh coal. You'll be surprised at the improved results.

Then too, there may be quite an accumulation of dirt in the flue passes: Take the little hoe that came with the heater and scrape that accumulation away. Better still, contact your local fuel merchant and have him vacuum the furnace.

Tap the smokepipe that leads into the chimney. If it sounds solid, there may be an accumulation of fly ash in it. As a last resort—and many troubles are found here—pull the smokepipe away from the chimney. Right at this point the accumulation of fly ash may have nearly filled the end of the pipe.

And don't forget the ashpit. It serves two very definite purposes:

1. It is a space provided under the grates to receive the ashes.
2. It receives the air from the cellar and helps to distribute it uniformly to all parts of the fuel bed.

It can be readily seen, therefore, that if the ashpit is allowed to fill up and the accumulated ash remain there for any length of time, that the purpose of the ashpit as a distributor of air is defeated. This results in the fire burning poorly and unevenly. Many times the grates become overheated, become warped or even break. So keep the ashpit clean at all times.

Don't "strangle" the fire. Many cellars are too well sealed in the winter time. Provide some means to permit fresh air to enter so the fire can "breathe."

And last but not least, do not forget the dampers. Many poor heat complaints are registered because of a lack of the turn damper. Many times, even if a turn damper is installed it is opened too wide causing the same type of complaint. If one or both of the conditions above exist, make sure you have means for controlling the draft that flows through the heater. If too much air passes through the fuel bed, an excess air condition exists. The heat, instead of being used to give one a comfortable temperature upstairs is used instead to heat this extra cold air. This is wasted up the chimney. Make sure the turn damper is used correctly. It is the "throttle" of the heating plant. If one wishes to burn coal faster, open this damper slightly. If there is no necessity, because of weather conditions, to burn the coal as fast, close down on the position of this damper. Correct operation of this throttle will give more "useful" heat upstairs. You will find by observing these simple rules that your furnace will do a much better job directly resulting in more comfortable heat. (18)

Willie Pep's Half-Punch Upsets Chalky Wright

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Whoa, Mr. Henderson

Newcastle, Ind. — In Sulphur Springs, near here, chickens sold for $50 each, five gallons of motor oil brought $50, milk was $32 a quart, coffee $40 a pound, and a 24-pound sack of flour cost $249.

But stand back, Mr. Henderson—the articles were donated to the Parent-Teachers' Association and auctioned off to war bond purchasers, who paid $2,285.

Game Comes to Hunter

Newport, Pa.—An automobile accident paralyzed Sportsman David Foose's legs, but not his love for hunting.

Sitting in a wheel chair on his back porch, a gun in his lap, Foose called for his dog. The dog turned up a rabbit, drove it within range, and Foose fired. And the Fooses had rabbit for dinner.

Rainy Day Item

Kansas City—For years amateur weather observers have insisted it has rained more in southern, residential Kansas City than it has at the official observatory downtown.

Four months ago six rain gauges were installed over the city to obtain figures for storm sewers. Sure enough, they showed from three to seven inches more rainfall than the official gauge.

One explanation: Southern Kansas City is on a hill. It sometimes rains more on high ground, official weathermen admitted.

Indian Sign

Gallup, N. M.—Indian Commissioner John Collier supervised an election of a council chairman, but 1,200 Navajos didn't get to vote.

They were too busy working at the New Bellemont ordnance plant, New Flagstaff, Ariz., to take time out for tribal politics.

Suicidal Oysters

Seattle—Gourmets may soon do without the dainty and succulent Olympia oyster, Dr. Trevor Kincaid of the University of Washington zoology department believes.

The oysters have quit reproducing—a plain case of race suicide. Kincaid thinks climate and water temperatures may have something to do with it.

Literate Termites

Berkeley, Calif.—E. J. Richardson, mailing superintendent of the University of California Press, wonders if termites can read.

Richardson had his mailing room remodeled and painted to get rid of the wood chewers. But a new crew of termites moved in. They passed up the newly painted wood and consumed part of a booklet.

The booklet's title: "The Control of Termites by the College of Agriculture."

Army Obtains Mule From Annapolis

Regular Mascots to Miss Army-Navy Classic

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—Next Saturday will be a great day for one of the mules from the barn of Farmer Bausams near Annapolis.

An ordinary mule on other days, this particular long-eared animal has been chosen by the U. S. military academy to serve as the Cadets' mascot at the Army-Navy football game. Mr. Jackson and Pancho, the regular Army mascots, will miss the classic as will the corps of Cadets and everybody else living more than ten miles away from Annapolis.

Farmer Bausams' lucky mule resides only two miles from the stadium in which the game will be played.

Hartford Boxer's Pilot Out-Foxes 'Smarter' Wright; 54th Win in Row for Pep

By SID FEDER

New York, Nov 21 (AP)—No one did a hand-stand in Madison Square Garden's ring, but Willie Pep succeeded Chalky Wright on the world featherweight throne today strictly "on his head."

Now, this is not to say that the greatest crowd ever to see a featherweight title tussle sat in on an exhibition of gymnastics last night. But it was simply by fighting Wright the only way the aging Los Angeles negro can be beaten—by using his head all the way—that the Pep kid is the new boss of the 127-pounders today.

Willie is a 20-year-old ex-bootblack out of Hartford, who admits he hasn't been around long enough to have read the entire book about the beak-busting business. So Willie calls his manager, Lou Viscusi "Mr. Brains" at all times, and it was only by the battle plan Lou drew up that the Hartford jumping-Jack brought the bauble back to Connecticut for the first time since the hey-days of Kid Kaplan and Bat Battalino in the late 20's.

Half-Punch Specialty

To say Pep used his head all the way is not to imply that slippery Willie had a glove on his noggin and worked it as a third hand. In fact, about the only weapon he used, with the exception of a dozen or so right hands that he let go (probably by accident) through the entire 15 rounds, was a half-punch, half push left jab that bounced off Chalky's face as if it owned it.

The Chalk, you know, is regarded as one of the "smarter" fighters in the business today. He's been around so long he's acquainted with the score all the way, and usually makes young fellows fight just the way he wants them to. But Viscusi has had two tusslers tangle with Chalky before this, and knew somewhat more than one-and-one about Wright's way of doing business. So he told Willie to just "stick and move." And for 15 rounds Pep did just that.

He "stuck" with his jab from start to finish, and he moved so much and so often that some folks thought he had borrowed the bicycle on which Bob Pastor pedalled to escape Joe Louis for ten rounds a few years back. Pep insisted this was not so. But, at any rate, it befuddled the Chalk.

Now, this may not have made for the bloodiest brawl in the book—as a matter of fact, with Chalky missing and Willie backpedalling it grew considerably boring at times—but it proved highly entertaining to the crowd of 19,521, who tossed $71,868.70 into Mike Jacobs' money boxes. Several thousand of the boys and girls were from Connecticut and were seeing Willie home. These totals, incidentally, went to make up the all-time high turnout for a featherweight fuss, out-shining by quite a bit the $63,656 paid to see Benny Bass and Tony Canzoneri clout each other around 14 years ago.

54th Straight Win

Yet, now that Willie has the championship—this fight was his 54th straight victory in a two-year professional career—the featherweight follies are still playing the two-a-day circuit. For Pep still only owns the half of the crown recognized by New York state's athletic commission and its affiliates. Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson has the half which has the National Boxing Association blessing. And there's no immediate prospect for a shindig to iron it out, for Viscusi says Pep has to be on hand for the parade Hartford is tossing in his honor today, and then will have to rest up from the effort.

Which was probably the best laugh-getter of the night, unless you want to argue about the conversation between Chalky and his trainer, Harry Gordon, during the minute's rest between the sixth and seventh rounds.

"Chalky, there's more than $70,000 in the house," said Gordon.

"Now that," replied the Chalk, "Makes mighty nice conversation."

American Division Scores

Emil Boessneck captured high triple honors in the Y.M.C.A. American Division last night at the "Y" alleys by fashioning out a 537 triple for the Pontiacs who lost two games to the Ballantines. Boessneck featured with scores of 172, 178 and 187. Bruck of the winners had a 497 series and high single of 195 in the match.

Bill Brady of the "Y" Couples helped that club to win two from Wonderly as he highlighted his team's victory with a high single of 191 and high series of 532. His other marks were 167 and 174. Watrous had a 517 triple for the losers.

The final match found The Freeman No. 1 squad capturing two decisions from Electrol. Jordan of the losers posted high triple of 530 on scores of 175, 181 and 174. Jack Hartman of The Freeman team registered high single of 196 while Roland Post had high triple for the winners with his 522.

Booster League Results

Egbert "Joe" Maxwell took a hand in highlighting the Booster League matches again at the Central Rec alleys last night when he blasted out a sizzling 245 single game and a high triple of 567 for Greenes who won two games from Worfs. Maxwell also posted a 188 and 134. H. Letus had a 461 series for Worfs.

F. McElrath also did some fine pinning when he grabbed a 569 series and featured that count with singles of 203, 206 and 160. D. Williams had 535 for Jakes as that club won all three from Hercules. C. Horne posted a 454 triple for the powdermakers.

Piepers continued their amazing streak with three more triumphs over the Unknowns. Bob Tierney rolled high single in the match with his 197. K. Hammond of the Unknowns had high series of 497 on 145, 168 and 184. J. Heidcamp's 465 topped the Pieper squad.

Although the I.M.M. bowlers captured both high single and high triple, the Eichlers won two games. J. Lifshin had a 506 triple while also posting high single of 191. Vernon Engleman's 444 was tops for the winners.

Electrol League Matches

Johnny Murphy's scores featured the Electrol Bowling League activities at the Central Recreation alleys Friday night when he pounded out a scorching 229 single and 567 triple for the Dispatchers who won three from the Office bowlers. Murphy opened with a 168 and made 170 in this second game. His third game of 229 cemented an 828 team single.

Harry Re of the Office bowlers came near upsetting the cart for Murphy when he blasted a sizzling 224 single and wound-up with a 563 triple.

Mike Provenzano, who usually grabs the headlines in this circuit, had to take a back seat for a change last night. But despite this he rolled a 554 triple and posted a high single of 197 in the match between Test Lab and the Accounters. Mike also bowled 176 and 181. The Testers won two games. W. Porch had 508 series for the losers.

Joe Heidcamp paced the Turrets to three triumphs over the Automatics with a 524 triple and 173 single game. Mark Weil of the same club posted high single of 184. C. Coutant's 451 series was high for the losers.

Bob Vincent did his best to bring the Apprentices to a couple of wins over the Grinders but his high triple of 548 failed to do the trick. Bob had scores of 189, 193 and 166. R. Cord of the Grinders registered high single of 198 in this match as the Grinders won two decisions.

The Maintenance team won all three from the Inspections. Frank Cirone's 189 single and 482 triple were high in the match. A. Ziegler of the Inspections, posted 417.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Willie Pep, 125½, Hartford, Conn., outpointed Chalky Wright, 125¾, Los Angeles, (15, featherweight championship, New York version.)

Boston—Al (Bummy) Davis, 148, Brooklyn, knocked out Red Doty, 148, Hartford, Conn., (8).

Philadelphia—Jim Elliott, 160, Baltimore, outpointed Frank Lowery, 152, Philadelphia, (8).

Girl Wrestler

Mary Neiter, a professional wrestler, is working as an electrician's helper at the Moore shipyard in Oakland, California, and has issued a blanket challenge to meet anyone at the yard, man or woman, in a wrestling match. She says she just wants to keep her hand in at her old profession.

Bears Are Eager To Keep Perfect Record for Season

Great Chicago Eleven Will Battle Detroit Lions; Washington to Play Brooklyn Dodgers

Chicago, Nov. 21 (Special)—National Football League teams start down the home stretch tomorrow knee deep in the stuff from which upsets are made. Four games comprise the day's schedule. In three of them teams which apparently cannot lose oppose teams which are given little or no chance to win. The results might easily be cataclysmic.

Detroit's Lions, according to their coach, Bull Karcis, could hardly wait for another shot at the Chicago Bears after holding the champions to 16 to 0 on November 1. They get the opportunity tomorrow. Detroit has yet to win a league game. The Bears have yet to lose a game, either in the league or out, and will be after their 20th in a row.

Dodgers Meet Redskins

Down in Washington, where Sammy Baugh and associated Redskins have convinced everyone except the mathematicians that the eastern division race is over, the Brooklyn Dodgers will attempt to salvage something from a season which promised to be their best but has turned out to be their worst.

Grandstand crystal-gazers, who were certain a week ago that the lure of an extra $125,000 playoff gate would result in a Parker victory over the Bears, see nothing but another Steeler triumph when Jimmy Conzelman takes his crippled Chicago Cardinals into Pittsburgh for the contest rained out on September 27.

Green Bay rounds out the day's schedule by taking its famed aerial circus into the Polo Grounds, where Cecil Isbell has never had a good day either as a collegian or a professional. There it meets the New York Giants, against whom Don Hutson has never scored a touchdown.

Although the stage is perfectly appointed for upsets, it is not likely that the Bears will stumble around any at Detroit. They already have enough reasons for "running up a hill" on the Lions. Intensely proud, the champions never quite recovered from having their record spoiled by the Green Bay defeat last year. They are planning a perfect season this fall. Criticism of their eagerness and recklessness in a game has served only to make them more determined. And if all this isn't enough, there is the matter of making good for Lieut. Comdr. George Halas, who left it squarely up to them when he hauled out to join the armed forces. Moreover, large crowds always excite the Bears and Detroit expects tomorrow's turnout to be the largest of the season in the motor city.

Injured Players Rest

Coach Ray Flaherty will attempt to skin by with reserves against Brooklyn. The Redskin regulars need rest, especially with the playoffs against the Bears coming up. Dick Todd, the scamper-back who shares full back duties with Andy Farkas, will not be used tomorrow or in the final game of the regular schedule against Detroit next week. He suffered a shoulder injury against New York and every care will be exercised to have him ready for the playoff.

Injuries also have beset the Packers, but they go east ready in all departments, especially passing. Isbell and Hutson were bruised in the Bear game, but their injuries were not aggravated and if anything they should be in better shape this week. New York also feels better fortified this week, now that Tuffy Leemans has fully recovered from the concussion suffered several weeks ago.

These are the days when one likes to recall that a horse would always start on a cold morning.

A wise fellow stepping up to the bus as it stopped the other morning said to the driver:

Wise Fellow — Well, Noah, you've got here. Is the Ark full?

Motorman—Nope, we need one more monkey. Come on in.

Owners of unsafe cars are being asked to scrap them.

How about scrapping the unsafe drivers also?

Dad—Did you have the car out last night, son?

Son—Yes, Dad, I took some of the boys to High School.

The tires on some automobiles are more valuable than the car.

During the traffic rush, two officers, noticing a young woman who was driving dangerously, shot ahead of her and drew up their car alongside, so that the culprit had to stop:

Officer (sarcastically) — Excuse me, young lady, do you know anything about driving a car?

Bright Young Thing—Of course. What's your trouble?

There are people who expect to use every gasoline coupon in their ration books and there are others who are conserving wherever possible.

The Model—Mr. Smires wants me for a fine picture he's going to paint, "Cleopatra and the Snake."

Her Rival—Indeed! And who is he going to get for Cleopatra?

War bonds are as safe as U. S. currency.

It is a dangerous war. There is no assurance yet that we will win it. And if you don't win a war you lose it.

Husband (rushing home one day recently)—Hurrah, darling. I've made dollars today in a big deal. Now you can have some decent clothes for Christmas.

Wife—Indeed, I'll do no such a thing. I'll have the kind other women wear.

To those families who have received a message from the government that their son is missing:
We think of you so often, but more than ever now,
Wishing too, with all our heart, that we could help somehow.
We only hope the courage so typical of you
Will strengthen and sustain you, in all you're going through.

Mrs. Jones (kindly)—Hello, dear, how's the pain in the neck?

Mrs. Green—He's out playing golf.

Wasted money is wasted lives . . . Don't waste precious lives . . . Every dollar you can spare should be used to buy war bonds . . . Buy your ten per cent every pay day.

Mrs. Davis—Why do you keep looking down all the time?

Mr. Davis—The doctor told me to watch my stomach.

A banker got up at a banquet and read a poem that he had written. It was terrible—and nothing was done about it. But just let a poor poet write a bum check and see what happens.

Mabel—How in the world does she ever get any money out of that husband of hers?

Harriet—Oh, she just tells him she is going back to her mother and he hands her train fare.

Long absence from work, persistent tardiness, misbehavior, or other delinquencies may subject a war worker in Palestine to fine, imprisonment or both.

The Australian lyre-bird is so named for the remarkable plumage of its tail, resembling a Greek lyre.

Promises Probe of Blackout Violations

Chief Air Raid Warden Douglas G. Miller of Newburgh has promised an investigation into charges that enforcement of State War Council's blackout regulations has not been strict enough in Newburgh.

Complaints that Newburgh civilian protection authorities have been too lenient with blackout violators were filed with Mr. Miller by his aides at a meeting in his office in Recreation Park on Thursday night.

In a summary of the results of the surprise practice blackout demonstration there on November 12, Mr. Miller said that 52 violations were reported by the city's air raid wardens. He declared the names of these violators had been turned over to Peter Cantline, director of Civilian Protection, "for such action as he deems necessary."

Legion Auxiliary Report Submitted

Official Report

The Americal Legion Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting in its rooms on West O'Reilly street Friday evening with the president, Mrs. Culver Ten Broeck, presiding. Reports from the district conference in Albany were given. High praise was given State President Mrs. Bell Oxholm. She truly is an inspired leader of our great organization.

December is set aside by the Auxiliary as "Rehab" month. Plans were made for our part of this work. We plan to make our pilgrimage to Castle Point if we can get transportation and if not to send our gifts and messages of cheer. Sunday, December 13, is the day set aside for this trip. We want to take homemade cookies again as part of our gift. Will all those who can donate some of these contact Mrs. Harry Whitney of 153 Elmendorf street, who is the chairman. We voted to give $10 to the "Gift Shop" for the hospitalized veterans. At Albany it was announced that two ambulances had been purchased and would soon be given to the Navy with the funds donated by the local units. Mrs. Woodard, the child welfare chairman, reported $28.98 spent during the month to aid the children of our veterans' families.

Our Juniors are busy collecting silk stockings, match book covers, etc. Miss Margaret McManus, the chaplain, reported sending two sympathy cards and two bouquets of flowers during the month. Mrs. Hilda Sills, the Americanism chairman, gave a splendid report of the work in this department. Our members are marching in the parade which escort our boys to the trains when they leave for camp. She urged other members to come out and march also, so as to show the boys that we are behind them always. We plan to carry our banner and colors at future parades. She read a poem written by Dorothy Deyo, age 12, of one of our city schools on "Thanksgiving." Dorothy's idea was that she would think more of giving thanks and going to church on that day this year than of eating turkey, etc., a thought it would be well for us all to remember.

We are still collecting coupons and old records. Mrs. M. J. Dulin is the coupon chairman. We voted to donate $5 to the Red Cross Kit Fund and $5 to help in the mayor's Christmas work. We plan to send cards at Christmas time to the "boys" of the Legion and Auxiliary families. Anyone who knows such boys are asked to notify Mrs. TenBroeck or Mrs. Hilda Sills as soon as possible. We don't want to omit anyone and we do not have all the names at present, so please help us make this a complete list. We now have 68 members—a good start but still far from 100 per cent.

After our business meeting we joined the Legion in listening to a most inspiring address given by Andre Cervoisi of Holland on "Egypt." We all felt that it was up to us to do more in our comfortable homes here when our boys were doing so much.

Censor Delights to O. K.

From a friend in France a member of the Fighting French Forces in England received a letter which denounced Laval, ending with these words: "I am afraid this letter never will pass the censor." The censor penned the following on the letter: "I am of exactly the same opinion."

Sweatshops Padlocked

Operators of sweatshops in Mexico City are facing a vigorous government drive which has resulted in imposition of fines and the padlocking of many businesses. The sweatshop in Mexico is rarely under one roof, the garments being farmed out to women for work at home.

Farmers of England are urging that the National Farmers' Union appoint a full-time director at a salary "not exceeding $40,000 a year."

Pvt. Clayton Ticefelt stationed at Drew Field, Tampa, Fla., was inducted into the army, September 15.

Local Death Record

Stricken by a heart attack, Mrs. Edward Wyms, 48, died suddenly on Thursday morning in her home on Ridge road, Marlborough. Born in New York, she was formerly Winifred McDevitt, a daughter of the late Patrick and Roseanna McCullough McDevitt, and had lived in Marlborough for about 30 years. She was a member of St. Mary's Church. Funeral services were held this morning with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, Marlborough.

Mrs. Emma O. Koeppen, wife of William J. Koeppen, died Friday evening following a short illness. She was the daughter of the late Emil and Adeline Lieske Otto. She was a loving and devoted wife and mother and a faithful member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and the Ladies' Aid Society. Her kindness and willingness to assist anyone in sickness or trouble will long live in the hearts of all who knew her. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Miss Helen B. Koeppen, and two brothers, Emil and Louis Otto, of this city. The funeral will be held from her late home, No. 9 Stanley street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

With nearly several hundred mourners attending, a high Mass of requiem for the repose of the soul of Mrs. William L. Morris, was offered in St. Joseph's Church this morning by the Rev. Edmund E. Burke. Music for the Mass was provided by the Children's Choir, with Mrs. Frank Rafferty presiding at the console of the organ. Paul Purcell was the soloist. Mrs. Morris, who died here last Tuesday night, was well known throughout this locality, and hundreds of people called at the family home, 21 Downs street to pay their respects. The Catholic Daughters of America, met at the home on Friday evening and under the direction of the Grand Regent, Mrs. Julia Kane, recited the Rosary. Prayers for the intention of Mrs. Morris, were also said by the Rev. John D. Simmons, in a visit to the home. Floral tributes and Mass cards were received in memory of Mrs. Morris, in large quantities, testifying the admiration and respect that was held for her. Among those present at the Mass was a delegation of the Catholic Daughters of America. The blessings of the church at the grave were imparted by Father Simmons. The casket bearers were William Lunney, John Halwick, Harold Sanford, James Burns, Louis Sapp and Edward Ryan.

To Supply Pulpit

The Rev. Robert Baines, for several years past local preacher in charge of the Methodist churches at East Kingston, Glasco and Centerville, has given up the work and moved with his family to Poughkeepsie, where he is employed in a war industry. The pulpits of the three churches will be temporarily supplied by the Rev. James H. Russell of the Saugerties Congregational Church until such time as a supply pastor can be secured by Dr. A. G. Carroll, superintendent of the Kingston District.

University Students Want Education, 'Not Veneer'

Unlike the college youth of a generation ago, comparatively few today go to college for the sake of veneer, says Dr. Junius L. Meriam, professor of education at the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"This is indicated by the large number of young men and women seriously engaged in outside work. It is not only the war that has changed the point of view of a large percentage of students, but a general realization of personal responsibilities and an awakened American spirit."

Dr. Meriam is proud of having worked as a janitor during his college days at Oberlin. At the same time he was a student chaplain in the boarding house. "I prayed and dusted," he says. "Grace at meals was obligatory, by which I received half my board free.

"Today we see girl students taking care of children, doing housework, and holding clerical jobs in order to receive an education. There are not many of the butterfly type."

Allies Advance In North Africa

that Rommel managed to escape the British trap at Bengasi, Gen. Sid Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters reported that the eighth army's advance forces were giving Rommel's legions, exhausted by a 700-mile retreat across the desert, no rest.

"Forward troops were in contact with the enemy in the neighborhood of Agedabia," the British command said.

"Bengasi was occupied by our forces yesterday morning."

Hitler's headquarters acknowledged yesterday that Rommel had fled Bengasi without a fight, abandoning his last chance of escape by sea east of Tripoli, 400 miles away.

On the Tunisian battlefront, both allies and Axis were rushing tank, troop and plane reinforcements into the struggle for the two key cities of Bizerte, once France's second biggest naval base, and Tunis.

"Allied armored troops are pouring across the Tunisian border," said a broadcast from American-occupied Algiers.

"Allied parachutists are proceeding eastward without making contact with this enemy," it added, indicating that the sky troops rapidly were seizing airports and other strategic centers as the Germans pulled back toward the coast on the Gulf of Gabes.

Berlin Radio Report

The Berlin radio said Nazi forces in Tunisia were being rapidly strengthened, with both troops and tanks transported by plane, and declared that Axis dive bombers were pounding allied columns.

Hitler also was apparently attempting to move in reinforcements by sea. The British reported that R.A.F. bombers flying from Malta attacked an Axis ship off Cape Bon, Tunisia, and raked it with cannon fire. Follow-up attacks by R.A.F. torpedo planes left the vessel sinking.

The British radio reported that cries of "peace" greeted King Vittorio Emanuele when he went to see the bombed ruins of Genoa and Milan recently and demonstrations by the war-weary Italians led to dismissal of the city's governor.

Other major developments:

France—Living up to expectations, France's pro-Nazi dictator Pierre Laval came out openly for an alliance with Germany and declared new volunteer legions would be raised to answer "the fresh insults which France has had to suffer" from the allied campaign in North Africa.

"We are again seeking reconciliation and an entente with Germany," Laval said, and strutting his new powers of life and death over the conquered third republic, the swarthy little collaborationist took a page from Hitler with the declaration:

"I will never accept for my country a parliamentary government as we had before."

There was no indication whether Laval was preparing to plunge France into a formal state of war against the allies, but perhaps significantly in his talk of raising volunteer legions he did not mention the existing French army regiments or the Toulon-based French fleet.

Russia—Soviet headquarters reported today that the Red armies stormed fortified heights in the Caucasus and on the Stalingrad front, dislodging the Germans, and inflicted bloody new losses.

Attacking at night, Russian troops captured a strongly-defended height southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus and killed 300 Nazis, a Soviet communique said, when in another night assault the defenders of Stalingrad drove the Germans from a hilltop and killed 400 enemy soldiers.

The Russians now were displaying sharply increased aggressiveness in all major sectors, but there still was no sign of a full-fledged counteroffensive as winter hardened its grip on the long battlefront.

Cries of 'Peace' in Italy

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Cries of "peace" greeted King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy when he went to see bombed ruins of Genoa and Milan recently and the demonstrations led to the dismissal of the city's governor, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by CBS. The broadcast did not indicate how its information was received.

Oyster Shell Mounds Show Indians Were Fond of 'Em

September with its "r" and its oysters brings back to the menu one of the earliest American foods. Indians ate so many oysters that their discarded shells form long mounds, now grass-covered, along the shores of most of the coastal states. Mounds of this sort, some 15 feet high, cover 30 acres in the Popes Creek area of Chesapeake bay's Maryland margin.

Algonquian braves especially liked oysters to piece out their meat diet as a change from the corn and squash grown by the squaws. All of the catch not eaten fresh was dried, smoked, and strung on slender twigs, to be carried to inland camps. Some of the smoked oysters were bartered to white settlers, according to the National Geographic society.

The ship Sarah Constant, bearing North America's first permanent English colonists to Jamestown in the spring of 1607, anchored at the entrance to Chesapeake bay, where the voyagers promptly began catching and devouring the "very large and delicate" oysters of the region. Later, when the young Virginia colony was in danger of being starved out, some of the settlers moved temporarily downstream from Jamestown to the Chesapeake oyster beds, where sea food was plentiful. Since then, Chesapeake bay has become famous as the world's leading natural oyster bar.

Plans Being Set to Use Colombia's Rubber Crop

Colombia's jungle hinterland, where the United States is reported discussing plans for a large wild-rubber supply, comprises some 100,000 square miles in the southeastern quarter of the South American republic, says the National Geographic society.

Preliminary surveys have shown a vast rubber supply, neglected because it is inaccessible. High coastal mountains make highway construction into the interior costly, and adequate supplies from other sources before the war made such highway expenditures uneconomical. Rivers in the region are not navigable by large craft.

Other obstacles to the development of this equatorial area were excessive heat, diseases common to tropical swamplands, mosquitoes, electric eels, cannibal fish, alligators, and other wild life, and unfriendly native Indians.

Colombia's rubber-growing region is adjacent to the original home of rubber in Brazil. Brazil is estimated to have as many as 300 million wild-rubber trees. There, also, transportation has presented a problem.

Colombia's rubber development plan does not include the building of roads, but air fields. Airplanes will carry the product to seaports.

Latin-American Engineers

Eight young engineers from as many Latin-American nations recently completed a year of work and study with the Rural Electrification administration of the U. S. department of agriculture. Upon their return home they will tell officials, rural audiences, and their colleagues in universities about U. S. farmers' use of electricity to save time and energy and to produce more foods needed to win the war against the Axis.

During their stay here, the eight from Argentina, Chile, Columbia, Uruguay, Honduras, Mexico, Peru and Guatemala, told members and officials of rural electric co-operatives about the progress of electrification in their own countries, thus helping to create a new bond of good will between rural populations of the Americas.

Sponsoring the program with the department of agriculture are the state department, the office of the co-ordinator of Inter-American affairs and the governments of the various nations represented. Success of the REA training program has inspired two additional nations—Panama and Cuba—to send representatives for the 1942-43 season.

To avoid buying rushes, New Zealand introduced clothing rationing overnight.

Kingston Post to Honor Members of Local Draft Board

Friday evening at a meeting of Kingston Post of the American Legion it was decided to tender a testimonial dinner to the members of the Kingston draft board early in December. The meeting was presided over by Vice Commander Ernest Croonquist in the absence of Commander William Mellert, who was in New York to say good-bye to his son who has enlisted in the U. S. Navy.

The Rev. Clarance E. Brown was elected chaplain of the post to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Lester C. Elmendorf, who is now working in New York. The post voted to donate $10 to the Red Cross toward the kit bag fund, and also $10 to the Community Christmas Cheer Committee.

Commander Mellert's written report of the Victory Ball held earlier in the month showed it had been a success both financially and socially.

Following the business meeting an address was delivered by Andre Cenvorst, Jr., a former resident of Holland, who is now a resident of Kingston. He told of the invasion of Holland by the Germans, and also touched on the war in Egypt, illustrating his talk with motion pictures of Egypt.

75 Degrees Registered Here Friday Afternoon

With the mercury rising to a new high of 75 degrees at 3:20 o'clock Friday afternoon, the day was the warmest so far experienced this month. The lowest temperature recorded yesterday was 51 degrees.

During the morning yesterday it gradually grew warmer until that afternoon it grew so warm that pedestrians shed their heavy outer garments. Rain commenced falling during the early hours of the evening and continued to fall throughout the night and in the morning hours today.

This morning at 12:50 o'clock the city hall thermometer recorded 54 degrees and at 7 o'clock the mercury had dropped to 42 degrees.

Thirty More Blanks Mailed to Registrants

Work of mailing out questionnaires to the boys in the 18 and 19 year group continued Friday at the Kingston draft office when 30 more blanks were mailed out to registrants holding order numbers 12038 to 12068. These blanks must be filled out and returned to the draft board within 10 days.

So far the board has mailed out a hundred of these questionnaires.

It is not expected that the teen age group will be called for service until January.

Coffee Sales Halt

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Coffee sales at retail stores halt for one week at midnight tonight. The sales suspension is intended to give grocers a chance to stock up for the start of coupon rationing at midnight, November 28, when every adult will be entitled to buy one pound every five weeks. "Coffee will be available for every person over 15 when rationing starts," an Office of Price Administration spokesman said, "but we're hoping that housewives won't cash in all the family's coupons at once right at the start. This would tax distribution facilities and might run some grocers temporarily short. Just buy the amount that you need. We can give absolute assurance there will be enough for all."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Scattered rails and industrials managed to keep on the upside in today's stock market but many of Friday's climbers did little or nothing.

Further props for sentiment were found in the war news and another batch of pleasing dividends and earnings statements. Bullish forces, however, inclined to keep commitments light or stand aside because of the week-end.

The list was a shade uneven at the opening. Early gains of fractions were eliminated in some cases as the session progressed and, near the final hour, mild irregularity was the rule. Dealings were sluggish throughout.

Bonds and commodities lacked definite trends.

Among stocks International Telephone touched a new top for the year on an initial 4,000-share block but eventually slipped. Moderate support was accorded N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Chrysler, U. S. Steel and International Harvester. Backward were Anaconda, Kennecott, American Can, Dome Mines, Phelps Dodge and U. S. Rubber Preferred.

CECILIA RAZOVSKY

Miss Cecilia Razovsky, assistant to the executive director of the National Refuge Service, and one of the country's leading authorities on immigration and naturalization laws and on education for the foreign born, will be the guest speaker for the Workers' Rally at Ahavath Israel on Monday, November 23, at 8 p. m., in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees, Overseas Needs and Palestine.

The United Jewish Appeal is the nationwide drive of American Jewry for war relief for the first victims of Hitlerism in European lands, for the support of the Jewish homeland in Palestine as a democratic bastion in the Middle East, and for the adjustment of loyal refugees in this country desirous of making a maximum contribution to our war effort. These programs of rescue and reconstruction are carried on respectively by the Joint Distribution Committee, United Palestine Appeal and National Refugee Ssrvice, the three foremost American agencies represented in the unified campaign of the United Jewish Appeal.

Miss Razovsky's work in municipal, state and government bureaus, as well as in private social agencies, has taken her to Europe and South America on studies of migration problems.

Needle Brigade Aids War Effort

Red Cross Volunteers Are Supplying Garments to Army and Navy

Washington, D. C. — With needles as their only weapons, more than 2,000,000 American women today are devoting what once were leisure hours to aiding the nation's war effort.

Members of the American Red Cross Production Corps, largest of all Red Cross volunteer services, they are sewing and knitting for the armed forces and U. S. allies abroad.

A priority on large quantities of wool was given the Red Cross this year to continue its program of making knitted garments requested by the army and navy and made to their specifications. Sea boots, sweaters, gloves, mufflers, rifle mitts and socks are but a few of the wool garments made for American servicemen and distributed to them on all fighting fronts.

Surgical dessings by the hundred thousands also are turned out by Red Cross volunteers, who make between 80 and 90 per cent of all surgical dressings needed by the Army. Gauze for them is provided by the War Department.

Hundreds of sewing machines are humming in Red Cross chapters throughout the country, turning out bathrobes, pajamas, hot-water bags, cushions, pneumonia jackets and other clothing. "Housewives," sewing cases for service men, are another product of the Red Cross volunteers.

Kit bags are assembled and given to each man going overseas. At the request of the War Department cigarettes, pencils, envelopes, paper, shoe laces, chewing gum, soap, playing cards, and sewing cases are packed in bags with a greeting card from the local chapter. A pocket size edition of a detective or humorous story, as well as razor blades and shoe laces, also are enclosed. Many chapters have received enthusiastic letters of thanks from the men overseas.

Ingenuity is not lacking in sidestepping shortages of material. Vests have been made from old felt hats as wind breakers for aviators. In one city the local furriers work after hours piecing together left-over bits of fur into vests which are donated to the Red Cross and sent to service men abroad.

Some of the production workers have made gloves out of string, children's slippers from pieces of towel, have knitted hospital blankets, and made blackout curtains. Mending centers have been set up near army camps so that the service men will not have to be bothered with darning their own socks.

The largest and perhaps one of the most important jobs of the Red Cross Production Corps is the packing of seamen's kit bags. These are virtual life savers, carried on ships for the men rescued at sea.

In the 3,735 Red Cross Chapters in the country the women of the production corps are working tirelessly to keep up with army and navy requests for wool clothing, and for surgical dressings used in every theatre of war—front-line fighters on the home front.

Drastic Changes in Real Estate Business

Drastic changes have been brought about in the real estate brokerage business as a result of gasoline rationing, according to George L. Long, Brooklyn, president of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards, Inc. The association conducted a survey recently to determine how rationing was affecting its members.

"Surprisingly enough," said Mr. Long, "some of the changes which have been necessitated by curtailment of gasoline have had a salutary effect on the conduct of the brokerage business as far as efficiency of operation is concerned. Since brokers are no longer able to put a client in their car and drive him around all day, they have been busy devising ways and means of eliminating unnecessary travel.

"Some of the methods which have been developed are quite ingenious," said Mr. Long. Brokers who have long seen the value of picture files of listings have expanded this idea and are now making moving pictures showing interiors as well as exteriors, together with views of surrounding neighborhoods. These movies can be shown in the broker's office and are almost as effective as a visit to the property.

"Then, too," Mr. Long continued, "brokers are finding that a careful preliminary interview with clients eliminates a great deal of travel. They are learning to analyze clients more carefully to see if they are actually in the market; they are analyzing clients' needs more carefully, and finally they are analyzing their listings more carefully to see if they have what the clients need. This preliminary procedure eliminates much unnecessary visiting of property.

"Another change that has come about in a great many brokerage offices is the elimination of showing rental property."

In Manhattan and metropolitan New York as a whole, gasoline rationing has affected the real estate business very little since brokers do not have to depend on automobiles for transportation. In Long Island, however, and rural areas in general, rationing has meant severe curtailment of activity.

"Rural areas are of course the hardest hit," Mr. Long went on to explain, "because brokers are forced to cover a great deal of territory in the normal course of their business. In these areas some brokers, according to the association's survey, are moving to nearby cities, others are using their customers' cars, and in certain places conditions are so bad that brokers have closed their businesses for the duration.

In defense centers, brokers indicated that they were getting along fairly well, although almost all reported that they had more inquiries from war workers than they could handle under present restrictions.

$15,773 Paid In Unemployment Insurance Here

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20—Unemployment insurance benefits of $6,448,763 in the form of 446,213 individual checks were distributed to more than 108,000 unemployed men and women in New York State during October, according to a report issued today by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller. This figure represents a decrease of 10 per cent from September, and shows a decline for the third consecutive month.

During the week ending October 31, 128,991 individuals were actively pursuing their benefit rights. These included 92,340 persons who were receiving benefits, 11,507 who were serving the required waiting period, and 2,284 whose claims were being adjusted. The active insurance file in New York State since the last week in July has fallen off 38.2 percent—a net decrease of almost 80,000.

October payments for the Kingston employment office amounted to $15,773 for the 1942-1943 benefit year, in the form of 1,246 separate checks. The average benefit payment for a single week of unemployment in the Kingston area was $12.53 for the month.

Benefits to New York city unemployed workers, who received 77.4 per cent of the benefits distributed during the month, dropped 11.8 per cent from September.

Benefit payments to workers outside of New York city fell at the same rate during October as during the previous month. The decrease amounted to 12.7 per cent.

Contributions received from employers during the month totaled $9,668,069. Interested credited to the unemployment insurance fund amounted to $2,029,405. At the end of October, the fund totaled $377 million, the highest amount on record since the inception of unemployment insurance in New York State.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Nov. 21—Eloise Johnson and Robert Harp were in charge of the Youth Fellowship meeting in the Reformed Church Sunday evening.

Red Cross workers met in the local Fire Department rooms Tuesday to cut, pin, stitch and finish garments for which the Red Cross has indicated a need. Assignments come from headquarters in Kingston and the work here is under the supervision of Mrs. Charles Huntington. The rooms are open each Tuesday from 9 to 12 and a worker may stay as many hours as she can. Workers are needed. Materials may be taken home to sew if desired.

Robert E. Connolly of New Paltz was picked last week from a group of U. S. Coast Guard men to appear upon a radio quiz program with other servicemen representing the Army and Navy as well at Miami, Fla., and was happy to have won the award which was a silver identification bracelet from a jewelry firm in Fort Lauderdale. At the present time he is doing teletype work.

Ethel Hart and her aunt, Maude Constable, attended the graduation exercises of Miss Hart's brother, Second Lieutenant George A. Hart, from Officers' Training School at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, recently.

P.F.C. Joseph A. Linacre was home last week for a seven-day furlough. This was his first visit home since his induction into the service on May 21. His address is P.F.C. Joseph A. Linacre, Jr., (32341268) 77 Rnc. Troop, A.P.O. 77, Fort Jackson, S. C.

John Demskie, formerly of New Paltz, who came from his home in San Diego, Calif., a few weeks ago to visit friends here and his sisters and brothers in Kingston and Newburgh will soon return to the Pacific coast. While in New Paltz he helped his friends harvest their apples. He picked some two thousand bushels of apples on the Roelif E. DuBois farm during the seven weeks he was here. While here he received word of the marriage of his daughter, Helen, to a navy seaman in San Diego. Mr. Demskie is chaplain of the United States Spanish War Veterans of San Diego and during the four years he has been there he has officiated at 116 funerals.

Several days ago John Messmer summoned Assistant Deputy Sheriff Newkirk to help capture an ugly dog that had been running over his humus swamp. Their efforts were without success until Elting Polhemus came to their aid and lassoed the animal after which Sheriff Newkirk shot it.

An itemized report is given as follows for the sale of the blind in New Paltz, sponsored by the four churches: Dutch Reformed, $64.57; Methodist Church, $71.42; Episcopal Church, $29.05; Catholic Church, $129.83; Election Day, $12.13, making a total of $307.

Several members of the New Paltz Rifle Club, their wives and friends attended the Mid-Hudson Rifle League's annual banquet at Schoentag's Hotel in Saugerties recently. Following the dinner the group was entertained by an address and movies presented by Frank Kahrs of Remington Arms. Medals for high scores fired during this year's league matches were awarded to the following New Paltz marksmen; A. Paradies, R. Burton, R. (10x) Martin, E. Quick and F. Heinsohn. New Paltz Club meets every Monday evening at the New Paltz High School range.

Sergt. Theodore A. Roth, son of Louis Roth, Sr., of Forest Glen, was recently chosen to attend Officers' Training School at Camp Davis, North Carolina. Upon graduation the early part of next month he will be commissioned a second lieutenant.

No Christmas Party

Because of the war the Ellenville Noonday Club has decided not to hold its annual Christmas party this year.

Visits Child Study Clubs in Ulster County

Miss Anne Kuhn, extension specialist in the family life department of the New York State College of Home Economics, visited the following child study clubs: Thursday afternoon, Kingston Child Study Club II at the home of Mrs. John Bott; Thursday evening the Rondout Study Club at the home of Mrs. Henry Sherman in Kerhonkson. On Friday afternoon the E. K. A. Child Study Club will meet for a luncheon discussion meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Davenport in Accord. In the evening the Shawangunk Child Study Club meets with Mrs. Lloyd Bell on Canal street, Ellenville.

Miss Kuhn received an A. B. degree from Wellesley College, M. A. and Ph. D. degrees in education from Yale University, and a certificate from the Frick Teachers' College, Pittsburgh, Pa., in public school teaching. She has travelled and visited educational centers in England, France and Germany. Since 1931 she has done nursery school and kindergarten critic teaching, state supervision of emergency nursery schools in Connecticut, teacher training and work in parent groups. Miss Kuhn's graduate work at Yale and recent experience in parent counseling has covered all phases of child development pertaining to the school age and adolescent, as well as the pre-school age child.

Within the past year, Miss Kuhn has served on a committee for the registration of trained volunteers in emergency child care in New Haven, Conn. This committee is affiliated with the state committee on child care and protection.

Miss Kuhn will return to the county on December 7 and 8 at which time she will visit the Lake Katrine Home Bureau, Accord Home Bureau family life groups and the Warchester Child Study Club.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Nov. 21—Hope Temple No. 80, Pythian Sisters, will meet Wednesday evening following the Thanksgiving service to be held in the Methodist Church. All members are urged to attend as the annual nomination of officers will take place. The hostesses for the social hour are Mrs. Charles Howe and Mrs. Lyman Ellsworth.

Mrs. DeWitt Shultis of Bearsville is spending a few days with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Mabie.

Mrs. H. C. Jump will entertain the Ever Ready Club at her home next Monday evening.

Frederick H. Clark, who has been on a six-day leave at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Clark, of Salem street, has returned to Philadelphia, Pa.

Corporal W. R. McConnell, 889th Guard Squadron, Elgin Field, Fla., formerly from Akron, Ohio, has returned to Elgin Field after spending a few days with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Percy McConnell.

Friday evening several from here attended the card party at the Central Fire Station, Kingston, sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Weiner Hose Co.

Church of the Presentation, the Rev. Michael J. Curley, C. Ss. R., pastor—Mass at 8 and 10:30 a. m. Sunday school at 8:45. The Presentation Women's Club and other women of the parish will receive communion at the 8 o'clock Mass.

Methodist Youth's Fellowship service at 6:30. Union Thanksgiving service at the Ulster Park Reformed Church at 7:30 p. m., the Rev. C. E. Brown, speaker. The local union Thanksgiving service will be held in the Methodist Church Wednesday evening at 7:30. The preacher will be the Rev. William Barringer of the Reformed Church of Krumville. The Sons and Daughters of Liberty and the Pythian Sisters are especially invited to attend. A Youth Fellowship party will be held in the church hall Saturday evening, November 28.

Port Ewen Reformed Church, the Rev. George Berens, pastor—Church school at 10 o'clock. Morning worship at 11 o'clock; sermon topic, "Thanksgiving in Trying Times." Junior Christian Endeavor at 11 o'clock; leader, Ellen Benton; topic, "Thanksgiving In Our Times." The Intermediate and Senior Christian Endeavor groups will not hold their meetings but as many as can are urged to attend the union Thanksgiving service in Ulster Park. Those wishing to go should be at church here at 7 o'clock. The union Thanksgiving service at the Ulster Park Reformed Church is to be at 7:30 with the Rev. Clarance E. Brown as speaker. The Port Ewen Thanksgiving service will be at the Methodist Church Wednesday evening at 7:30 with the Rev. William Barringer of Krumville speaking. The congregation is reminded to bring used clothing or toys for the Mission Box. Articles may be left at the parsonage or put in a box in the church vestibule. The Senior C. E. will hold a business meeting Monday evening at the hall.

Commissioned in Navy

Orville P. Bates, for the past 10 years vice-principal at the Ellenville High School, has received his commission as lieutenant, junior grade, in the Navy and was to leave this week to assume his duties. Mr. Bates graduated from Colgate University in 1929 and later took further courses at Syracuse University, at Cortland and at the New York State College for Teachers, where he received his M.A. degree in 1940. While at Ellenville, particularly in recent years, he has given much time and attention to matters of educational and vocational guidance. The Board of Education has granted him leave of absence during the period of his service with the Navy.

River Barges Will Carry Oil

Federal Craft Will Begin To Operate on the Ohio And Mississippi Soon.

KANSAS CITY. — The Federal Barge lines soon will be receiving converted river barges which will provide a carrying capacity of five million barrels of oil, Chester C. Thompson, president of the Inland Waterways corporation, announced here.

Putting these barges in operation, to run from the East Texas and Southern Louisiana oil field areas up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers to points for shipment east, will make up a large part of the shipping loss river traffic has had on account of the war, Mr. Thompson told members of the Mississippi Valley association at luncheon.

What this transportation will mean to the oil-scarce East was indicated when Mr. Thompson said the capacity of the average rail tank car is 200 barrels. One tow will haul as much petroleum as the average freight train, he said.

Will Relieve Shortage.

This inland transportation will help supplement the coastal traffic of tankers, lessened on account of submarine attacks on the Atlantic coast and in the Gulf of Mexico.

The railroads have done an excellent job, in Mr. Thompson's opinion, helping to relieve the shortage in the East, but they cannot continue this extra burden and fulfill all the other demands of the war effort without extra help. The protected Mississippi route thus will contribute much to the war effort.

Even wooden barges are being converted for the transportation of oil, he said. The conversion is being financed by the defense plant corporation, with some of the work being done by the Darby corporation in Kansas City.

River traffic, normally 55 per cent downstream and 45 per cent upstream, already is 85 per cent northbound. This costs 2½ times as much to handle as downstream haul.

The downstream movement of grain, for export to foreign countries, has been lost on account of the war. Likewise, bulk shipments destined for the West coast through the Panama canal were shut off even before Pearl Harbor.

Economy of Service.

Government restrictions on warehousing have curtailed other sources of traffic such as sugar, Mr. Thompson said.

"The economy of our service is the movement of commodities in large volume for stock piling or warehousing," Mr. Thompson said. "When advance supplies of sugar jobbers were restricted to 30 days, naturally we could no longer take care of that business."

Steel tonnage likewise had slackened on account of the immediate demands by processors on the mills, he pointed out. A big source of business now is of bulk sulphur, from Texas and Louisiana upstream to the consumer industries.

Missouri river traffic has been the biggest disappointment of the wartime era, Mr. Thompson said, but minimum weekly service between Kansas City and St. Louis has been maintained since early March and will be maintained "until the ice chases us out."

A glowing post-war prospect was painted by Mr. Thompson however. This country, he said, will be the only one with its productive resources largely intact after the war. Thus it will be producing and manufacturing for the entire world. This presents an excellent prospect for river traffic, in his opinion.

Briton's Mail From Front Gets Home One War Late

LONDON.—Twenty-seven years ago a field stretcher-bearer, Frank Gumm, of the royal army medical corps, lying wounded at a base hospital in France, sent a post card to his mother saying, "Getting better. Don't worry."

It was delivered to his 81-year-old mother recently through the regular channels of the post office.

Frank's post card forecast the state of things to come quite correctly—he did recover and at present he is assistant manager of a navy, army and air force canteen somewhere in Britain.

Texas Man's Guinea Pig Business Growing Fast

DALLAS, TEXAS. — William T. Hamilton went into business with two productive units two years ago in his garage.

Now he's asking that zoning regulation be changed so he can put his rapidly expanding industry into a larger building.

He raises guinea pigs.

Bone of Contention

BRANTFORD, ONT.—The dogs of Brantford liked the flavor of the plastic license tags substituted by the city council for metal ones so much that they ate 'em. Now the council is looking for nonedible plastic tags.

Jail Hash Costly

RENO.—Reno's city council looked at last month's bill of $500 for feeding jail prisoners—and asked the judge to see if the inmates couldn't be hurried through a bit faster.

Food Belt Planned

Miles of vegetables—85 of them—have been planted at Griki, New Zealand, to supply the army's mess tables. The project, under direction of the New Zealand Department of Agriculture, will include 22 miles of lettuce, 15 miles of carrots, nine miles of beets, 25 miles of cabbage—and 15 miles of spring onions.

Proclamation

Mayor William F. Edelmuth today issued the following proclamation:

WHEREAS, The American Jewry is making available to the Allied Forces in Palestine, the produce from thousands of acres of farming lands to help keep their vast armies supplied to defeat the Nazis and Japanese, and

WHEREAS, The Jewish people of the City of Kingston are making vital contributions to the war effort both by manpower and financial aid, and,

WHEREAS, The Jewish National Fund is now in need of support from the citizens of this country, in order to carry on this work,

NOW THEREFORE, I, WILLIAM F. EDELMUTH, do hereby declare the week of November 23rd as Jewish National Fund Tag Day.

Given under my hand and seal, this 21st day of November, 1942.
WILLIAM F. EDELMUTH,
Mayor.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Nov. 21—The latest men to pass the physical examinations here are: W. B. Ritterhusch, John S. Stowell, Walter L. Angevine and Orville Wolven.

Considerable interest is being shown here in the matter of the replacement of the Dr. Downer memorial tree. It has been suggested that this should be done in time for the Christmas festivities.

Several real estate transactions have gone through during the past week, together with a number of changes in business locations here. Doris Lee has purchased the Craigmont property, the former residence of Miss Alice Wardwell. The purchase was made from Joseph Craigen and the realtor was George Neher. Mr. and Mrs. Fiolic have moved into the Longendyke house, formerly occupied by William C. Wilber. A portion of the property is the shoe shop occupied and operated by Ross Pigliari. Ross will move his shoe repairing business to the vacant room adjacent to the Woodstock bakery. This will probably be done about December 1. Mr. Fiolic, who has successfully conducted an art business here for the past two summers will use the two buildings on the property for the use of the antique store and the exhibition of paintings.

John A. Burnside has just completed 70 years with a soap and candle firm in Belfast, Northern Ireland, and is still busy as chief salesman.

Bicycle Safety Guide For School Children

Chief of Police Charles Phinney announced today that he would shortly distribute through the city's schools to all students riding bicycles an illustrated book issued in the interest of safe bicycle riding.

The police chief said that some 30 firms and individuals in Kingston had contributed the sum of $250 with which to purchase these books, and he urges that the parents of the students also read the books carefully, and advise their children to follow the instructions for safe riding contained in the book.

This book is profusely illustrated with pictures showing the dangers of unsafe riding practice. The book is titled "Watch for Your Life" and is a complete bicycle safety guide.

Moose Lodge to Hold Initiation on Sunday

The members of Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose, will confer the initiatory degree upon a large class of candidates Sunday, November 22, at the lodge hall. The degree will be exemplified by the members of the lodge degree team composed of Charles M. Lord, Joseph F. Ross, Jr., Anthony Erena, Joseph Fabiano, Anthony Slezak and Jesse Haften. This team has represented the local lodge at Schenectady, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and several other cities throughout the state and have been commended on various occasions for their outstanding degree work. Invitations have been extended to lodges in the Hudson valley and indications point to a large gathering of members and their friends to witness the performance.

Following the degree a buffet supper will be served and music has been secured for dancing. Efforts have been made to obtain several prominent men in Moose circles to address the newly inducted class of candidates.

How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

AMERICA'S HOME HEATING EXPERT

Poor Heat — Cellar Complaint

JUST about this time during the heating season, the fire appears to be sluggish with resultant poor heat in the living quarters. As a rule, the coal is blamed for this condition. Yet it may be the same coal that gave good heat in the earlier part of the heating season. The fire has been going for quite some time now. Every time the grates were shaken, quite an amount of fly ash was carried upward through the fuel bed by the draft action. Large amounts of this fly ash may have been trapped in the fuel bed itself. This condition is known as a "dirty fire" and results in sluggish fuel bed conditions.

But burn that fire out and slowly build it up again with fresh coal. You'll be surprised at the improved results.

Then too, there may be quite an accumulation of dirt in the flue passes. Take the little hoe that came with the heater and scrape the accumulation away. Better still, contact your local fuel merchant and have him vacuum the furnace.

Tap the smokepipe that leads into the chimney. If it sounds solid, there may be an accumulation of fly ash in it. As a last resort—and many troubles are found here—pull the smokepipe away from the chimney. Right at this point the accumulation of fly ash may have nearly filled the end of the pipe.

And don't forget the ashpit. It serves two very definite purposes:

1. It is a space provided under the grates to receive the ashes.
2. It receives the air from the cellar and helps to distribute it uniformly to all parts of the fuel bed.

It can be readily seen, therefore, that if the ashpit is allowed to fill up and the accumulated ash remain there for any length of time, that the purpose of the ashpit as a distributor of air is defeated. This results in the fire burning poorly and unevenly. Many times the grates become overheated, become warped or even break. So keep the ashpit clean at all times.

Don't "strangle" the fire. Many cellars are too well sealed in the winter time. Provide some means to permit fresh air to enter so the fire can "breathe."

And last but not least, do not forget the dampers. Many poor heat complaints are registered because of a lack of the turn damper. Many times, even if a turn damper is installed it is opened too wide causing the same type of complaint. If one or both of the conditions above exist, make sure you have means for controlling the draft that flows through the heater. If too much air passes through the fuel bed, an excessive air condition exists. The heat, instead of being used to give one a comfortable temperature upstairs is used instead to heat this extra cold air. This is wasted up the chimney. Make sure the turn damper is opened enough to eliminate the "throttle" of the heating plant. If one wishes to burn coal faster, open this damper slightly. If there is no necessity, because of weather conditions, to burn the coal as fast, close down on the position of this damper. Correct operation of this throttle will give more "useful" heat upstairs. You will find by observing these simple rules that your furnace will operate much better, resulting in more comfortable heat. (15)

Willie Pep's Half-Punch Upsets Chalky Wright

(By The Associated Press)

Whoa, Mr. Henderson

Newcastle, Ind. — In Sulphur Springs, near here, chickens sold for $50 each, five gallons of motor oil brought $50, milk was $32 a quart, coffee $40 a pound, and a 24-pound sack of flour cost $249.

But stand back, Mr. Henderson—the articles were donated to the Parent-Teachers' Association and auctioned off to war bond purchasers, who paid $2,285.

Game Comes to Hunter

Newport, Pa.—An automobile accident paralyzed Sportsman David Foose's legs, but not his love for hunting.

Sitting in a wheel chair on his back porch, a gun in his lap, Foose called for his dog. The dog turned up a rabbit, drove it within range, and Foose fired. And the Fooses had rabbit for dinner.

Rainy Day Item

Kansas City—For years amateur weather observers have insisted it has rained more in southern, residential Kansas City than it has at the official observatory downtown.

Four months ago six rain gauges were installed over the city to obtain figures for storm sewers. Sure enough, they showed from three to seven inches more rainfall than the official gauge.

One explanation: Southern Kansas City is on a hill. It sometimes rains more on high ground, official weathermen admitted.

Indian Sign

Gallup, N. M.—Indian Commissioner John Collier supervised an election of a council chairman, but 1,200 Navajos didn't get to vote.

They were too busy working at the New Bellemont ordnance plant, New Flagstaff, Ariz., to take time out for tribal politics.

Suicidal Oysters

Seattle—Gourmets may soon do without the dainty and succulent Olympia oyster, Dr. Trevor Kincaid of the University of Washington zoology department believes.

The oysters have quit reproducing—a plain case of race suicide. Kincaid thinks climate and water temperatures may have something to do with it.

Literate Termites

Berkeley, Calif.—E. J. Richardson, mailing superintendent of the University of California Press, wonders if termites can read.

Richardson had his mailing room remodeled and painted to get rid of the wood chewers. But a new crew of termites moved in. They passed up the newly painted wood and consumed part of a booklet.

The booklet's title: "The Control of Termites by the College of Agriculture."

Army Obtains Mule From Annapolis

Regular Mascots to Miss Army-Navy Classic

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—Next Saturday will be a great day for one of the mules from the barn of Farmer Bausams near Annapolis.

An ordinary mule on other days, this particular long-eared animal has been chosen by the U. S. military academy to serve as the Cadets' mascot at the Army-Navy football game. Mr. Jackson and Pancho, the regular Army mascots, will miss the classic as will the corps of Cadets and everybody else living more than ten miles away from Annapolis.

Farmer Bausams' lucky mule resides only two miles from the stadium in which the game will be played.

Hartford Boxer's Pilot Out-Foxes 'Smarter' Wright; 54th Win in Row for Pep

By SID FEDER

New York, Nov 21 (AP)—No one did a hand-stand in Madison Square Garden's ring, but Willie Pep succeeded Chalky Wright on the world featherweight throne today strictly "on his head."

Now, this is not to say that the greatest crowd ever to see a featherweight title tussle sat in on an exhibition of gymnastics last night. But it was simply by fighting Wright the only way the aging Los Angeles negro can be beaten—by using his head all the way—that the Pep kid is the new boss of the 127-pounders today.

Willie is a 20-year-old ex-bootblack out of Hartford, who admits he hasn't been around long enough to have read the entire book about the beak-busting business. So Willie calls his manager, Lou Viscusi "Mr. Brains" at all times, and it was only by the battle plan Lou drew up that the Hartford jumping-Jack brought the bauble back to Connecticut for the first time since the hey-days of Kid Kaplan and Bat Battalino in the late 20's.

Half-Punch Specialty

To say Pep used his head all the way is not to imply that slippery Willie had a glove on his noggin and worked it as a third hand. In fact, about the only weapon he used, with the exception of a dozen or so right hands that he let go (probably by accident) through the entire 15 rounds, was a half-punch, half push left jab that bounced off Chalky's face as if it owned it.

The Chalk, you know, is regarded as one of the "smarter" fighters in the business today. He's been around so long he's acquainted with the score all the way, and usually makes young fellows fight just the way he wants them to. But Viscusi has had two tusslers tangle with Chalky before this, and knew somewhat more than one-and-one about Wright's way of doing business. So he told Willie to just "stick and move." And for 15 rounds Pep did just that.

He "stuck" with his jab from start to finish, and he moved so much and so often that some folks thought he had borrowed the bicycle on which Bob Pastor pedalled to escape Joe Louis for ten rounds a few years back. Pep insisted this was not so. But, at any rate, it befuddled the Chalk.

Now, this may not have made for the bloodiest brawl in the book—as a matter of fact, with Chalky missing and Willie backpedalling it grew considerably boring at times—but it proved highly entertaining to the crowd of 19,521, who tossed $71,868.70 into Mike Jacobs' money boxes. Several thousand of the boys and girls were from Connecticut and were seeing Willie home. These totals, incidentally, went to make up the all-time high turnout for a featherweight fuss, out-shining by quite a bit the $63,656 paid to see Benny Bass and Tony Canzoneri clout each other around 14 years ago.

54th Straight Win

Yet, now that Willie has the championship—this fight was his 54th straight victory in a two-year professional career—the featherweight follies are still playing the two-a-day circuit. For Pep still only owns the half of the crown recognized by New York state's athletic commission and its affiliates. Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson has the half which has the National Boxing Association blessing. And there's no immediate prospect for a shindig to iron it out, for Viscusi says Pep has to be on hand for the parade Hartford is tossing in his honor today, and then will have to rest up from the effort.

Which was probably the best laugh-getter of the night, unless you want to argue about the conversation between Chalky and his trainer, Harry Gordon, during the minute's rest between the sixth and seventh rounds.

"Chalky, there's more than $70,000 in the house," said Gordon.

"Now that," replied the Chalk, "Makes mighty nice conversation."

American Division Scores

Emil Boessneck captured high triple honors in the Y.M.C.A. American Division last night at the "Y" alleys by fashioning out a 537 triple for the Pontiacs who lost two games to the Ballantines. Boessneck featured with scores of 172, 178 and 187. Bruck of the winners had a 497 series and high single of 195 in the match.

Bill Brady of the "Y" Couples helped that club to win two from Wonderly as he highlighted his team's victory with a high single of 191 and high series of 532. His other marks were 167 and 174. Watrous had a 517 triple for the losers.

The final match found The Freeman No. 1 squad capturing two decisions from Electrol. Jordan of the losers posted high triple of 530 on scores of 175, 181 and 174. Jack Hartman of The Freeman team registered high single of 196 while Roland Post had high triple for the winners with his 522.

Booster League Results

Egbert "Joe" Maxwell took a hand in highlighting the Booster League matches again at the Central Rec alleys last night when he blasted out a sizzling 245 single game and a high triple of 567 for Greenes who won two games from Worfs. Maxwell also posted a 188 and 134. H. Letus had a 461 series for Worfs.

F. McElrath also did some fine pinning when he grabbed a 569 series and featured that count with singles of 203, 206 and 160. D. Williams had 535 for Jakes as that club won all three from Hercules. C. Horne posted a 454 triple for the powdermakers.

Piepers continued their amazing streak with three more triumphs over the Unknowns. Bob Tierney rolled high single in the match with his 197. K. Hammond of the Unknowns had high series of 497 on 145, 168 and 184. J. Heidcamp's 465 topped the Pieper squad.

Although the I.M.M. bowlers captured both high single and high triple, the Eichlers won two games. J. Lifshin had a 506 triple while also posting high single of 191. Vernon Engleman's 444 was tops for the winners.

Electrol League Matches

Johnny Murphy's scores featured the Electrol Bowling League activities at the Central Recreation alleys Friday night when he pounded out a scorching 229 single and 567 triple for the Dispatchers who won three from the Office bowlers. Murphy opened with a 168 and made 170 in this second game. His third game of 229 cemented an 828 team single.

Harry Re of the Office bowlers came near upsetting the cart for Murphy when he blasted a sizzling 224 single and wound-up with a 563 triple.

Mike Provenzano, who usually grabs the headlines in this circuit, had to take a back seat for a change last night. But despite this he rolled a 554 triple and posted a high single of 197 in the match between Test Lab and the Accounters. Mike also bowled 176 and 181. The Testers won two games. W. Porch had 508 series for the losers.

Joe Heidcamp paced the Turrets to three triumphs over the Automatics with a 524 triple and 173 single game. Mark Weil of the same club posted high single of 184. C. Coutant's 451 series was high for the losers.

Bob Vincent did his best to bring the Apprentices to a couple of wins over the Grinders but his high triple of 548 failed to do the trick. Bob had scores of 189, 193 and 166. R. Cord of the Grinders registered high single of 198 in this match as the Grinders won two decisions.

The Maintenance team won all three from the Inspections. Frank Cirone's 189 single and 482 triple were high in the match. A. Ziegler of the Inspections, posted 417.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Willie Pep, 125½, Hartford, Conn., outpointed Chalky Wright, 125¾, Los Angeles, (15, featherweight championship, New York version.)

Boston—Al (Bummy) Davis, 148, Brooklyn, knocked out Red Doty, 148, Hartford, Conn., (8).

Philadelphia—Jim Elliott, 160, Baltimore, outpointed Frank Lowery, 152, Philadelphia, (8).

Girl Wrestler

Mary Neiler, a professional wrestler, is working as an electrician's helper at the Moore shipyard in Oakland, California, and has issued a blanket challenge to meet anyone at the yard, man or woman, in a wrestling match. She says she just wants to keep her hand in at her old profession.

Bears Are Eager To Keep Perfect Record for Season

Great Chicago Eleven Will Battle Detroit Lions; Washington to Play Brooklyn Dodgers

Chicago, Nov. 21 (Special)—National Football League teams start down the home stretch tomorrow knee deep in the stuff from which upsets are made. Four games comprise the day's schedule. In three of them teams which apparently cannot lose oppose teams which are given little or no chance to win. The results might easily be cataclysmic.

Detroit's Lions, according to their coach, Bull Karcis, could hardly wait for another shot at the Chicago Bears after holding the champions to 16 to 0 on November 1. They get the opportunity tomorrow. Detroit has yet to win a league game. The Bears have yet to lose a game, either in the league or out, and will be after their 20th in a row.

Dodgers Meet Redskins

Down in Washington, where Sammy Baugh and associated Redskins have convinced everyone except the mathematicians that the eastern division race is over, the Brooklyn Dodgers will attempt to salvage something from a season which promised to be their best but has turned out to be their worst.

Grandstand crystal-gazers, who were certain a week ago that the lure of an extra $125,000 playoff gate would result in a Parker victory over the Bears, see nothing but another Steeler triumph when Jimmy Conzelman takes his crippled Chicago Cardinals into Pittsburgh for the contest rained out on September 27.

Green Bay rounds out the day's schedule by taking its famed aerial circus into the Polo Grounds, where Cecil Isbell has never had a good day either as a collegian or a professional. There it meets the New York Giants, against whom Don Hutson has never scored a touchdown.

Although the stage is perfectly appointed for upsets, it is not likely that the Bears will stumble around any at Detroit. They already have enough reasons for "running up a hill" on the Lions. Intensely proud, the champions never quite recovered from having their record spoiled by the Green Bay defeat last year. They are planning a perfect season this fall. Criticism of their eagerness and recklessness in a game has served only to make them more determined. And if all this isn't enough, there is the matter of making good for Lieut. Comdr. George Halas, who left it squarely up to them when he hauled out to join the armed forces. Moreover, large crowds always excite the Bears and Detroit expects tomorrow's turnout to be the largest of the season in the motor city.

Injured Players Rest

Coach Ray Flaherty will attempt to skin by with reserves against Brooklyn. The Redskin regulars need rest, especially with the playoffs against the Bears coming up. Dick Todd, the scamper-back who shares full back duties with Andy Farkas, will not be used tomorrow or in the final game of the regular schedule against Detroit next week. He suffered a shoulder injury against New York and every care will be exercised to have him ready for the playoff.

Injuries also have beset the Packers, but they go east ready in all departments, especially passing. Isbell and Hutson were bruised in the Bear game, but their injuries were not aggravated and if anything they should be in better shape this week. New York also feels better fortified this week, now that Tuffy Leemans has fully recovered from the concussion suffered several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Blakely quietly observed their 14th wedding anniversary on Tuesday.

The Lloyd Rod and Gun Club was in charge of the card party Wednesday night at the high school for the benefit of the Donald DuBois Memorial fund.

Promises Probe of Blackout Violations

Chief Air Raid Warden Douglas G. Miller of Newburgh has promised an investigation into charges that enforcement of State War Council's blackout regulations has not been strict enough in Newburgh.

Complaints that Newburgh civilian protection authorities have been too lenient with blackout violators were filed with Mr. Miller by his aides at a meeting in his office in Recreation Park on Thursday night.

In a summary of the results of the surprise practice blackout demonstration there on November 12, Mr. Miller said that 52 violations were reported by the city's air raid wardens. He declared the names of these violators had been turned over to Peter Cantline, director of Civilian Protection, "for such action as he deems necessary."

Defense Workers Help

Richard Stewart, Ray Sparling, Virgil Kelly and George Taylor, members of the Civilian Defense Workers, were stationed last Sunday afternoon at the Kingston Airport during the Navy's aerial salute to Electrol Incorporated. The men helped to direct the crowds and traffic coming in and going away from the airport.

Legion Auxiliary Report Submitted

Official Report

The American Legion Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting in its rooms on West O'Reilly street Friday evening with the president, Mrs. Culver Ten Broeck, presiding. Reports from the district conference in Albany were given. High praise was given State President Mrs. Bell Oxholm. She truly is an inspired leader of our great organization.

December is set aside by the Auxiliary as "Rehab" month. Plans were made for our part of this work. We plan to make our pilgrimage to Castle Point if we can get transportation and if not to send our gifts and messages of cheer. Sunday, December 13, is the day set aside for this trip. We want to take homemade cookies again as part of our gift. Will all those who can donate some of these contact Mrs. Harry Whitney of 153 Elmendorf street, who is the chairman. We voted to give $10 to the "Gift Shop" for the hospitalized veterans. At Albany it was announced that two ambulances had been purchased and would soon be given to the Navy with the funds donated by the local units. Mrs. Woodard, the child welfare chairman, reported $28.98 spent during the month to aid the children of our veterans' families.

Our Juniors are busy collecting silk stockings, match book covers, etc. Miss Margaret McManus, the chaplain, reported sending two sympathy cards and two bouquets of flowers during the month. Mrs. Hilda Sills, the Americanism chairman, gave a splendid report of the work in this department. Our members are marching in the parade which escort our boys to the trains when they leave for camp. She urged other members to come out and march also, so as to show the boys that we are behind them always. We plan to carry our banner and colors at future parades. She read a poem written by Dorothy Deyo, age 12, of one of our city schools on "Thanksgiving." Dorothy's idea was that she would think more of giving thanks and going to church on that day this year than of eating turkey, etc., a thought it would be well for us all to remember.

We are still collecting coupons and old records. Mrs. M. J. Dulin is the coupon chairman. We voted to donate $5 to the Red Cross Kit Fund and $5 to help in the mayor's Christmas work. We plan to send cards at Christmas time to the "boys" of the Legion and Auxiliary families. Anyone who knows such boys are asked to notify Mrs. TenBroeck or Mrs. Hilda Sills as soon as possible. We don't want to omit anyone and we do not have all the names at present, so please help us make this a complete list. We now have 68 members—a good start but still far from 100 per cent.

After our business meeting we joined the Legion in listening to a most inspiring address given by Andre Cervoisl of Holland on "Egypt." We all felt that it was up to us to do more in our comfortable homes here when our boys were doing so much.

Censor Delights to O. K.

From a friend in France a member of the Fighting French Forces in England received a letter which denounced Laval, ending with these words: "I am afraid this letter never will pass the censor." The censor penned the following on the letter: "I am of exactly the same opinion."

Sweatshops Padlocked

Operators of sweatshops in Mexico City are facing a vigorous government drive which has resulted in imposition of fines and the padlocking of many businesses. The sweatshop in Mexico is rarely under one roof, the garments being farmed out to women for work at home.

Farmers of England are urging that the National Farmers' Union appoint a full-time director at a salary "not exceeding $40,000 a year."

DIED

CASTIGLIONE—Entered into rest suddenly at Newburgh, November 20, 1942, Louis Castiglione, son of Fred and Rosalia Cannella Castiglione and brother of Carlo, Joseph and Salvatore Castiglione.

PVT B. E. REILLY

LT. J. F. SCHEUERMAN

PVT. CLAYTON TICEFELT

Private Bartholomew E. Reilly of 37 Stuyvesant street is now stationed at the aviation institute of Technology, Astoria, L. I. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bart E. Reilly. Private Reilly was graduated from Kingston High School in 1940 and was employed at the Kingston Laundry before his enlistment, August 3. His brother, Pvt. William J. Reilly is stationed at North Camp Luna, Les Vega, N. M. He enlisted October 6 and is also in the Army Air Force. Before enlistment he was employed in defense work at Brooklyn.

Lt. Joseph F. Scheuerman, formerly of West Hurley, has been promoted to first lieutenant at Camp Shelby, Miss. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Scheuerman of Trenton, N. J., who have been living there since leaving West Hurley a year ago. Lieutenant Scheuerman is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1936 and was graduated from Officer Candidate Class at Fort Sill, Okla., in field artillery in July. He expects to spend Thanksgiving Day with his parents.

Pvt. Clayton Ticefelt stationed at Drew Field, Tampa, Fla., was inducted into the army, September 15.

Local Death Record

Stricken by a heart attack, Mrs. Edward Wyms, 48, died suddenly on Thursday morning in her home on Ridge road, Marlborough. Born in New York, she was formerly Winifred McDevitt, a daughter of the late Patrick and Roseanna McCullough McDevitt, and had lived in Marlborough for about 30 years. She was a member of St. Mary's Church. Funeral services were held this morning with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, Marlborough.

Mrs. Emma O. Koeppen, wife of William J. Koeppen, died Friday evening following a short illness. She was the daughter of the late Emil and Adeline Lieske Otto. She was a loving and devoted wife and mother and a faithful member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and the Ladies' Aid Society. Her kindness and willingness to assist anyone in sickness or trouble will long live in the hearts of all who knew her. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Miss Helen B. Koeppen, and two brothers, Emil and Louis Otto, of this city. The funeral will be held from her late home, No. 9 Stanley street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

With nearly several hundred mourners attending, a high Mass of requiem for the repose of the soul of Mrs. William L. Morris, was offered in St. Joseph's Church this morning by the Rev. Edmund E. Burke. Music for the Mass was provided by the Children's Choir, with Mrs. Frank Rafferty presiding at the console of the organ. Paul Purcell was the soloist. Mrs. Morris, who died here last Tuesday night, was well known throughout this locality, and hundreds of people called at the family home, 21 Downs street to pay their respects. The Catholic Daughters of America, met at the home on Friday evening and under the direction of the Grand Regent, Mrs. Julia Kane, recited the Rosary. Prayers for the intention of Mrs. Morris, were also said by the Rev. John D. Simmons, in a visit to the home. Floral tributes and Mass cards were received in memory of Mrs. Morris, in large quantities, testifying the admiration and respect that was held for her. Among those present at the Mass was a delegation of the Catholic Daughters of America. The blessings of the church at the grave were imparted by Father Simmons. The casket bearers were William Lunney, John Halwick, Harold Sanford, James Burns, Louis Sapp and Edward Ryan.

To Supply Pulpit

The Rev. Robert Baines, for several years past local preacher in charge of the Methodist churches at East Kingston, Glasco and Centerville, has given up the work and moved with his family to Poughkeepsie, where he is employed in a war industry. The pulpits of the three churches will be temporarily supplied by the Rev. James H. Russell of the Saugerties Congregational Church until such time as a supply pastor can be secured by Dr. A. G. Carroll, superintendent of the Kingston District.

University Students Want Education, 'Not Veneer'

Unlike the college youth of a generation age, comparatively few today go to college for the sake of veneer, says Dr. Junius L. Meriam, professor of education at the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"This is indicated by the large number of young men and women seriously engaged in outside work. It is not only the war that has changed the point of view of a large percentage of students, but a general realization of personal responsibilities and an awakened American spirit."

Dr. Meriam is proud of having worked as a janitor during his college days at Oberlin. At the same time he was a student chaplain in the boarding house. "I prayed and dusted," he says. "Grace at meals was obligatory, by which I received half my board free.

"Today we see girl students taking care of children, doing housework, and holding clerical jobs in order to receive an education. There are not many of the butterfly type."

that Rommel managed to escape the British trap at Bengasi, Gen. Sid Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters reported that the eighth army's advance forces were giving Rommel's legions, exhausted by a 700-mile retreat across the desert, no rest.

"Forward troops were in contact with the enemy in the neighborhood of Agedabia," the British command said.

"Bengasi was occupied by our forces yesterday morning."

Hitler's headquarters acknowledged yesterday that Rommel had fled Bengasi without a fight, abandoning his last chance of escape by sea east of Tripoli, 400 miles away.

On the Tunisian battlefront, both allies and Axis were rushing tank, troop and plane reinforcements into the struggle for the two key cities of Bizerte, once France's second biggest naval base, and Tunis.

"Allied armored troops are pouring across the Tunisian border," said a broadcast from American-occupied Algiers.

"Allied parachutists are proceeding eastward without making contact with this enemy," it added, indicating that the sky troops rapidly were seizing airports and other strategic centers as the Germans pulled back toward the coast on the Gulf of Gabes.

Berlin Radio Report

The Berlin radio said Nazi forces in Tunisia were being rapidly strengthened, with both troops and tanks transported by plane, and declared that Axis dive bombers were pounding allied columns.

Hitler also was apparently attempting to move in reinforcements by sea. The British reported that R.A.F. bombers flying from Malta attacked an Axis ship off Cape Bon, Tunisia, and raked it with cannon fire. Follow-up attacks by R.A.F. torpedo planes left the vessel sinking.

The British radio reported that cries of "peace" greeted King Vittorio Emanuele when he went to see the bombed ruins of Genoa and Milan recently and demonstrations by the war-weary Italians led to dismissal of the city's governor.

Other major developments:

France—Living up to expectations, France's pro-Nazi dictator Pierre Laval came out openly for an alliance with Germany and declared new volunteer legions would be raised to answer "the fresh insults which France has had to suffer" from the allied campaign in North Africa.

"We are again seeking reconciliation and an entente with Germany," Laval said, and strutting his new powers of life and death over the conquered third republic, the swarthy little collaborationist took a page from Hitler with the declaration:

"I will never accept for my country a parliamentary government as we had before."

There was no indication whether Laval was preparing to plunge France into a formal state of war against the allies, but perhaps significantly in his talk of raising volunteer legions he did not mention the existing French army regiments or the Toulon-based French fleet.

Russia—Soviet headquarters reported today that the Red armies stormed fortified heights in the Caucasus and on the Stalingrad front, dislodging the Germans, and inflicted bloody new losses.

Attacking at night, Russian troops captured a strongly-defended height southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus and killed 300 Nazis, a Soviet communique said, when in another night assault the defenders of Stalingrad drove the Germans from a hilltop and killed 400 enemy soldiers.

The Russians now were displaying sharply increased aggressiveness in all major sectors, but there still was no sign of a full-fledged counteroffensive as winter hardened its grip on the long battlefront.

Cries of 'Peace' in Italy

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Cries of "peace" greeted King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy when he went to see bombed ruins of Genoa and Milan recently and the demonstrations led to the dismissal of the city's governor, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by CBS. The broadcast did not indicate how its information was received.

Oyster Shell Mounds Show Indians Were Fond of 'Em

September with its "r" and its oysters brings back to the menu one of the earliest American foods. Indians ate so many oysters that their discarded shells form long mounds, now grass-covered, along the shores of most of the coastal states. Mounds of this sort, some 15 feet high, cover 30 acres in the Popes Creek area of Chesapeake bay's Maryland margin.

Algonquian braves especially liked oysters to piece out their meat diet as a change from the corn and squash grown by the squaws. All of the catch not eaten fresh was dried, smoked, and strung on slender twigs, to be carried to inland camps. Some of the smoked oysters were bartered to white settlers, according to the National Geographic society.

The ship Sarah Constant, bearing North America's first permanent English colonists to Jamestown in the spring of 1607, anchored at the entrance to Chesapeake bay, where the voyagers promptly began catching and devouring the "very large and delicate" oysters of the region. Later, when the young Virginia colony was in danger of being starved out, some of the settlers moved temporarily downstream from Jamestown to the Chesapeake oyster beds, where sea food was plentiful. Since then, Chesapeake bay has become famous as the world's leading natural oyster bar.

Plans Being Set to Use Colombia's Rubber Crop

Colombia's jungle hinterland, where the United States is reported discussing plans for a large wild-rubber supply, comprises some 100,000 square miles in the southeastern quarter of the South American republic, says the National Geographic society.

Preliminary surveys have shown a vast rubber supply, neglected because it is inaccessible. High coastal mountains make highway construction into the interior costly, and adequate supplies from other sources before the war made such highway expenditures uneconomical. Rivers in the region are not navigable by large craft.

Other obstacles to the development of this equatorial area were excessive heat, diseases common to tropical swamplands, mosquitoes, electric eels, cannibal fish, alligators, and other wild life, and unfriendly native Indians.

Colombia's rubber-growing region is adjacent to the original home of rubber in Brazil. Brazil is estimated to have as many as 300 million wild-rubber trees. There, also, transportation has presented a problem.

Colombia's rubber development plan does not include the building of roads, but air fields. Airplanes will carry the product to seaports.

Latin-American Engineers

Eight young engineers from as many Latin-American nations recently completed a year of work and study with the Rural Electrification administration of the U. S. department of agriculture. Upon their return home they will tell officials, rural audiences, and their colleagues in universities about U. S. farmers' use of electricity to save time and energy and to produce more foods needed to win the war against the Axis.

During their stay here, the eight from Argentina, Chile, Columbia, Uruguay, Honduras, Mexico, Peru and Guatemala, told members and officials of rural electric co-operatives about the progress of electrification in their own countries, thus helping to create a new bond of good will between rural populations of the Americas.

Sponsoring the program with the department of agriculture are the state department, the office of the co-ordinator of Inter-American affairs and the governments of the various nations represented. Success of the REA training program has inspired two additional nations—Panama and Cuba—to send representatives for the 1942-43 season.

To avoid buying rushes, New Zealand introduced clothing rationing overnight.

Kingston Post to Honor Members of Local Draft Board

Friday evening at a meeting of Kingston Post of the American Legion it was decided to tender a testimonial dinner to the members of the Kingston draft board early in December. The meeting was presided over by Vice Commander Ernest Croonquist in the absence of Commander William Mellert, who was in New York to say good-bye to his son who has enlisted in the U. S. Navy.

The Rev. Clarance E. Brown was elected chaplain of the post to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Lester C. Elmendorf, who is now working in New York. The post voted to donate $10 to the Red Cross toward the kit bag fund, and also $10 to the Community Christmas Cheer Committee.

Commander Mellert's written report of the Victory Ball held earlier in the month showed it had been a success both financially and socially.

Following the business meeting an address was delivered by Andre Cenvorst, Jr., a former resident of Holland, who is now a resident of Kingston. He told of the invasion of Holland by the Germans, and also touched on the war in Egypt, illustrating his talk with motion pictures of Egypt.

75 Degrees Registered Here Friday Afternoon

With the mercury rising to a new high of 75 degrees at 3:20 o'clock Friday afternoon, the day was the warmest so far experienced this month. The lowest temperature recorded yesterday was 51 degrees.

During the morning yesterday it gradually grew warmer until that afternoon it grew so warm that pedestrians shed their heavy outer garments. Rain commenced falling during the early hours of the evening and continued to fall throughout the night and in the morning hours today.

This morning at 12:50 o'clock the city hall thermometer recorded 54 degrees and at 7 o'clock the mercury had dropped to 42 degrees.

Thirty More Blanks Mailed to Registrants

Work of mailing out questionnaires to the boys in the 18 and 19 year group continued Friday at the Kingston draft office when 30 more blanks were mailed out to registrants holding order numbers 12038 to 12068. These blanks must be filled out and returned to the draft board within 10 days.

So far the board has mailed out a hundred of these questionnaires.

It is not expected that the teen age group will be called for service until January.

Coffee Sales Halt

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Coffee sales at retail stores halt for one week at midnight tonight. The sales suspension is intended to give grocers a chance to stock up for the start of coupon rationing at midnight, November 28, when every adult will be entitled to buy one pound every five weeks. "Coffee will be available for every person over 15 when rationing starts," an Office of Price Administration spokesman said, "but we're hoping that housewives won't cash in all the family's coupons at once right at the start. This would tax distribution facilities and might run some grocers temporarily short. Just buy the amount that you need. We can give absolute assurance there will be enough for all."

To conserve rubber, Southern Rhodesia is experimenting with wooden tires made by fitting blocks into wheel rims of slow-traveling vehicles.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Scattered rails and industrials managed to keep on the upside in today's stock market but many of Friday's climbers did little or nothing.

Further props for sentiment were found in the war news and another batch of pleasing dividends and earnings statements. Bullish forces, however, inclined to keep commitments light or stand aside because of the week-end.

The list was a shade uneven at the opening. Early gains of fractions were eliminated in some cases as the session progressed and, near the final hour, mild irregularity was the rule. Dealings were sluggish throughout.

Bonds and commodities lacked definite trends.

Among stocks International Telephone touched a new top for the year on an initial 4,000-share block but eventually slipped. Moderate support was accorded N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Chrysler, U. S. Steel and International Harvester. Backward were Anaconda, Kennecott, American Can, Dome Mines, Phelps Dodge and U. S. Rubber Preferred.

CECILIA RAZOVSKY

Miss Cecilia Razovsky, assistant to the executive director of the National Refuge Service, and one of the country's leading authorities on immigration and naturalization laws and on education for the foreign born, will be the guest speaker for the Workers' Rally at Ahavath Israel on Monday, November 23, at 8 p. m., in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees, Overseas Needs and Palestine.

The United Jewish Appeal is the nationwide drive of American Jewry for war relief for the first victims of Hitlerism in European lands, for the support of the Jewish homeland in Palestine as a democratic bastion in the Middle East, and for the adjustment of loyal refugees in this country desirous of making a maximum contribution to our war effort. These programs of rescue and reconstruction are carried on respectively by the Joint Distribution Committee, United Palestine Appeal and National Refugee Service, the three foremost American agencies represented in the unified campaign of the United Jewish Appeal.

Miss Razovsky's work in municipal, state and government bureaus, as well as in private social agencies, has taken her to Europe and South America on studies of migration problems.

'Showdown' With Petrillo

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Senator Clark (D.-Idaho) outlined a new effort today to bring the latest recorded music to the "juke boxes" and radio stations through a "showdown" with James C. Petrillo. Clark announced he would call the president of the American Federation of Musicians before an interstate commerce committee soon "and see if this labor leader is bigger than the federal government."
